Senators Get D.C. Rule Bill As Approval Is Forecast

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) last night predicted the new Washington home-rule bill he introduced yesterday would pass the Senate this year.

Backed and cosponsored by eight other Senate District Committee members, the measure already is supported in principle by the Senate Republican Policy Committee. A public hearing on the measure is set for 10 a. m. Monday.

The 112-page Kefauver document is a boiled-down version of the pending Auchincloss House bill with some significant changes, including broader local autonomy.

Veto Power for Congress

The new bill would:

1. Set up a nine-member elected city council and an appointed city manager empowered to make city ordinances and approve the annual city budget. All legislative proposals to Congress would become law unless vetoed by the House or Senate within 60 days or by the President within 10 days.

2. Establish a seven-member elected Board of Education to administer the District school system.

3. Streamline the sprawling District government of over 60 agencies into 12 major executive departments.

4. Permit borrowing and bond issues for permanent city improvements and other expenses up to 5 per cent of the assessed value of taxable property on approval by a city-wide referendum. Limited emergency indebtedness is also allowed under the bill.

"Dual Voting" Permitted

5. Allow "dual voting" here and back home with any one eligible to vote who has lived in the District one year, is over 21 and has not committed a felony.

6. Require approval of the home-rule plan by referendum.

Kefauver expressed confidence last night that his bill would clear the Senate this year "without too much trouble," pointing out that he already had been assured support from several Southern Democratic colleagues.

Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) is the only District Committee member who thus far has registered real opposition to Washington home rule.

One unanticipated feature of the new draft was omission of any reference to what the Federal payment would be. All prevous home-rule bills have either outlined a formula or called for a minimum 15 million-dollar Government contribution.

Kefauver said the way was open to further study of the Federal payment question, and to possible inclusion of a formula in the bill after hearings. It was pointed out the home-rule bill would still leave on the law books the present

Senate Passes 'Home Rule' Rent Curbs

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Ignoring Administration protests that its action would "wreck" the entire Federal rent control program, the Senate last night passed a "home rule" rent control bill for the next 12 to 15 months.

The vote was 68 to 10.

The Senate's measure will allow cities and towns, with the consent of State governors, to remove rent curbs.

Since the House had previously passed a "local option" Rent Control Act allowing local governing bodies to remove rent controls, the Senate's action means the final measure which comes out of conference will necessarily contain some form of local control over rents. A provision which has passed both houses in some form usually remains in any final draft.

Must Be Adjusted

The two versions must be adjusted in conference and acted upon by both houses before March 31, expiration date of the present law if rent control is to be extended.

The Senate measure grants landlords two automatic rent control hikes of 5 per cent each—one on October 1 and one April 1.

The House bill merely assures the landlords of a "reasonable return on a reasonable value."

This is another major difference in the two measures which the conference will have to iron out.

President Truman has specifically condemned the local option provision on the ground that it would open the door for pressure from the real estate lobby upon small local governing bodies.

The Chief Executive had asked for a two-year extension of controls but an attempt to carry out his request was swamped.

Mr. Truman also requested a general strengthening of rent laws to punish violators. Both the Senate and House measures generally loosen controls.

Kills Criminal Penalties

The Senate knocked out criminal penalties of one year in prison and a $5000 fine for "willful violations" of Federal rent ceilings.

The vote was 52 to 30.

Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.) called the action "inconsistent."

He said Congress year after year kept these penalties in operation for the special rent control law protecting the District of Columbia where many Congressmen are tenants.

Under the Senate bill, two 5 per cent rent increases are authorized—the first October 1, 1949, the second April 1, 1950. However, in no case could the total increases push a tenant's rent more than 15 per cent above the level of June 30, 1947.

For example, any tenant whose rent has already been raised 15 per cent under the so-called voluntary increase provision of the present law could not be charged either of the increases provided for in the Senate bill.

But if a tenant's rent has been hiked only 10 per cent since June, 1947, he could be charged the first 5 per cent increase October 1

Bonus Bill Beaten by 1 Vote In Maryland Senate Rollcall

By Roger Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., March 23.—By a one-vote margin the Maryland Senate tonight defeated a 100-million-dollar veterans' bonus proposal.

The vote on rollcall after an hour-long debate was 15 to 14.

An expected mass demonstration by bonus-seeking veterans failed to materialize, and although the Senate galleries were filled, not a peep came from them as the bill was defeated.

Companion bills in the House of Delegates are pending, and House leaders have said they were awaiting fate of the bonus bill in the Senate.

Leading Senate opposition was Senator P. G. Stromberg (D., Howard) who said his only son had been killed in World War II.

"This is not a time when we should be emotional and cater to the wildest elements in veterans' organizations," he asserted, pointing to State finances.

Senator Daniel Ellison (R., Baltimore), who said the number of eligibles under the proposed bill was not known and "this bill might cost the State 200 million dollars," declared he would favor a fund of up to 1 million dollars for the use of needy veterans.

Administration leaders had postponed debate on a proposed bonus until tonight after a cheering and booing demonstration on the bill Tuesday night, led by several hundred American Legionnaires.

To forestall a repetition of the previous night's cheering and booing, Senate President Byrnes had six special policemen on duty in the Senate chambers.

Only about 60 Legionnaires, however, were present, and they sat quietly in the galleries as the Senate squared off for what may be final Senate debate on the issue.

Sponsored by Senator Robert B. Kimble (R., Allegany) the bill would have authorized a State referendum in 1950 on issuance of a 100-million dollar bond issue to finance the bonus.

Payments of $10 to $500 would have been made to World War II veterans on the basis of $15 a month for overseas service and $10 a month for domestic service.

Until this week, the bill was considered as killed in the State Senate finance committee. Senator Kimble, however, succeeded in having the measure petitioned out of the committee. It was reported last night unfavorably.

Leaders Seek Recommital After Day of Floundering

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House turned more handsprings on veterans' pensions legislation yesterday, then adjourned overnight in confusion to take another look at the riddled Rankin bill.

When it quit at 5:22 p. m. until 11 a. m. today the bill was so loaded with amendments that leaders resolved to try once more to sidetrack it today.

Members themselves, completely out of control during yesterday's floundering session, weren't quite sure of what they had voted.

Here's How It Looked

From the galleries it looked this way:

1. Limitation of pensions to honorably discharged veterans of both World Wars at age 65 who can show they are in actual need.

2. Substitution of $72 a month, for the $90-a-month Rankin pension, or approximately the $72 the Veterans Administration now pays to needy World War I veterans with 10 per cent disability at 65.

3. Substitution for this of a completely new formula favoring World War II veterans over their World War I seniors by paying pensions on a sliding scale adjusted to the veteran's length of service.

Part of New Strategy

It all added up to a new leadership strategy—weighting the bill down with so many conflicting amendments that only by sending the bill back to committee could the House unsnarl them.

It was in a mood to do just that last night when House Veterans Chairman John Rankin (D., Miss.) maneuvered the overnight recess to rally pension forces.

Rankin got in his motion just in time. Representative Carroll (D., Colo.) had just risen to offer a preferential motion to strike out the enacting clause of the bill. It was Carroll's second such move in two days. On Tuesday the House voted with him to kill the bill in the preliminaries, then refused in two record votes to scuttle it.

Representative Albert Gore (D., Tenn.) in the chair ruled Rankin's motion that "the committee do now arise" had right of way and the House voted 173 to 98 to call off the fight for the day.

Jacobs Springs Surprise

A Hoosier freshman Democrat, Representative Jacobs of Indianapolis, sprang the day's biggest surprise with his sliding scale pension plan that altered the Rankin benefits beyond recognition.

Adopted 135 to 111 on a teller count, Jacobs' amendment provided:

"Ten dollars per month at age 65

Move to Cut New ECA Fund Developing

Strong efforts to lop a billion dollars or more off the Senate bill for $5,580,000,000 to carry the European Recovery Plan through the next 15 month, developed yesterday.

The bill is scheduled to reach Senate floor action today.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, Republican Policy Committee chairman, said he would support—but will not lead—action to cut the bill by one billion dollars if such a drive develops.

As it goes before the Senate, the bill would give the Economic Cooperation Administration $4,280,000,000 in recovery authority for the fiscal year starting July 1, 1949, and ending June 30, 1950.

A sum of $1,150,000,000 would be authorized to finance the program from April 3, when present authorizations expire, to July 1. An additional 150 million dollars in public debt authority would be allowed to permit the making of long-term contracts extending after June 30, 1950.

Senator Taft told reporters, "I think the $1,150,000,000 proposed for the three months up to July 1 is obviously padded."

Reducing this by one billion dollars would not upset the recovery program, he said, because actual delivery of ECA goods to Europe is well under existing authorizations to date.

He said he had no dispute with the other figures, and expects to vote to continue the aid program even if no cut is made.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg (R., Mich.) has supported the total aid amount, with the reservation that the actual appropriation which will be made by the Senate Appropriations Committee should depend on commodity prices at that time.

Senator Homer E. Capehart (R., Ind.) said he favors cutting the bill down to three billion dollars on grounds that most of the 19 ERP

'Unwelcome' Signs Ignored By Churchill

New York, March 23 (AP).—Winston Churchill, puffing a cigar and obviously enjoying himself, arrived in the United States today and said he gave "whole-hearted support" to the Atlantic Pact.

The wartime Prime Minister of Britain did not appear perturbed by an anti-Churchill demonstration near the pier as the big British liner Queen Elizabeth docked:

About 175 persons, most of them women, paraded with signs which read: "Churchill wants war—America wants peace" and "Go home, Mr. Churchill, we want peace."

Churchill declined to say anything about international affairs except his remark about the pact.

Later, however, when some one brought up his 1946 Fulton, Mo., speech proposing a union of nations against communism, Churchill said:

"I read that Fulton speech over recently to see what I said and I am bound to say that I am not inclined to go back on any of it.

"I would say that if I did it today I would go beyond it."

He was accompanied by his wife and son-in-law and daughter, Capt. and Mrs. Christopher Soames. They will be guests of Bernard Baruch, financier and adviser to Presidents.

Thursday night the Churchills will be dinner guests of President and Mrs. Truman in Washington.

"We had a nice crossing," Churchill said. "I am particularly glad to come to America to express the thanks we all feel on the other side in many nations for what she is doing for the world."

He said he preferred to give his opinions on international affairs "in ordered sequence and in a setting I choose."

Main purpose of his visit is to address the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's convocation of world leaders in Cambridge, Mass., March 31. His topic is "The

U. S. Denies Building War Bases in Iran

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Russian charges that the United States is building bases for aggression in Iran are completely false, Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson declared yesterday.

Acheson coupled this denial of the Soviet accusation with a firm statement that the North Atlantic treaty in no way indicates a weakening of United States interest in the security of Greece, Turkey and Iran.

"Our interest in the security of these countries has been made clear," he said, through American aid already extended to them, and we shall continue to pursue that policy."

This policy, he said, is to preserve international peace. He said the small military missions in Iran cannot possibly be construed as forces of aggression.

To answer the Russian charges, Acheson said there are two military missions in Iran, which include not more than 62 men. One is a mission of 40 to 50 officers and men, advising the Iranian army on administrative procedure, at the request of Iran. He said the agreement for the mission is registered with the United Nations.

The second mission, he said, comprises 12 officers and men, aiding in training the Iran police

Nonsegregation on Publinx Voted by Recreation Board

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The D. C. Recreation Board yesterday announced unanimous approval of a recommendation to run the public golf courses on a nonsegregated basis as it renewed efforts to wrest operating control of them from the Department of Interior.

It was the first time in the seven-year history of the seven-member board that a formal vote had been taken on racial policy.

Harry S. Wender, chairman, in announcing the poll, said it had been taken because of the persistent press reports that the nonsegregation factor was the main reason that Interior would not relinquish the public golf courses to the Recreation Board.

Said Wender, "I certainly thought I made it clear in earlier discussions with the Interior Department that we'd follow its racial policy. This unanimous action should eliminate any ghosts, take out all ifs, ands, buts and make our intentions crystal-clear."

Wender and two other members of the special committee on concessions will attend a meeting this afternoon with C. Girard Davidson, Assistant Secretary of Interior, to discuss further the whole complicated golf problem.

Davidson, who has been at his home, 3407 O st., nw., recuperating from a tonsillectomy, had little comment to make yesterday.

He said, "I'm making a special effort to meet this committee and will be happy to see it. I'd rather not discuss the matter now. I think there's been too much talking to the newspapers by the parties involved and not enough talking to each other."

Actually, formal notification of its racial policy is only a preliminary step for the Recreation Board.

Wender admitted yesterday that it hardly is in any position to take over in the near future. A sizable sum would be needed to pay for the equipment of Interior's present concessionaire, S. G. Leoffler, sr.

Wender wouldn't even hazard a

PUC Bars Sale Of $37 Million Pepco Bonds

By S. Oliver Goodman and Sam Zagoria
Post Reporters

The District Public Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon rejected a proposal by the Potomac Electric Power Co. to sell 37 million dollars in bonds to three insurance firms.

In denying the application, the PUC declared the sale would not be in the public interest. It criticized a 3¼ per cent rate of interest on the proposed bonds as being higher than that on the outstanding obligations that Pepco proposed to retire.

Earlier yesterday, Chairman Celler of the House Judiciary Committee made a surprise appearance at the PUC hearing in opposition to Pepco's plan. Representative Celler (D., N.Y.) lashed at "billion-dollar loans" by insurance companies to what he called "a favored few private corporations." He said it was not sound business.

"If you permit this (Pepco's) transaction," Celler added, "these insurance companies will ultimately control, lock, stock and barrel, this public utility which serves the Nation's Capital."

The New York Congressman said that his appearance at the hearing was unofficial and that he was not testifying as a representative of any congressional group.

"I must emphasize," he told the Commissioners, "that if you approve this application, you are embarking on an adventure fraught with great consequence. . . I ask

Security Council Asks Indonesian Roundtable Talks

Lake Success, March 23 (AP).—The Security Council approved tonight a Canadian plan aimed at settling the Dutch-Indonesian conflict in roundtable talks.

The vote was 8-0. Russia, the Soviet Ukraine and France abstained on the vote, which Russia demanded.

A Dutch spokesman, Dr. J. H. Van Royen, said the Canadian idea was very helpful.

The Indonesian spokesman, Dr. L. N. Palar, said he though. his government might accept if it meant Republican leaders would be freed before any roundtable conference is held.

Holdup Suspect Still Jailed Day After Clearance

The wheels of justice in Washington grind slowly, so far as Charles Wesley Coy, 32, is concerned.

Coy was in District Jail last night with more than 24 hours elapsed since police reported that a 16-year-old boy confessed and was positively identified as the holdup man in a robbery for which Coy has been jailed for two weeks pending grand jury action. Coy was committed in lieu of $5000 bond.

Judge Richmond B. Keech explained that he was on the bench hearing cases all morning and was not notified of Coy's case by the U. S. Attorney's office until it was not feasible to do anything during the day. Judge Keech then ordered Coy to be brought into court today.

Police said that three persons identified Coy as their assailant but Tuesday admitted error and identified the 16-year-old.

Committee of 20 Formed Here To Bring Back Living Theater

By Richard L. Coe
Post Reporter

A Citizen's Committee of 20 to bring back the living theater to Washington was formed last night at a public meeting in the Smithsonian Institution.

The meeting was called to discuss means of getting support for the Celler bill, designed to renovate the Belasco Theater and lease it to private producers.

Representative Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.) outlined his bill by pointing out the tangle of legal obstacles that have kept private producers from leasing the theater as it now stands. Under its present condition, he stated, no producer could hope to take over the theater. His bill provides that the Government recondition the theater and then "it would be up to the theater people to run it."

By a vote of the audience—of no more than 150—Melvin Hildreth, chairman of the Democratic Committee of the District and one of the evening's speakers, was elected chairman. Hildreth said he hopes to have the rest of the committee, all elected by last night's spectators, meet formally some time next week.

Speakers included Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.) and Representative John A. Blatnik (D., Minn.), who told the audience the future of the theater is up to the Washington public.

The Celler bill is now before the House Committee on Public Works, chairmaned by Representative William Whittington (D., Miss.).

Others who addressed the gathering and urged that Washingtonians write letters to the committee chairman showing their interest in the Celler Bill (H. R. 3038) included Miss Frances Starr, the actress; Patrick Hayes, the concert manager; Louis Simon, executive secretary of Actors' Equity; and the Rev. Gilbert V. Hartke, chairman of the meeting and director of Catholic University's speech and drama department.

Nominated to the committee were Mrs. Hazel Markel, Mrs. Edgar Mowrer, Constance A. Snow, Charlotte London, Mrs. Edward W. Sturdevant, Carolyn Will Stuart, Bess Davis Schreiner, Frances Starr, Frances Nash Watson, Father Hartke, Tom Donnelly, George Vivian, Horton Foote, Lawrence Heller, Edward Mangum, George Frain, Owen Dodson, Patrick Hayes and Richard L. Coe.

Miss Violet Heming, a resident member of Equity, a lifelong actress and the wife of Judge Bennett Champ Clark, was nominated to serve although not present at the meeting, the audience expressing the hope that she will accept the assignment.

Children, Household Poisons Form Dangerous Combination

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Children and household poisons form a dangerous combination too often ignored in the realm of preventive medicine, District physicians were told last night.

Backing up the observation, Dr. Milton B. Rubin, Children's Hospital intern in pediatrics, gave a detailed review of 250 child-poisoning cases admitted to his hospital in a little more than four years.

His paper, coauthored by Dr. Adrian Recinos, jr., chief resident in pediatrics, was one of three prize-winning works honored at their presentation last night before the District Medical Society.

Dr. Rubin urged every pediatrician to instruct parents, in writing, of the dangers of "household powders, flakes and solutions" and the importance of keeping them "as well as the usual galaxy of home remedies, out of sight and reach of small snoopers."

Of the 250 cases hospitalized at Children's between July, 1944, and September, 1948, only two were fatal. One died from swallowing oil of wintergreen liniment; the second succumbed after eating a phosphorus-containing rat poison.

Kerosene, usually associated with rural areas, was the greatest single poisoning source in the Washington study. Fifty-four of the cases admitted, or 21 per cent of the total, were children who accidentally swallowed the fuel. Of this number, all but six were Negro

Atomic Clearance of Graham Needs Probing, Bricker Says

By The Associated Press

Senator Bricker (R., Ohio) demanded yesterday an investigation of the way Dr. Frank P. Graham, Senator-designate from North Carolina, was cleared for access to atomic secrets.

Bricker told the Senate he did not plan or expect any objection to the seating of Graham, now president of the University of North Carolina. But he said the circumstances with regard to atomic information "ought to have the attention" of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee.

Graham was appointed Tuesday night to succeed the late Senator Broughton (D., N. C.).

Bricker said an atomic security review board refused to clear Graham for secret material and disbanded at some later date. He wanted to know more about that, too.

Graham was cleared for access to all atomic data by the Atomic Energy Commission itself.

Senator Jenner (R., Ind.) said in a statement that it is "common knowledge" that Graham "is just a little bit soft on Communist front organizations."

But, Jenner went on:

"With his weakness, I would rather see him in the United States Senate where he can only talk, instead of in the Atomic Energy Commission because down there he could do a heck of a lot of damage."

Bricker's demands brought an immediate reply from Senator Hoey (D., N. C.). Hoey said he resented "implications" and "in-

Asked what his wife would think of his offer, Thomson replied:

Reds Pledged Fealty To Stalin, Jury Told

Taken Off Payroll

Agency Head Asks Hearing On Loyalty

By The Associated Press

Reclamation Commissioner Michael Straus asked a Senate subcommittee yesterday for an immediate and open loyalty hearing.

Secretary of the Interior Krug also asked that Straus' request and a similar one from Richard Boke, reclamation regional director for California, be granted promptly.

"The loyalty issue which has been raised at this late date in connection with the right of Straus and Boke to be paid for their services is a complete phony," Krug said in a letter to the subcommittee.

"It is instigated by Senator Downey (D., Calif.) because his fight to give vast Federal benefits to large landowners in California has failed in every other instance."

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday refused to restore Straus and Boke to the Federal payroll after Attorney General Clark declined to produce an FBI report on Straus.

The committee appointed a subcommittee composed of Senators O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), McCarran (D., Nev.) and Cordon (R., Oreg.) to consult with President Truman and Clark on the matter.

New York, March 23 (U.P.).—Louis Budenz, a former Communist editor and the first witness in the Communist trial, testified today that at least two of the defendants had pledged their loyalty to Premier Josef Stalin in Moscow in 1935.

Budenz said that Jacob Stachel, Communist Party educational director, and Gilbert Green, the party's Illinois chairman, were among the "large" American delegation to the 1935 Moscow conference of the Communist International.

He said the conference passed a resolution that extolled Stalin and "expressed loyalty to Josef Stalin as leader of the Marxist-Lenin philosophy and the Communist movement."

Loyalty Pledge Quoted

United States Attorney John F. X. McGohey presented as evidence a copy of the resolution, which asserted "in the name of 65 Communist parties that Communists will be faithful to the end to the banner of Marx, Engels, Lenin and Stalin—under this banner communism will triumph throughout the world."

Budenz, former managing editor of the Communist newspaper in New York, the Daily Worker, renounced communism in 1945, 10 years of holding important posts in the party, and joined the Catholic Church.

When McGohey asked whether "the question of loyalty" had been brought up when he joined the party, Budenz said that Stachel had called his attention to the loyalty pledge to Stalin.

Tells of Talk With Green

McGohey read further from the resolution, which praised Stalin for being "at the helm in the struggle for liberation of the whole of humanity" and said "the victory of socialism in the USSR is a new phase in the world proletariat revolution."

Budenz's testimony was the first presented in the trial of 11 top United States Communists, which began more than nine weeks ago. The defendants are accused of conspiracy to advocate and teach the violent overthrow of the United States Government.

Budenz said he talked to Green on his return from Moscow in 1935 before Green reported to the United States Communist National Committee on work he had done in examining Communist youth organizations in Europe.

Stachel "Real Red Boss"

Green, a party member for two decades, was former youth leader of the party and went to Moscow again in 1945 with Earl Browder, then head of the party in this country.

Burdenz testified that when he prepared a statement to be carried in the Daily Worker on October 2, 1935, Stachel told him it was all right but should have stressed Stalin's role in international affairs.

Previously Budzen has charged that Stachel is the "real Red underground boss" in this country, and has testified against Stachel and other Communists at deportation hearings.

McGohey spent the first hour of the trial today establishing Budenz' background. The former Communist now is an economics professor at Fordham University.

As McGohey questioned Budenz, defense attorneys broke in with an objection to almost every question, and Federal Judge Harold R. Medina overruled them all.

Browder Assures Party He Won't Aid Prosecution

New York, March 23.—Earl Browder, deposed general secretary of the Communist Party, indignantly assured the party today that he will not appear as a Government witness against the 11 indicted Communist leaders and, in fact, begged his former comrades to let him testify in their defense.

In a letter to the party national committee, Browder, who was removed as leader in 1945 for deviating from the current line, said that press reports suggesting he would be called by the prosecution were "a stupid libel" and asked, "Why do you give circulation to such a falsehood?"

Truman, Film Stars to Aid Relief Drive

New York, March 23 (A).—President Truman and top movie stars will take the air Saturday to help a world-relief drive in 76,000 churches—but one countrywide church group is opposed to it.

The American Council of Christian Churches has asked radio networks for equal time to answer a broadcast which will aid the "one great hour" collection in the 76,000 churches Sunday morning.

The American Council has protected the relief collection because some of the funds will go to Church World Service, overseas relief organization for several Protestant denominations.

W. H. Bordeaux, general secretary of the council, said the money will "finance modernism and socialism on a world scale."

Bordeaux said his council was organized in 1941 in opposition to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, one of the groups supporting the "one great hour" drive.

Aims of the American council include, he said, combatting what he termed "extreme modernism, Romanism, very vigorous socialism pacificism, complacency toward and near-communism" of the Federal Council and the denominations represented in the Federal Council.

Bordeaux said his group has more than 1,500,000 members in 15 denominations.

The "one great hour" broadcast which the American Council is protesting will be heard on three networks—American, Mutual and Columbia—from 10 to 11 p. m. (EST) Saturday.

Philadelphia, March 23 (A).—The school teacher who risked death in a plunge out a window rather than return to Russia told the Philadelphia Bulletin forum today that life in the Soviet Union is one of "suffering, provation, terror and persecution."

Mrs. Oksana Kasenkina, in the first public appearance since her dramatic leap, said Russian women "age fast and die prematurely."

"The Sovet woman, despite her sturdiness and resistance to hunger, cold and suffering, cannot thrive on the misery that is her lot," she said through an interpreter.

She detailed these "appalling conditions under which the women of the Soviet Union are forced to live:"

1. They're equal to men—and must do heavy labor such as work as blacksmiths, miners, stevedores, lumberjacks and railroad track tenders.

2. Raise children. "She fights a losing battle against her living quarters becoming a pig sty. Exhausted in tattered clothing and always hungry, the Soviet woman is compelled to stand for hours in lines in order to buy meager rations.

3. A career woman generally is single. She has a mannish haircut, wear's men's clothes, and must talk and act like a man.

4. Political and literary activities totally subordinate to Soviet state and Communist Party.

5. "No religious life in Soviet Union to speak of . . . All clergymen are either members of the party, or, at least, its supporters."

6. Women sent to slave camps for slightest infraction of law such as being late to her factory or school job."

Phone Rate Hike Attacked

Baltimore, March 23 (A).—Roscoe P. Walter, a Rockville attorney, today asked the Maryland Public Service Commission to reverse its recent order permitting an increase in telephone rates. He contended the order is unlawful.

Soviet Blamed For Insecure State of World

Philadelphia, March 23 (A).—The failure of the United Nations to establish security throughout the world is the fault of Russia—and Russia only—a top State Department official said tonight.

Charles E. Bohlen, State Department counselor, blamed what he termed Soviet abuse of the veto and defiance of resolutions in the U. N. General Assembly for the current unrest—the so-called cold war.

Bohlen told the closisng session of the third annual Philadelphia Bulletin forum Russia's actions resulted in the North Atlantic Pact.

"The North Atlantic Pact is no substitute in any way for the United Nations," Bohlen insisted.

John Foster Dulles, United States delegate to the United Nations, said the North Atlantic Pact could halt war.

But, Dulles warned, "ambiguous acts and loose words could make the the pact a cause of war."

A Southern newspaper editor told the forum the South is against civil rights legislation because it has become strictly political legislation only."

"Civil rights are proper and right," Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution, told the third annual Philadelphia Bulletin Forum, "The danger lies in distorting legislation concerning them," he added.

McGill declared he is for a fair employment practices committee but "I must vigorously oppose an FEPC which would have Federal police powers.

"If we ever give to one Federal bureau its own police forces, we will later give it to others and will have destroyed every vestige of local government and authority," McGill asserted.

He added:

"One of the unfortunate aspects of the whole controversy about civil rights is that it has come to mean certain specific bills before Congress, and not an over-all approach to the problem.

"Nevertheless, it has been one of the tragedies of the South that twice in periods of great struggles for human rights, she has been jockeyed into a position of hugging to her breast a moral wrong and stubbornly defending it, refusing all compromise."

McGill cited the recent filibuster in the Senate. He said "The South was presented to the Nation and the world as being unwilling to stand for civil rights, but denying also the right to a debate and vote on the measures.

"However," McGill insisted, "there is a very sound reason for saying that our American system of checks and balances necessarily extends also to congressional voting and that a substantial minority must be persuaded, and not coerced."

Two educators disagreed on whether Federal aid can meet the demands of higher education in the United States.

Dr. Russell D. Cole, president of Cornell (Iowa) College, said "No."

Dr. Earl J. McGrath, United States Commissioner of Education, just as sure, said "Yes."

Dr. Cole said Federal aid and influence would have college education "a political football."

Raw Material Control Taken By Argentina

Buenos Aires, March 23 (A).—Argentina today took the first step toward seizing all raw material in this country and parceling them out under Government order, for the purpose of keeping all industries in operation.

President Juan D. Peron signed a decree giving the Ministry of Commerce and Industry control over raw materials, whether produced in Argentina or imported from abroad.

Under the order, if one factory has a large supply of material and its competitors are without, the government could seize the entire supply and apportion it among all factories.

Police jailed 100 delegates to a pro-Communist Slav organization congress today, after engaging them in a free-for-all fight.

A presidential decree made public today disclosed that funds for Argentina's armed forces will be trimmed by 184 million pesos ($36,000,000) this year. The government is seeking total savings in all departments of 650 million pesos ($130,000,000).

Several persons were reported injured in the clash which took place at a dance hall where the Argentine Slav Union had scheduled a two-day meeting. The restaurant of the hall in the residential Palermo section, was wrecked in the bloody, 20-minute scuffle.

Kronheim Confirmed For Post as Judge

Milton S. Kronheim, jr., 37, last night was confirmed unanimously by the Senate to be Municipal Court judge.

Kronheim was nominated by President Truman, and backed by the District Bar Association and Senate District Committee to succeed the late Judge John P. McMahon.

Chinese Reds Profess Desire To Talk Peace

Nanking (Thursday), March 24 (U.P.).—The Chinese Communists announced early today they were ready to begin peace negotiations in the "very near future" but they bitterly attacked the "bogus" regime of Acting President Li Tsung-jen.

A Communist broadcast lambasted the Nationalist government on almost every point, doubted the sincerity of the new government of Premier Ho Ying-chin and again demanded virtual unconditional surrender before starting the negotiations.

Signs Ignored By Churchill

Twentieth Century; Its Promise and Realization."

Asked what he would discuss in his M.I.T. speech, Churchill smiled and replied chidingly:

"Oh, come, come. I've been making it up on the way over."

Newsmen could not get him to discuss international affairs. He reminded them he used to be a "journalist" himself before he practiced "some other professions."

A ship source said Churchill appeared to enjoy his Atlantic crossing except for once when he complained that his favorite 1848 brandy was not up to par.

Also aboard the Queen Elizabeth was Harold J. Laski, former chairman of the British Labor Party and a political foe of Churchill's. Asked if he thought Churchill would continue as leader of the Conservative Party, Laski replied:

"Yes, he will. He will never give up. If he were drowning, he would come up for the third time and say that 'I will still win.'"

Laski was informed the University of California at Los Angeles had cancelled his two scheduled appearances there.

Armistice Pact Is Ratified By Israel and Trans-Jordan

Tel Aviv, Israel, March 23 (A).—Israel and the smallest of her active Arab foes, the Republic of Lebanon, signed armistice terms today.

Israeli and Lebanese delegations formally ratified at the Lebanese city of En Naqura an agreement they initialed Sunday.

One of the terms is that Israel will withdraw her troops from 14 captured villages in Lebanon within 10 days. Lebanon is a northern neighbor of Israel.

Trans-Jordan now is conducting armistice talks with Israel at Rhodes; Syria has agreed to open similar parleys, and Iraq's officially noncommittal.

Britain Won't Furnish Aid to Trans-Jordan

London, March 23 (A).—A government source said today Britain probably will turn down a request by King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan for British troops to patrol a 50-mile sector of that country's frontier with Israel.

Trans-Jordan made the request for help from Britain Thursday under their military assistance pact, Britain said.

Dr. Ralph Bunche, United Nations Mediator, reported to the Security Council from Rhodes yesterday that the recent reinforcement of British troops at Aqaba violated the Holy Land truce conditions.

The British Foreign Office said Britain would admit no violation of the truce.

The informant said the Foreign Office is in touch with the United States State Department on the subject.

Europe's Cold War Won, Bevin States

London, March 23.—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin told the House of Commons tonight that the United States and Britain have won the cold war in western Europe, including western Germany.

Bevin said he did not believe western Germany will ever go Communist now. Communist-led strike waves in France and Italy have been overcome," he said, with France's economy "well on the way to restoration" and Italy "saved."

Bevin said the United States, Britain and France "are drawing very close together" on German policy, and that the "two or three points still to settle" probably will be disposed of by next week.

The debate was marked by a charge from Conservative Harold MacMillan that Russia plans a political coup "quite shortly" which could destroy Marshal Tito's regime in Yugoslavia and wreck Greece.

The House of Lords held similar debate. Lord Pakenham, Minister of Civil Aviation, told Britain's peers "there is danger of war this year, and I am afraid there will be for a number of years to come." He added, "That does not mean the government thinks war is probable this year."

He assured the Lords the government has plans for "dealing with any emergency," and said it could go ahead with long-term planning now in view of the North Atlantic Treaty.

Bevin plans to leave Friday for Washington, to attend the signing of the treaty.

Danes Riot As Alliance Is Debated

Copenhagen, Denmark, March 23 (AP).—A Communist-led demonstration against the North Atlantic Treaty wound up in a fight between several hundred youths and police riot squads in Parliament Square today.

The lower house of Parliament is debating the government's proposal that Denmark join the alliance.

The Communists and some nonpolitical organizations had called for a demonstration for peace and against the alliance. They carried posters, and shouted slogans.

A delegation representing the Danish Peace Council, made up of Quaker and other groups, was received by members of the government. It delivered a resolution demanding a public referendum to decide whether Denmark should join.

[The United Press said Denmark's three major political parties, Social Democrats, Liberals and Conservatives, today rejected a Communist proposal for a national referendum on the Atlantic Pact and threw their support to the alliance. A vote on the bill authorizing Danish participation is expected sometime Thursday after the second reading in Parliament. Debate in the upper house will begin Friday.]

Italian Reds Again Try To Prolong Pact Debate

Rome, Italy, March 23 (U.P.).—Communists made two new attempts in the senate today to prolong Atlantic Pact debate. None of the leftist moves resulted in a vote and the majority hoped to end the debate Thursday.

Court Rules Anybody Can Join Picket Line

Philadelphia, March 23 (AP).—The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has ruled that anybody can picket a struck plant.

It threw out a 1947 amendment to the Pennsylvania labor relations act that made it unlawful for persons to picket establishments if they are not employed there.

Shostakovitch Ducks Press On Arrival

New York, March 23 (NYHT).—Dmitri Shostakovitch arrived early tonight at La Guardia Field with six other Soviet artists and intellectuals and they all disappeared in the direction of Long Island under the guidance of Russian Embassy personnel.

The renowned composer and his colleagues evaded a phalanx of waiting reporters, ducked into three large sedans and tore away.

They left behind a reception committee from the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace without anyone to welcome. So well hidden was their destination that sponsors of the conference, which will begin Friday at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, didn't know where the Soviet guests were taken.

Their arrival and precipitous departure, which followed the more leisurely coming of four Czechoslovak delegates, three Poles and a French West African, climaxed a day of intense activity in the battle among academicians.

Protests against the "peace conference" mounted in number as other organizations joined with the newly formed Americans for Intellectual Freedom to protest the three-day forum as "Communist controlled." The conference is sponsored by the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions, of which Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard astronomer, is chairman.

The conference also was confronted with the prospect of a picket line around the Waldorf-Astoria by the Peoples Committee for the Freedom of Religion.

Recent exiles from central and eastern Europe, including former Soviet citizens, have organized weekend sessions to protest "Soviet culture."

Reds Resume Attacks on Finn Premier

Moscow, March 23 (AP).—The Soviet weekly New Times resumed the Moscow attack today on Finland's Premier, Karl A. Fagerholm, who has been under Russian press fire for some time.

In an article entitled "Fagerholm's Cold War," the paper declared "the longer the Fagerholm government remains in power, the worse becomes the situation in Finland."

The paper charged that in international affairs the Finnish government "is following an obvious anti-Soviet course."

"Among ruling circles in Helsinki there has appeared in recent times a suspicious interest in the North Atlantic Pact," New Times asserted.

Finnish news has been displayed prominently in the Soviet press lately, most of it unfavorable to the present government.

Romania Hits At Wealthy

Bucharest, March 23 (AP).—The Romania government clamped on new ration restrictions today bearing heavily on the moneyed classes.

Ration cards will be denied to doctors, lawyers, members of other free professions, owners of more than three acres of land, shopkeepers, employers generally and all those who are not employed and their servants.

All these will have to buy in state shops and the free market at the official prices which are three to five times higher than prices of rationed goods.

The new ration restrictions include bread, meat, fats, rice and cereals.

Czech Exiles Will Be Tried In Absentia; Briton Ousted

(From Press Dispatches)

Prague, March 23.—Seventeen exiled Czech leaders, including Jan Papanek, delegate to the United Nations before the Communist putsch, will be tried in absentia on treason charges, the official Gazette announced today.

The list includes Juraj Slavik, former Ambassador to Washington.

A British official, Capt. Philip Wildash, left Czechoslovakia today under an expulsion order which the Foreign Office hinted was motivated by "grave charges, involving plots against the government."

Wildash was British consul and military permit officer in Prague. He was questioned six hours by police and then released with a statement by the Foreign Ministry that he "probably would be arrested unless he left the country in 24 hours."

The Czechoslovak Parliament passed a new national defense act today amid cheers for a statement that "the best army in the world—the Soviet army—is our ally." Rudolf Slansky, secretary general of the Communist Party, made the statement.

The act provides age limits of 17 to 60 for military duty. Women may volunteer in peacetime and can be drafted in event of war.

Czechs outside the country can be drafted to report for duty "with an allied state" in which they live or which they can reach.

Association Indorses Cleanup Drive Report

The 16th st. Highlands Citizens Association last night indorsed the cleanup campaign report submitted at the last meeting of the North Washington Council.

The association also adopted a resolution calling upon the highway department to improve sidewalks between 13th and 14th sts. on Missouri ave. nw.

Truman Due To Attend Pact Signing

Signing of the historic North Atlantic Treaty is scheduled to be held at 3 p. m. on April 4, in the Departmental Auditorium, it was learned last night.

Present plans are for President Truman to be present at the unprecedented ceremony, when the foreign ministers of eight, and possibly 12, nations affix their signatures to the two-continent defense alliance.

State Department officials considered every other possible setting in Washington before reaching the conclusion that the Departmental Auditorium, on Constitution ave. east of 14th st., was the only suitable Washington building for the signing.

The auditorium, between the Labor Department and the Interstate Commerce Commission Building, seats about 1500 people, and extra seats may be brought in for a few hundred more. Behind the stone-column-lined auditorium are three large committee rooms, available for the preceremony needs.

All members of Congress and their wives will be invited to the signing, plus ranking diplomatic officials and a limited number of Government officials, according to present plans.

Truman to See Press

Berlin Rally To Protest Ban On Red Money

Berlin, March 23 (U.P.).—Communists today scheduled a mass meeting for Saturday to protest the banning of the Russian-backed Eastmark from Berlin's western sectors.

The rally call spearheaded what was apparently an all-out Communist campaign to exploit discontent caused in the western sectors by the currency reform, ordered Sunday by the Allies.

Possible new trouble was seen in the announcement that United States authorities have rejected a $5,100,000 Communist bill for the use of cable lines between Berlin and western Germany.

British occupation leaders turned down a similar $2,100,000 demand from the East-zone German economic commission.

U. S. Denies Soviet Charge

force for internal security. Neither group, he said, has any relation to combat functions, and there are no American airfields, bases or facilities in Iran, nor are any contemplated.

Acheson's statement follows mounting Iranian concern over the Russian charges, with rumors they might be intended as a prelude to Russian invasion.

On March 14, Iranian Ambassador Hussein Ala called on Acheson to point out the increasing Russian propaganda pressure, and on Monday, the State Department launched the first of a series of daily broadcasts to Iran by the Voice of America.

Noting that the Russian radio and newspaper charges have included the claim that "American advisers intend to transform Iran into a military base to be used against the Soviet Union," Acheson declared:

"Such charges are altogether false and demonstrably untrue."

He then referred back to his radio address last Friday, in which he explained the North Atlantic pact, when he said, "This country is not planning to make war against anyone . . . It is not seeking war . . . It abhors war."

While the pact was being drafted, said Acheson, "we were aware of the possibility that our formal expression of serious interest in the security of countries in the North Atlantic area might be misinterpreted as implying a lessening of our interest in the security of countries in other areas, particularly the Near and Middle East."

Any such misinterpretation, he said, should be promptly corrected, for "a serious threat to international peace and security anywhere in the world is of direct concern to this country."

At his press conference, Secretary Acheson took occasion to commend a series of "work and victory" programs being held in Greece this week, "to assert their determination to preserve their independence in the face of rebellion from within which is largely directed by antidemocratic forces outside Greece's borders."

Acheson said he was happy "to reaffirm the solidarity" of this Nation and Greece in the Greek struggle to preserve their freedom.

In answer to questions about his attitude on a Middle East or Mediterranean pact to parallel the North Atlantic Treaty, Secretary Acheson said he could give no opinion as that issue is not before him. Turkey has reportedly been distressed about failure to include that country in the Atlantic pact and hopes for a Mediterranean pact as an alternative.

Acheson said there is no official consideration under way on a proposed Pacific pact, which has also been discussed elsewhere.

Spaak Accuses Reds Of Collective Treason

President Assails Slave Labor Camps

President Truman yesterday took an indirect slap at Russia in denouncing "slave labor camps" of totalitarian countries.

Speaking before a meeting of 1500 industrial safety leaders here, the President declared:

"Under the democratic way of life, we protect the values of human life and human happiness against exploitation by individuals or by the state. In our democracy an injury to one is the concern of all."

But countries which live under a totalitarian system, Mr. Truman said, think of men "as tools of the state."

AFL Charges Recalled

"As a consequence," the President observed, "there is indifference to pain and human suffering. This is demonstrated most clearly in the slave labor camps where the bodies of men are deliberately destroyed by inhuman conditions of labor."

The President did not mention Russian or any other totalitarian country by name, but there was little doubt on the part of his audience that Mr. Truman had in mind the recent charges by the American Federation of Labor that there are 14 million slave laborers in Russia and her satellite nations.

The Chief Executive urged the industrial safety leaders—holding a three-day session at the Interdepartmental Auditorium—to work out a long-range cooperative project for reducing accidents, particularly in the smaller plants of the Nation.

He suggested that the "present tragic toll of two million injuries a year in industry" be cut by half at the end of three years. He said:

"The plain fact is that our Nation cannot afford the needless loss of skilled workers if we are to produce for prosperity in this country and for peace abroad."

(The Bureau of Labor Statistics disclosed yesterday that disabling work injuries for 1948 numbered 1,960,000, the first time in eight years that the toll fell below two million. Construction was the only industry group to show an increase in accidents. Coal-mining safety records showed significant improvement, according to the bureau.)

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin told the conference that "safety, like freedom, is everybody's business." He said:

"The United States has joined the free peoples of the world in a race between democracy and communism. Under the European Recovery Program we have made great commitments to the civilized nations of the earth, commitments we cannot meet without conserving all of our possible manpower."

Industrial injuries, Tobin said, include 16,000 killed annually, 90,000 permanent disabilities. He estimated that the annual toll of two million accidents cost the Nation over $4,500,000,000 a year.

Another speaker yesterday was John O. Pastore, Governor of Rhode Island, where industrial accidents have been reduced 36 per cent in the past four years. He said that an effective State safety program requires safety enforcement and safety promotion.

UMW to War On Senators Favoring Boyd

John L. Lewis had no public comment yesterday on the Senate's confirmation of the man he opposed to head the United States Bureau of Mines.

A spokesman for the United Mine Workers, however, disclosed that machinery was being set in motion to blackball—politically—those Senators from the coal mine States who failed to vote against the confirmation.

The Senate approved President Truman's selection of Dr. James Boyd, former dean of the Colorado School of Mines, Tuesday night by a 50 to 11 vote. Hitherto, the objections to Boyd, on the ground that he was not qualified to deal with coal mines, had held up Senate confirmation for nearly two years.

Lewis called out more than 400,000 of his coal miners east of the Mississippi for a two-weeks "memorial period," partly to protest the President's naming of Dr. Boyd. The Senate's action came on the ninth day of the walkout, due to end next Monday morning.

Speculation On Future Action

There was some speculation that the UMW chief would extend the walkout in reaction to the Senate's vote, and there were reports from the mine area that Lewis's lieutenants were outraged by the confirmation of Dr. Boyd. But Lewis, always enigmatic on his next move in any situation, said nothing.

There's no question but that Lewis as well as his top aides were burned up with the action of those coal mining State Senators whom the UMW had indorsed and supported in past elections.

Among those Senators supported by the UMW in the '48 elections and now sheduled for prolabor blacklisting are Democrats Paul H. Douglas of Illinois, James E. Murray of Montana, and Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. Others who face UMW opposition on account of their vote on Boyd are such Administration stalwarts as Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, chairman of the Senate Labor Committee; Scott W. Lucas of Illinois, Senate majority leader; Francis Myers of Pennsylvania, Senate majority whip.

Boyd Gets First Pay Check

Meanwhile, Dr. Boyd, holding office by virtue of interim White House appointments through the months of controversy over his confirmation, yesterday received his first pay check in 15 months. Not counting the usual deductions, the sum including back pay was around $12,500.

Today, at noon, in a public ceremony at the Interior Department auditorium, Dr. Boyd will be formally sworn into office. Secretary of Interior Julius A. Krug, who sponsored the appointment of Boyd is expected to make a little speech.

Observers generally agree that in opposing Dr. Boyd these past two years, Lewis was really fighting Secretary Krug, against whom the UMW leader took a fierce dislike during the periods when the Government seized the coal mines to prevent paralyzing coal stikes.

Plan to Report Labor Bill Without Debate Snagged as Rep. Sims Announces Opposition

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A Fair Deal power play, designed to shove the Administration's labor relations bill through the House Labor Committee without amendment or debate, ran into a snag yesterday.

Representative Hugo S. Sims (D., S. C.), who at 27 is the youngest member of Congress, informed a caucus of Fair Deal Democrats on the committee that he would not join in a vote to report out the Administration-sponsored Lesinski bill without a discussion of proposed amendments.

Sims' stand came as a surprise to Administration strategists inasmuch as the youthful World War II paratrooper has unequivocally proclaimed himself in favor of repealing the Taft-Hartley Act and replacing it with an "improved" Wagner Act as urged by President Truman.

Left One Vote Short

As a result, Committee Chairman John Lesinski (D., Mich.) can count on only 12 sure votes when the committee meets this morning. He needs 13 to vote out the Administration's labor measure as is.

The Fair Dealers think they can pick up the thirteenth ballot from among the nine Republican members and the three Southern Democrats who have voted against the Administration in the past.

There were indications that the vital vote might be forthcoming from Representative Graham A. Barden (D., N. C.), one of the trio of Southerners who has strongly defended the Taft-Hartley Act. Barden said yesterday he was tempted to join the Fair Dealers in cutting off further discussion in order to get the bill quickly on the floor of the House, where the Lesinski bill is expected to undergo considerable face-lifting.

A Republican member, Representative Walter E. Brehm of Ohio, said yesterday he would vote with the GOP bloc, but that if his vote were necessary he would cast his ballot to get the legislation onto the House floor.

Brehm has four amendments to propose, and figures he will get quicker—and positive—action on them before the full House.

Although many Capitol Hill observers believe a coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats will take over control of the measure when it gets on the floor, the committee Republicans—excepting Brehm—are expected to demand full discussion of all proposed amendments in committee.

The Kelley Subcommittee met briefly yesterday, and without debate, voted out the Lesinski bill, 8-5, on straight party lines. The CIO promptly hailed the speedy action as "in the best public interest" and called for similar action by the full committee today.

Representative Lesinski, chairman of the full committee, meanwhile let it be known that he is planning to appoint Representative Adam C. Powell jr. (D., N. Y.) head of a subcommittee on Fair Employment Practices legislation, and Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.) head of a subcommittee to investigate racketeering in unions.

Powell and Jacobs had announced their intention to propose amendments to the Lesinski bill, but will take them up instead as separate legislation through their new subcommittees.

May Run Ahead of Senate

If the Lesinski bill is voted out of committee Thursday it is likely to hit the House floor for action before the similar Thomas bill, cleared by the Senate Labor Committee, comes up before the Senate. Administration leaders in the Senate have decided to hold up the move to repeal the Taft-Hartley Act to permit a remarriage of Fair Deal Democrats with the Southern Democrats in order to obtain passage of part of President Truman's program.

The House Labor Committee, in a second action yesterday, recommended committee approval of Representative Kelley's resolution to create a temporary labor relations commission, made up of five management spokesmen, five labor leaders, five Representatives and five Senators, to study changes in labor relations legislation.

The resolution received bipartisan support and was voted out of the subcommittee with but the single dissenting vote of Representative Wint Smith (R., Kans.).

Legislation along the lines of the Kelley resolution has been recommended several times in the past by President Truman.

NLRB Rejects Carpenter Plea

The National Labor Relations Board ruled yesterday that union men cannot refuse to work with nonunion members if the object of their refusal is a secondary boycott.

The board rejected a plea of the Brotherhood of Carpenters (AFL) that the refusal of seven members to work for Montgomery Fair Co., Montgomery, Ala., was legal because of "a reconized union policy against working with nonunion men and not for the purpose of forcing Fair to cease doing business with Bear Brothers, a Montgomery contractor."

By Forrestal

Press Data On Weapons Centralized

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary Forrestal yesterday moved to place under immediate control of his department all armed forces publicity about new weapons and equipment.

In taking this step, he merely advanced an arrangement already ordered to take effect March 31. Last Thursday, Forrestal directed that all information services of the Defense Establishment be merged at the end of this month.

Included in this merger was consolidation of functions for review of speeches and articles by armed force officers and for review of releases for publication. Heretofore, each service has issued its own releases and conducted its own review for possible violations of security. Hereafter, Forrestal ordered:

"No information of any kind whatsoever relating to performance or capabilities of new weapons or equipment of any kind will be released to the public without specific clearance from this office."

Forrestal added that each service must see to it that the same procedure is followed by its subordinate "commands and services." Thursday's directive was released to the press with a summary; no release was made of yesterday's order speeding up central control of information relating to new weapons and equipment.

Apparently yesterday's order resulted from efforts of some of the services to fight their battles in newspaper headlines, which have resulted in congressional charges of security leaks. Called before a committee of Congress, Forrestal explained that his order of last Thursday was being issued as a partial solution and that Defense Secretary-designate Louis Johnson had approved.

Two claims which aroused congressional interest came from the Navy and the Air Force. The Navy revealed that it has aircraft which could carry atom bombs and that it had been flown off carriers with record loads.

Another story, published without attribution, was that the Air Force B-36 bomber was capable of reaching Russian targets and that the Joint Chiefs of Staff had listed 70 such targets.

Baltimore, Md., March 23 (AP).—Wayne Coy, Federal Communications Commission chairman, today said the 12 broadcasting channels now assigned to television "will not be eliminated."

"Obviously, therefore," he said in an address prepared for the Advertising Club of Baltimore, "present television sets available on the market will get service from these channels continuously."

The FCC chief devoted most of the address to the current public discussion over the possibility of television sets now in the hands of the public becoming obsolete.

Noting that new television grants have been frozen for nearly six months so that the FCC may reexamine the engineering standards of the system, Coy indicated that the processing of new station applications may be resumed during May or June.

In this connection he asserted: "The commission would not be taking the time to revise the standards for the presently available service if it had in mind eliminating, in the near future, the use of these channels for television service.

"I think this question of obsolescence of television receivers is something of a tempest in a teapot. I do not think that anyone buying a television set today has had a fraud perpetrated upon them. I can assure them that wherever a television signal is available from a VHF transmitter, their sets will render them fine service for many years and can be converted to render fine service for them if ultra-high frequencies are utilized for the present system."

However, the chairman asserted that "if the commission should adopt another system of television (such as color or high definition black and white) for use in the UHF band, the present television receivers will probably not be able to get service from those frequencies."

Time Again At Landmark

The Washington Post

CLOCKED—The long-familiar clock, removed from the little red brick building at 1151 16th st. nw., was back over the door yesterday. The structure's new residents — WMAL-TV — reinstalled the timepiece yesterday after a story in The Washington Post said its removal was the only physical change in the architectural midget in 44 years. From 1904 to 1947, the one-story landmark was the office of the William King & Son Coal Co. Don Silbert, WMAL-TV field engineering supervisor, steadies the ladder while Elmer Hall, television engineer, replaces the electric bulbs which light the clock at night

Some Steel Mills Lay Off Workers as Demand Lessens

Increased supplies and lessening demands for certain kinds of steel have resulted in curtailment in production at several steel mills.

In Canton, Ohio, the Republic Steel Corp. has shut down five steel furnaces within the last month, idling about 300 workers. The company said the action was due to lack of orders for high grade alloy steel. They added that layoffs were temporary, and that many workers were being absorbed in other departments.

Two open heart furnaces and one electric furnace at Alleghany Ludlum Steel Corp.'s plant at Brackenridge, near Pittsburgh, were closed yesterday, due to declining demand for silicon steel. About 450 workers were affected. A third open hearth furnace is scheduled to go down Friday night.

The company said lack of production by electric equipment manufacturers was the reason for the letdown.

The falling market for high alloy steel products also has forced curtailment at Crucible Steel Co.'s Midland, Ohio, plant.

From Oakland, Calif., came a report that the Fontana Steel plant of Kaiser Co. Inc., has cut steel prices from $10 to $39 a ton. The cuts bring some prices below last August when Fontana announced a general increase of $30 a ton.

Meantime, price-cutting spread to zinc. A leading zinc producer trimmed the price 1½ cents a pound to 16 cents, East St. Louis basis, yesterday. Other sellers are expected to meet the lower price. The last OPA price was 9¼ cents on November 8, 1946.

Senate Confirms Louis A. Johnson As Defense Chief

The Senate yesterday confirmed the nomination of Louis A. Johnson to be Secretary of National Defense. He is to succeed James Forrestal March 31.

The Senate acted with unusual speed at the request of Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) of the Armed Services Committee, which only a few minutes earlier had approved Johnson's appointment.

Tydings told the Senate he considered it "urgent" that Johnson be confirmed without delay. Ordinarily nominations lie over a day after being reported out by a committee.

Senator Gurney (R., S. Dak.), ranking Republican member of the Armed Services Committee, joined Tydings in asking immediate action.

2d Keleher Divorce Action Is Dismissed

"I figure if I eat enough of these things, they'll stop trying to lead me around!"

Two times to the post and two wins was the score chalked up yesterday for John B. (Sport) Keleher, the gambler.

For the second time in three months, a divorce suit brought against him by his wife, Mrs. Anna T. Keleher, was dismissed in District Court.

As in her previous suit, Mrs. Keleher, who lives in the Woodley Park Towers, had charged her husband with adultery and cruelty and named as correspondent Dorothy Blake of the Dorchester House. The previous suit was dismissed by Judge Edward A. Tamm.

In dismissing the new action, Judge David A. Pine ruled that the latest suit contained no significant differences from the previous suit in which the issues had been decided.

At the same time, Judge Pine refused to dismiss a countersuit by Keleher charging desertion.

Keleher charges that his wife changed the locks on their Woodley Park Towers apartment in January, 1946, removed $80,000 of his money from their jointly owned safe deposit boxes and has since refused a reconciliation. Keleher now lives at 2400 16th st. nw.

Mrs. Keleher was given 20 days in which to amend her complaint and an equal period in which to file an answer to her husband's countersuit.

Hall Guilty In Forced Prostitution

Carl J. Hall, 22, 231 8th st. se., was convicted yesterday of pandering in forcing his 19-year-old wife to prostitute herself.

The guilty verdict was returned by a jury in the District Court of Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut. Assistant United States Attorney Cecil R. Heflin prosecuted.

Hall's wife, Jean, a frail, blondish mother of a 9-month-old child, told the jury that Hall repeatedly insisted that she entertain men to help balance the family budget.

Finally, she said, on February 9, he choked her and frightened her into submitting to William R. Wilson, 46, no local address, and described as an acquaintance by sight of Hall. No money was paid for the act of intercourse, it was admitted.

Wilson was subsequently charged with rape, but the grand jury refused to indict. Wilson denied knowledge that the woman was Hall's wife or that force was used.

Hall, a tavern counterman, denied the charge and insisted that he had been drinking at the time of the crime charged.

Hall was recently convicted for taking property without right in stealing a Capital Transit Co. streetcar here while the operator was buying cigarettes and driving it 3 miles through the city.

Franco Suggests Atlantic Pact Of Airwaves

Madrid, March 23 (U.P.).—An Atlantic pact of the airwaves was suggested by Generalissimo Francisco today in in interview with H. V. Kaltenborn, veteran commentator for the National Broadcasting Co.

Franco suggested news of the Western way of life be broadcast to the Russian people. Kaltenborn said at the conclusion of the audience, which was the longest ever given by the Spanish leader to a visiting correspondent, that they had discussed the Atlantic Pact and the Spanish economic situation.

Of the pact, Kaltenborn quoted Franco as saying that such a treaty "without Spain would be like an omelet without eggs."

Texas to Eject Reds From State Colleges

Austin, Tex., March 23 (AP).—A House-approved resolution to eject Communists from State colleges was passed unanimously by the Texas Senate without discussion today.

The Senate's action puts the resolution into effect immediately.

The resolution empowers and instructs presidents of all State-supported colleges to investigate and expel any student or teacher found to be a Communist.

Backward Areas Aid Unit Set Up

A special branch of the Foreign Aid Administration was set up yesterday to tie President Truman's world co-op" plan into the Marshall European recovery program.

Mr. Truman announced the world plan in Point Four of his inaugural address. He said the United States should cooperate with other democratic nations in providing technical experts, industrial know-how and other types of low-cost aid to develop backward areas of the world.

Howard Bruce, deputy Foreign Aid chief, said the organization will be headed by Dr. Isaiah Bowman, former president of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

Dr. John Orchard of Columbia University, New York City, will head the European staff at the headquarters of roving Marshall Plan Ambassador W. Averell Harriman in Paris.

Doctor to Discuss Age As 'Curse or Blessing'

"Age—Curse or Blessing" will be the topic of Dr. Edward J. Stieglitz, Washington physician and specialist in diseases of the aged, in a lecture at 8 p. m. Friday in the All Souls' Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard st. nw.

Dr. A. Powell Davies, pastor of the church, will act as moderator for a panel discussion following the lecture, which is free and open to the public.

Compromise Reached On Duty-Free Copper

A House-Senate conference committee compromised yesterday on suspending import duties on copper until June 30, 1950.

The present act suspending such duties expires March 31. The House passed a bill to continue the suspensions until March 31, 1951. This was cut by the Senate to one year.

Slain Girl's Sister, Youth Are Seized

Minneapolis, March 23 (U.P.)—The missing sister of a slain Milwaukee high school girl and the youth whom she said she married were seized here late today. Police said they denied any knowledge of the murder.

Kathleen Birmingham, 17, and Milton Babich, 19, of West Allis, Wis., were surprised by police at a Southside rooming house, where they had been staying since coming here from Kalamazoo, Mich.

They said they were married at Kalamazoo, but didn't know at the time that Patricia Birmingham, 16, was dead. Babich is charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, Kathleen.

The body of Patricia, who had been missing since February 10, was pulled up from the bottom of the Milwaukee River last Sunday afternoon. She had been shot to death and her body weighted with a concrete building block.

"We didn't have any idea she was dead," pretty, dark-haired Kathleen sobbed at police headquarters.

Three on Trial In $10 Killing

Three men were on trial for their lives yesterday in District Court on a charge of murder in the commision of a $10 robbery.

They are John Berry Greenleaf, 37, and Edward Joseph Blake, 21 of Fairmont Heights, Md., and Leroy Lewis Smith, 25, of Landover, Md.

Greenleaf is charged with being the wielder of a brick with which the skull of John Gant, 6105 Eads st. ne., was fractured. The crime ocurred at 1:30 a. m., September 15, in the 6200 block of Dix st. ne.

Blake and Smith are accused as Greenleaf's accomplices in the robbery-murder.

Prosecutors William McKinley and Arthur J. McLaughlin suffered a setback when a witness repudiated a statement given to police.

Leroy L. Spriggs, 17, of Fairmont Heights, now in District jail awaiting trial in connection with three yoke robberies involving Greenleaf and Blake, had told police that Blake admitted complicity in the Gant robbery. But on the witness stand Spriggs said he made the statement only after unnamed police had "hurt" his arm. Spriggs said that earlier he injured his arm in an automobile accident and that police used force in questioning him.

The legality of the confessions given by Greenleaf and Blake was argued yesterday and Judge Edward M. Curran is expected to rule on whether the confessions are admissible as evidence.

Arlington Business License Sales Lag As Deadline Nears

With the March 31 deadline for purchase of Arlington's new business and professional licenses looming, Treasurer John Locke Green said yesterday only $54,380 of an expected $200,000 has been obtained.

The licenses, which professional and businessmen in nearly every category are required to have, went on sale March 1 in the county courthouse. Green blamed lagging collections on "last-minute" taxpayers, but added that "many people just don't have the money."

Sale of county auto license tags also is slow, Green reported, with $37,446 collected through Tuesday out of an anticipated $200,000. Deadline for the tags is April 15.

Two Accused In 4 Slayings Found Insane

Two men indicted for first-degree murders here escaped trial yesterday when District Court juries found them to be insane.

The men are: Joseph W. Hunter, 27, of 1247 Union st. sw., charged with two killings here and one in Alexandria, Va.

Orval N. Jackson, 63, a self-styled former rancher residing at 4609 Polk st. ne., charged with the jealousy shotgun slaying of Mrs. Mary Jane Frei, 48, his niece by marriage.

Psychiatrists told the juries that the chance was slight that Jackson will ever regain his sanity enough to stand trial since he has suicidal tendencies, hardening of the brain arteries and cancer of the bladder.

Hunter was diagnosed as a schizophrenic with no prognosis indicated.

Both men will be sent to St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Hunter was charged with fatally shooting two men during a holdup of a moving-picture theater October 30 in Southwest Washington.

Mayorless D. C. Gets Bid to Conference

In Portland, Ore.

Gaming Ban Easy, Woman Mayor Says

When Mrs. Dorothy Lee, Her Honor the Mayor of Portland, Oreg., says it is "very simple" to get rid of gambling in a city and and then tells how, the answer sounds easier said than done.

Mrs. Lee

The real payoff doubtless lies in Mrs. Lee herself, who would seem to be as conscientious a mayor, or female, as you are likely to find in a long, long walk.

At the Conference of Mayors in session yesterday at the Statler Hotel there were, from time to time, a good many vacancies in the seats reserved for delegates. But never that of the Mayor of Portland.

Short Time Cleanup

Mrs. Lee has been in office only 2½ months but in that time, it is reported, she has cleaned out dice, slot machine and assorted rackets, and closed the bordellos in a city which for years has been wide open.

"You make up your mind you're going to have a certain policy and adhere to it," she said when a few minutes lapse between sessions arrived. "No exceptions. Your chief of police makes this the routine of the day. You may be recalled. You may make lots of enemies. But you can stop gambling."

"How about numbers? That's a big racket in Washington."

"We just nipped it in the bud in Portland," Mrs. Lee said. We went around and made arrests."

Has Determined Air

The beguiling simplicity of Mrs. Lee's approach is given fiber by a determined air which is reflected immediately in conversation with her.

What about the argument that people are going to risk a buck or two anyhow, and you might as well bring it out in the open—legalized lotteries, for example?

"Gambling becomes a disease," Mrs. Lee said without hesitation. "Nothing brings in undersirables like commercialized gambling. These people make big money, become strong. The first thing you know they're in a position to corrupt city officials. And they branch into other activities besides gambling."

"Such as bordellos," this being one of the enterprises Mrs. Lee's mayorship is said to have whipped down in Portland.

"What are they?"

"Vice—prostitution, bootlegging and gambling," the Mayor of Portland said in a ringing voice, "go together."

Mrs. Lee is a slim-figured, 47-year-old wife and mother of two children, a lawyer by profession, a public servant for twenty years—fifteen in the State Legislature, five on the Portland city council.

As a result of "overwhelming resentment" against conditions in Portland there was "a sort of public demand" for her to run for mayor, and she did it in the middle of her councilman's term.

Some of the more ungrateful citizens of that city, it is said, refer to her as "Dotty Do-Good" and "Mrs. Air-Wick." She is not likely to waste a second's thought over such titles.

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The mayorless City of Washington yesterday was officially invited to become a member of the United States Conference of Mayors.

The action, by unanimous vote, came at the final conference session at the Statler. It followed a story and a editorial in The Washington Post pointing out that this city had no representative at the conference although it shares most of the problems besetting the Nation's municipalities.

Conference officials had said the District Commissioners had never expressed interest in attending while two of the Commissioners said they never had been invited.

Favor D. C. Home Rule

While the conference did not consider the question of home rule for the District, a dozen mayors questioned by a Washington Post reporter gave unanimous approval of such legislation. One mayor said he had intended to introduce a resolution putting the conference on record for District home rule, but that such a resolution appeared to be outside the province of the group.

Here are comments of the mayors:

Mayor W. Cooper Green of Birmingham, Ala., new president of the conference: "I'm for local home rule here 100 per cent."

Mayor George W. Welsh of Grand Rapids, Mich., retiring president! Home rule is our cry for all cities, yours included."

Mayor Martin H. Kennelly of Chicago: "Of course, I think you should have local self-government."

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore: "Of course, I'm for home rule for the District. I was for it as a member of Congress and I'm for it today."

Similar statements of approval for local suffrage came from Mayors William E. Kemp of Kansas City, Nicholas Udall of Phoenix, Ariz.; Elmer E. Robinson of San Francisco, J. W. Elmore of Knoxville, Tenn.; E. T. Houston of Tucson, Ariz.; Michael D. DiSalle of Toledo, and Benjamin G. Nelson of Cheyenne, Wyo.

Berlin Mayor Hails Airlift In Talk Here

The mayor of the besieged western zones of Berlin came to Washington yesterday to tell this Nation's top municipal officials his people are preparing for a second winter of blockade because that is "the only language" the Russians understand.

Dr. Ernest Reuter, the 60-year-old mayor, spoke to the United States Conference of Mayors only a few minutes after arriving at National Airport from Berlin. His speech and a talk by Vice President Barkley concluded the final session of the mayors' three-day conference. Election of officers and approval of resolutions also took place.

Reuter said anti-Soviet Germans would not leave Berlin "until the city is a free city." He said the Germans "do not want to be incorporated into the Soviet paradise—we want to be a free people." Germans, he said, "have nothing against any nation. We are only against the Soviet military administration."

The mayor told of Berlin's dependence on the airlift, "the greatest miracle we ever have seen." He added the hope that daily air tonnage will be raised from around 4000 to 5000 tons to about 8000 tons so that unemployment may be reduced and more job created.

"The city is in ruins," Reuter said, "but the hearts of our people are not in ruins. Our goal is real freedom and real peace, for peace without freedom is impossible."

Negro's License Taken for Sale of White Area Homes

Atlanta, March 23 (AP).—Georgia today took away the license of a Negro real estate dealer who sold homes in a white neighborhood to Negroes.

The Negro, J. H. Calhoun, a member of the State Republican Committee, said he might hale the State into Federal Court on a charge of usurping his civil rights.

Both sides agreed it probably is the first attempt in the Nation to take away a real estate license on such grounds. They said the case should provide a United States Supreme Court test.

"It is my contention that white people have a right to sell their property to colored people and vice versa," Calhoun said in a statement today.

Earlier, Calhoun commented, "The colored people have to have somewhere to go. I don't know the answer. But somebody better do something about it."

The Georgia Real Estate Commission found Calhoun guilty of falsely assuring a Negro purchaser that she could move into a home without opposition.

The commission took up the case after open instructions from Gov. Herman Talmadge to revoke the license of dealers who sell white property to Negroes.

Sailors Ashore

The news from the Caribbean about the bad behavior of our sailors ashore is distressing. There has been a desecration of a national monument in Cuba, a riot in the Dominican Republic and lesser disturbances. All Americans are concerned over conduct which gives the United States a bad name in countries with which we are seeking to establish terms of good neighborliness. It is bound to dissipate goodwill; not only so, but to create illwill.

When an American boy joins one or other of the armed services, he is wrenched away from all the salutary influences of home and neighborhood. In a way he loses his sense of identity. In the Marines a new sense of identity is created, a sense that instills in the recruit a pride of association and a self-discipline. Tradition plays a part, but tradition has to be observed in daily behavior, and in this respect the officers are its custodians. How the same self-control can be reproduced in the Fleet is a problem for the naval authorities. Evidently there is need for example on the part of officers, as well as more discipline and indoctrination. Nor should it be forgotten that any pride that civilians may feel in their boys in uniform is bound to be reflected in self-pride.

The job is undeniably difficult, but cannot be shirked because of its difficulty. Naval missions are now world-wide; the United States is situated on the summit of the earth and its influence is measured by individual behavior as well as by official conduct. "I am an American citizen" is an assertion that in these days should be made with modesty and responsibility as well as with pride. When it is asserted bumptiously and boisterously, without any consideration for others, the reputation of the United States is sullied. Those of us who go abroad, civilians and servicemen, joy riding legislators and tourists, are as much representatives of our country as officials are.

Subsiding Fever

We are grateful for Major Barrett's assurance that he does not contemplate any wholesale arrests of citizens who have a taste for joining pyramid clubs and for his promise that those who are of recognized social standing need have no fear of search warrants, nocturnal raiding parties, patrol wagon rides, newspaper publicity, and all that sort of thing. But the apparent determination of Mr. Fay to prosecute the test case against Mr. Daniel Thomas, leaves us a little bewildered, as we dare say it also leaves our readers.

On general principles, however, we are inclined to advise those who are considering membership in a pyramid club as a device for escaping from the boredom of life in this Capital, or as a pretext for conviviality, or as a means of getting acquainted with worthwhile people, to take up existentialism, or group study courses in the hundred best books, or folk dancing, or amateur theatricals, or something of that sort. After careful study of the latest population reports for the District of Columbia, we are satisfied that the pyramid clubs are nearing their end. In other words, when the point is reached where everybody is a member of a pyramid club it will be no longer possible to have any pyramid clubs.

This sounds like a paradox, but it's perfectly true. We cannot explain precisely how the principle works, because that would be advertising a lottery and would make us liable to prosecution under Title 22, Section 151, of the Criminal Code of the District of Columbia and probably also under the Postal Regulations of the United States. But if you will buy yourself a book of logarithms or borrow a slide rule from a neighbor, you will readily see what we are driving at. And this is why we think Mr. Fay would have done well to have allowed this curious frenzy to run its course.

Of course, we can understand why the telephone company should have been annoyed when it discovered that so many of its wires were being tied up for hours by enthusiasts running through the directory from Aabel to Zyvoloski in the quest for new members, and why section chiefs of the civil service should have been upset by the discovery that their employes were spending so much time in the solicitation of acquaintances to the neglect of the business of the United States. But both these organizations, it seems to us, have experts who could have advised them that such popular nuisances cease after a time to be really popular and thus to be nuisances.

Finally, there is this thought: Gambling, like thrift, is a manifestation of the acquisitive instinct. Gambling is thus very likely to thrive where the incentives to thrift have been removed. The social groups which have historically been least addicted to the vice of gambling are the middle classes. Perhaps it is not surprising that the modern liquidation of the middle classes through various forms of confiscatory taxation should be accompanied by the liquidation of the typically bourgeois moralities.

Unified Resources

How to straighten the tangled lines of authority over the use and protection of natural resources is one of the most complex problems of modern government. The Hoover Commission, in its report on the Department of the Interior, proposes logical correctives for some of the more glaring inconsistencies. For example, it would give Interior clear responsibility for all water development functions, thus ending the conflict with the Army Engineers. Where the commission falls down, in our opinion, is in its failure to recognize affirmatively that land and water resources are indivisible.

This is a principle upheld both by the task force and by the three dissenting commission members headed by Dean Acheson. They recommend the establishment of a Department of Natural Resources with policy control over water and mineral resources as well as over the land resources which the full commission suggests be placed under the Department of Agriculture. The proposal for a separate department concerned with the management of resources, as opposed to mere conservation or service, takes into account the close interrelation of agencies dealing with these resources. For example, the protection of forests and grazing lands has a direct bearing on flood control and irrigation. No amount of grouping of agencies according to function can resolve conflicts over land and water development unless there is some agency for enforcing a unified policy. The only such agency suggested by the full commission is drainage area advisory commissions, which would have a coordinating purpose. "Coordinate," in our lexicon, too often is synonymous with "stalemate."

The commission's report cites many examples of waste because of inadequate estimates and overlapping, and its reasons for divesting the Army Engineers of their incongruous civil functions are compelling. Surely also there is need to reconcile the narrow purpose of flood control with the broader purpose of water resource development, including production of cheap electric power. Likewise there is good sense in the departmental reorganization suggested by the commission, though we have some reservations about the savings to be had from concentrating responsibility for public building, hospital and airport construction in Interior. It does not necessarily follow that because hospitals and airports are grouped under the general heading of construction the problems involved are similar, or that such projects should be divorced from the agencies which have program responsibility.

Natural resources, however, do lend themselves to unified treatment, at least from the policy standpoint. This does not mean that unity can be attained merely by dumping all resource agencies into one giant hopper. Many conflicting interests are involved in the development and use of resources. Congress has recognized these interests by creating a host of individual bureaus, each concerned with a particular problem. These conflicts would still have to be reconciled, whatever the solution proposed. But the trouble is that, because of the wide dispersal of resource agencies, there now is no way of achieving agreement even on over-all purpose, with the result that the individual operations are chaotic and self-defeating.

The virtue of a department of natural resources is that it would concentrate resource agencies in one place. This would facilitate the growth of an integrated purpose; moreover, the department would have sufficient authority so that policy decisions, once reached, could be enforced without sabotage. Natural resources are too vital to the country's future livelihood to permit their continued expenditure through a chain of independent empires.

Straus Waltz

The Senators who have been gunning for Reclamation Commissioner Michael Straus have done the job up brown—or rather, red. They have used an unbeatable formula: if logical argument fails to disqualify a man, then question his loyalty. The stratagem worked as expected. The Senate Appropriations Committee has refused to restore the pay of Mr. Straus and of Richard L. Boke, the California regional reclamation director, on the basis of a newly discovered House Un-American Activities report regarding Mr. Straus' associations.

This neat piece of stiletto work must be viewed in the context of the long squabble over reclamation in California. Mr. Straus, as an advocate of public power and a champion of rigorous enforcement of the 160-acre limitation on reclamation lands, has made many enemies, including Senator Downey. After Senator Downey's bill to repeal the 160-acre limitation failed, the California legislator was instrumental in attaching to last year's Appropriation Act a rider providing that no funds could be used to pay the salary of high reclamation officials who did not have five years of engineering experience. Since last summer Messrs. Straus and Boke have been serving without pay.

This year the House recognized the crudity of such a bill of attainder under another name. When the House voted to eliminate the Straus-Boke rider, Senator McCarran went into action, assisted, presumably, by Senator Downey, and trotted out the report from the files of the former Thomas Committee.

Reportedly one of the accusations against Straus is that he was seen with suspicious characters in that den of subversion, the National Press Club. It is scarcely necessary to add that Mr. Straus has not seen the charges against him or had the benefit of hearings, or that he was fully cleared in the Federal loyalty investigation. Messrs. McCarran and Downey were not interested in such trivia. Instead they subtly tied the matter to the problem of whether the Administration should hand over FBI reports to Congress, and it is on this issue that Mr. Straus was crucified.

Local Option

The Senate's watered version of rent control is better than no law at all, but not very much better. After a good start in providing reasonable rent increases for landlords, the Senate turned around and riddled the bill with most of the local-option loopholes contrived by the House. Both Senate and House bills would permit municipalities as well as States to end rent controls.

Two saving clauses qualify the Fulbright amendment on local option. One would require municipalities to hold public hearings, with 10 days notice, before decontrol could be voted. The other would require approval of community action by the State Governor before it could take effect. On both of these counts the Senate bill is an improvement over the House measure, which places no restraint on local authority.

But even with its qualifications, the Fulbright amendment still opens the door to organized local pressures from property interests which individual tenants and city councils will find it hard to resist. It also hands city governments a political weapon with which to embarrass State Governors by throwing upon the latter the ultimate responsibility for decision. Moreover, the amendment makes possible anomalies between cities proper, where rents may be decontrolled, and outlying unincorporated areas which still might be subject to controls.

This newspaper has reiterated its belief that rent controls are in essence a stultifying influence which ought to be removed the moment conditions justify it. Returning controls to States which have applicable laws would be a move in this direction. But whatever the theoretical merit of local option, the practical effect may well be to make rent control a joke by setting up grossly unequal and spotty standards. One way for Congress to redeem itself for this dilution is to pass a meaningful housing bill that will lessen the acute rent pressure among low-income tenants.

China's "Friends"

Among the items in the day's news that will produce some melancholy reflections is the intimation that the spearhead of a new aid-to-Chiang movement in the Senate is the silverite Senator McCarran. Whether this is a form of expiation, we don't know, but the silverites ought to have China on their conscience, if they haven't. For it was their successful crusade in behalf of silver that irretrievably injured China in the '30's.

Silver used to be China's money standard, so that when, as part of the New Deal, this country started to buy silver, it boosted the price of China's money standard. From 30 cents an ounce it went up to $1.29, where the United States pegged it. This dear money raised the Chinese price of goods abroad, so that China could not purchase freely. It threw Chinese money policy, moreover, out of kilter. K. P. Chen, one of China's leading bankers and one of the most respected of China's elder statesmen, put the issue in this way:

> On account of this purchasing plan, not only was monetary stabilization denied China but the nightmare of civilization, the depression, came to fall upon China as its prey. The rise of the silver price brought in its wake, as far as China is concerned, falling prices, shrinkage of currency, destruction of industries and business, a greater deficit in the government's budget, and increasing chaos in society.

The consequence was that China was forced off the silver standard in order, as Mr. Chen put it, "to stabilize her currency and avoid national bankruptcy."

The McCarrans are the "friends" of China who now want to subsidize Chiang Kai-shek in order to keep up his hopeless fight with his opponents in China—Communists and others. The unfortunate Chinese people, who yearn only for peace, must be groaning, "O Lord, save us from our friends." All the help they ask for is to be left alone for a spell—after all the senseless interventions which have made them drink so much bitter tea.

Senator Graham

The State of North Carolina is to be congratulated on its new Senator-designate, President Frank L. Graham of the University of North Carolina. He will take the seat so briefly occupied by the late Senator J. Melville Broughton, whose term would have run to 1955. Dr. Graham's appointment, however, will last only until the next general election, in 1950.

Whether Dr. Graham will then run to succeed himself we do not know, and probably he does not either. That is a matter still in the future. The point to be made today is that Governor Scott has selected as the interim appointee a man who for a number of years has unofficially represented the State of North Carolina outside its borders. Indeed, for many years he has been a voice of the liberal forces of the entire South. He is a man without political ties who can look beyond narrow parochialism and serve his State, if only for a short time, by serving the broadest national interest.

To be sure, Dr. Graham is a joiner and a sponsor of many organizations, not all the members of which have been 100 per cent pure in their concern for freedom and democracy. This does not in any measure diminish our confidence in his own loyalty. Indeed, we think him a sounder spokesman for and a firmer supporter of real liberty than are his detractors.

Coalition Victory

Now that the filibuster has ended, it is well to note the most important results of this coalition victory, namely, the birth of a new party. The parties of Calhoun and Harding have fused and given birth to the "Republicrats."

In condemning the Southern wing of the "Republicrats" (they rightly deserve it), let us not overlook the Janus complex of the Northern wing whose votes demonstrated greater hypocrisy. The Southern "Republicrats" were not committed to the civil rights platform of the Democratic Party. The Northern "Republicrats" were committed to the civil rights platform of the Republican Party, but when the vote was taken, 23 members of the Northern wing joined with 23 members of the Southern wing to uphold the filibuster. Today it is neither Republican nor Democratic rule in Washington, for this is the victorious hour of the "Republicrats."

ROSCOE R. NIX.

The group which comes out of the current Senate filibuster with the least honor is the Republican minority. The 1948 Republican platform, and every past Republican platform for many years has expressed this party's support for civil rights legislation.

Yet the Eightieth Congress passed not one major civil rights bill. And now, when a splendid opportunity arises to clear the way for effective civil rights laws, almost all the Republican Senators help close the door on any progressive legislation in this field for at least two more years.

"Lobbying Engineers"

Your editorial, "Lobbying Engineers" which appeared in your paper March 8 is a masterpiece of propaganda, based on apparent misinformation.

You state that the civil functions of the Army Engineers bear little or no relation to the military establishment. The last war was an "engineers'" war. The Army, Navy, and Air Force based all their strategy on engineering structures such as roads, docks, airfields and bridges.

It wasn't the cantonment training of engineer soldiers which enabled us to fight our "engineers' war." It was the civilian army, well trained in the use of civilian tools, who became soldiers and plied their trade in war—in the Combat Engineers, Aviation Engineers, and the Seabees. They were officered by Regular and Reserve Engineer officers who knew their men and weapons from long association, and, more important, the men knew their officers.

This longtime mutual training was accomplished in large part on Army Engineer civil works projects. They had improved harbors, controlled rivers, and were an ever-ready emergency force to cope with any domestic disaster. Definitely, so long as we must be prepared for war, there is a close, vital relationship between the civil functions of the Army Engineers and the military establishment.

Second, you state, "An example is the Pick-Sloan plan in the Missouri Valley, where the Engineers and Reclamation Bureau are going their separate ways, with little attention to the valley's over-all resources or needs." All planning in the valley is done by the Interagency Committee, composed of Army Engineers, representatives of the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Governors of all the States of the valley.

Finally, the protests coming to Congress are not Army Engineers lobbying. They are sincere, spontaneous protests from people who know the good the Army Engineers have done and are doing.

Taxes And Deflation

Not so long ago the Truman Administration advocated increased income taxes to reduce the amount of spending money in our hands to curb competitive buying and to prevent any further inflation.

Now that the trend is reversed and spending money is not so plentiful, as is evidenced by the steadily declining sales of all types of retail stores, I wonder whether the Truman Administration will advocate reducing our enormously high income and other taxes to increase buying power to stimulate business and to prevent any further deflation?

Church On Birth Control

In his letter of March 16, H. M. Irwin, referring presumably to the Roman Catholic Church, says that it fights birth control with might and main because it considers it "the taking of life." Obviously this definition applies to abortion or murder.

Birth control, or the artificial prevention of conception, is the perversion of a natural function, and is therefore against the natural law. The church did not invent the natural law; it attemps, however, to protect it from violation.

Self-control or continence is the only lawful and honorable way to "space" offspring, and the church's position on this point is that parents may agree mutually to exercise this self-control periodically.

Therefore, it follows that the church condemns not the limiting of offspring, although a family is deserable, but rather the unnatural means of attaining this end.

War On The Pyramids

Lieutenant Blick's "war on the pyramids" makes the vice squad look more than a little silly. The numbers racket flourishes, organized prostitution is a social and health menace to the city, sex crimes are a major problem, Washington stands first in crimes involving assault—and the vice squad spends its time and the taxpayers' money investigating pyramids!

TAXPAYER.

Washington.

The pyramid club craze has only served to prove once more that there is a strong gambling streak in most of us. Common sense counsels, "Put it to good use."

The District is financially in a bad way. Why not kill two birds with one stone? It is time the District Commissioners seriously considered instituting an annual lottery modeled on the Irish sweepstakes and decided by our own classic Kentucky Derby.

Now that the powerful arm of the law has succeeded in killing the pyramid clubs—a setup which at its best gave some lonely folks a lot of fun, and at its worst, caused the loss of the grand sum of $1—perhaps the police will find time to do something about such minor items as the numbers racket and horse-race betting. In case the police haven't been so informed, it's almost as easy to buy a number as it was to become a member of that not-too-exclusive pyramid club.

WILLIAM LEVIN.

Washington.

So we have all been saved by these guardians of our liberties. No longer will we have to worry about getting two more members; or worry lest the two new members are unable to get two new members each; and what a relief it is to know that we will not have to go through the agony of waiting for the pay-off night. All this has been spared us by our righteous enforcement agents.

Of course, tomorrow we can go down to some stock broker's office and purchase some watered-down stock that might not be worth one-half what we paid for it on the next day, or we may even go to a bingo party for some church or charity group and lose just as easily, all because its rank heresy to call this gambling or lottery.

SNIKSAH.

Washington.

My suggestion is that a club be formed with every country in the world participating, the United Nations to be the ultimate winner and take and control all its "winnings"—forever. Each country would contribute its war potential—military men, armaments, etc.—to the pot. Think of the rejoicing, for example, that would result if our country and Russia were paired off to attend the same party and make their contributions simultaneously!

Now what do you suppose happened to his soul? We assure you he was so confident of his own virtue that to him even death and life hereafter held no element of chance!

"Pacifist Tax Revolt"

In reference to the editorial of March 16, "Pacifist Tax Revolt," I must admit that my thinking is "muddled," as you put it. It's muddled because I can't decide within my own conscience whether to pay my income taxes or not. So far, I have paid all my taxes, but perhaps that's only because they're taken away from me before I even see them.

I'm sure that I could sleep much better at night if I had the "straight" thinking which would allow me with a clear conscience to pay the two thirds or three fourths (or wherever you want to draw the line) of my income tax that goes for war.

Perhaps the Peacemakers, who don't pay that portion of their taxes which will be used for war, have found in their actions some small way of cleansing their own souls. Or perhaps they merely feel that this is a way of bringing to the attention of the public the fact that we are all contributing to the preparation for the next war.

Cold War Life Ahead

By Malvina Lindsay

U. S. Takes Stock

THROUGHOUT the war years we dreamed of it—the wonderful postwar world filled with tomorrow's gadgets and yesterday's carefree security. Now a widespread movement is on to prepare us for living in a cold war world that stretches, according to a recent guess of educational planners, into the adulthood of today's schoolchildren.

Recently 20 of the Nation's foremost educators, members of the Educational Policies Commission, met in Washington to draft policies for the education of children during the long period of international tension the future apparently holds. The commission will publish its recommendations early this summer.

Other national groups are holding discussions, planning programs to meet the coming years of tense, uncertain living. The slogan for the year of the Young Women's Christian Association, "Be Unafraid," exemplifies the trend of thinking.

These discussions on building the cold war citizen are concerned not with his relation to atom bomb shelters but with his mental and emotional defenses. In this they seek the democratic approach. No one of intelligence has come forward as yet with a blueprint saying "This is the exact way you must think and act in the cold war era."

ONE POINT generally stressed is that people must be given the information (including atomic) that will enable them to plan their own cold-war living. One college president, asked to give a concrete program for meeting the uncertainties ahead, put as his first recommendation—more information about public affairs in the hands of more people.

Here one difficulty lies in persuading people to turn from the give-away radio programs and Pyramid Clubs to read or listen to the information they need. Some believe the best solution lies in reaching their leaders of opinion with more facts and ideas that will stimulate thinking on international matters.

To that end, one New York woman, a public relations counselor, has launched in a small way at her own expense the dissemination of such information. This is one example of how persons alert to the Nation's greatest immediate need are trying with means at hand to do something about it.

Since fear fattens on the unknown, children likewise have to be taught the meaning of the ideological conflict that divides the world. Since this Government is not a dictatorship, this cannot be done by the simple method of telling them that a big bad wolf of a nation is gnashing its teeth at them and going to destroy them with atom bombs.

MORE and better education of all kinds is needed to develop citizens of poise and stamina for a tinder-box world. Better mental health also is an urgent need. For in a time of tension a nation can have no greater liability than emotionally immature people who precipitate crises and who lose their heads when the crises come. Verbal warmongering, common to the uninformed and chauvinistic, is said to have often a psychotic basis.

This armed-truce world is a hard dose for happy-go-lucky Americans to take. It is the first time in their history they have had to face after a war the harsh reality that there was no foreseeable return to what they regard as yesterday's peace and yesterday's "normal" living.

This is a psychic shock for many persons. It could even cause further deterioration of the Nation's mental health. It also comes at a time when people are jittery over widespread social and economic change and when even the Atlantic Ocean has failed the isolationists. And to many neither the church nor the family are the citadels of refuge they once were.

Yet one present strength of Americans is that they are generally beginning to accept the facts they face and are not deluding themselves about the future as they have so often in the past. Kindergarten preparation for cold-war living begins with recognition that the present uncertain state of the world may continue 5, 10, 15 years or longer and that man must fit himself and his children to live in it as alertly and self-reliantly as his pioneer forbears did in the wilderness.

Is The Atlantic Pact Spread Too Thin?

From The Economist Of London

ALL OVER western Europe there should be heard a sigh of relief that the draft of the North Atlantic Pact is now published, offered for a fortnight's debate, and ready for signing on April 4 in Washington.

The relief should be audible but it may not be. For the shield that America and Canada are offering to western Europe has lost some of its sheen from the hot breath of debate that has beaten on it already. And some of the expectancy and anxiety with which the offer was awaited have already been dispersed by the diplomatic trial of strength between the West and Russia which took place earlier than this month.

Norway, under direct pressure from Moscow, turned to Washington, asked what protection the pact would, in fact, give, was satisfied with what it heard, and rejected in firm and confident fashion the nonaggression pact offered by its angry and nervous neighbor. That was proof in advance of publication that the pact would have teeth in it. That was, as it were, the dress rehearsal for the pact's launching; and Americans should not feel disappointed if the public ceremony creates the less interest and confidence than the private. The power of the pact having been proved already, there will be more disposition to discuss it freely.

In other words, there will run beneath the chorus of praise and gratitude a steady current of criticism which cannot be ignored. In one respect this will be unfortunate, for it will suggest ingratitude where deep appreciation is due and felt.

What has been undertaken by the United States—and Canada—in this pact is far in advance of anything that could have been hoped for three years ago. In 10 years America has passed from neutrality and nonintervention in the peacetime affairs of Europe to determined and generous intervention.

The balance of power in the Old World is being restored faster than anyone dared hope. The American response to the Soviet-Communist challenge has been swift, imaginative and bold. Whatever causes might lead to war—and The Economist has never believed that Mr. Stalin wanted anything beyond a cold war—uncertainty about America's interest in western Europe can no longer be numbered among them.

IN THE fortnight that must pass before the North Atlantic Pact is signed, and in the months that must pass before all signatures to it have been ratified, discussion is likely to fasten on three points.

First, it will be asked whether the pact has not been diluted by being extended to cover too many countries and too wide an area. Second, it will be suggested that it insures western Europe's liberation from an invader but does not guarantee it against invasion. And third, it will be argued that by forming such a grand alliance, the North Atlantic countries may provoke the Soviet Union into the very transition from cold to real war which it is the purpose of the pact to prevent.

In its present form the pact brings together as foundation members of the North Atlantic club the United States and Canada on the one hand, and Britain, France, the Benelux countries and Norway on the other. They form the committee, as it were, of the club. They have framed the rules and they issue the invitations to join. They have formed the club because they are old associates; they are not associates because they have formed the club. Apart from Norway, which has earned its place by its independent and courageous attitude, this group of eight comprises countries already closely knit together by political ties and defense arrangements. It represents a merging of the Brussels Pact of two years ago into a wider instrument. Politically and strategically it is compact and stable, even when allowance is made for the strength of the Communist Party in France.

It would appear obvious that the political and military effort imposed by the new pact should be concentrated in this group, for the sake of efficiency as well as of speed. Yet they have already invited Denmark, Iceland, Italy and Portugal to join them; and there is a suggestion that something must be done, too, for Greece and Turkey and perhaps for countries even farther east.

THE PRINCIPLE behind these invitations is clear. If it is desired to deter an aggressor by making it clear in what countries America deems itself to have a vital interest, then it is as necessary to warn him off Turkey and Persia as it is to warn him off Norway and France. Logically, there is no reason why the warning should not cover the Indian Ocean and the whole of the eastern Mediterranean.

Practically, however, such an extension would be wasteful and dangerous. There is a limit to the number of countries whose forces can be efficiently integrated; there is a limit too—and a tighter one than may be generally believed—to the military supplies which America can quickly send to its allies. Above all, the dispersal of American resources is the wrong answer to the concentration of Russian strength.

Why not, therefore, maintain in principle a distinction which must exist in fact: between countries which can contribute to the pact something to offset the liability they create by joining it, and those whose membership represents an addition to the obligations of the group without any corresponding addition to its strength?

It is difficult to see, for example, what Italy can contribute to the pact: if it is to be protected against attack from outside, its geographical position opposite the Balkans, its strong Communist Party (recently pledged to act as a fifth column) and its small armed forces, limited by a treaty to which Russia is a party—all these amount to pure liability. Portugal has already refused the only contribution it can make, the use of bases in peacetime.

Yet the pact is not one in which America does all the giving and the other signatories all the receiving of gifts. It is an agreement, as Article 3 insists, for "effective self-help and mutual aid."

This should be the test. There should be one list of members (substantially complete already) who can meet the test (including the word "effective") without the need for polite equivocation, and another list of countries, including western Germany, whose territories are guaranteed by all the members of the Atlantic alliance, but who are not—for the present, at least—invited into the inner counsels of the alliance. It should not be too late to make this distinction between the inner and outer circle which is bound to arise in practice.

THE ARGUMENT against any dispersal of the available military forces and supplies is too strong to be ignored, and it leads to the heart of the second criticism of the pact that is likely to be heard. It is the point of view which is met most frequently in France and Belgium. The argument runs thus: By security, western Europe understands adequate protection against invasion, not the promise of eventual liberation. If that protection cannot be given, it would prefer the risks of attempted neutrality to the risk of provoking invasion by accepting an American guarantee similar to that given to Poland by Britain in 1939.

This is not merely the argument of defeatists; it is the point of view of many brave and intelligent men and women west of the Rhine and of thousands who would cease voting Communist if they believed their future was secure. Unless the North Atlantic Pact offers them some satisfaction, it will not do what Mr. Acheson says he wants it to do—"contribute to economic recovery and stability in Europe by reducing the sense of insecurity."

Clearly the need cannot be met in the way that France tried to meet the threat of resurgent Germany between the wars by lavishing men and materials on some static Maginot line. What is more, western Europe can afford no such solution if it is to achieve economic recovery. The basic American idea is right: to provide the maximum deterrent by collective action, to discourage local aggression by the threat of world war, and to disarm the Communists by achieving economic as well as military security.

This is the strategy of cold war, not the strategy of generals of infantry and artillery. But even cold war needs forces in reserve—just in case; the Communist cold war has owed much of its success to the fact that the Red army stands 600 miles west of the Soviet frontier. The Western cold war too needs the presence in Europe of the troops of a great power—American troops or troops under American command; and the question is whether the pact makes such a contribution more likely.

SOME COMFORT can be derived from the fact that the pact provides for the immediate forming of a military committee of its members. This means presumably two things: that the long-standing machinery of the American and British chiefs of staff, and the newly built machinery of the Brussels Pact organization will be brought together. And that, in turn, implies that America will give priority for arms and supplies to the integrated forces which are already being planned by Lord Montgomery's staff.

That should insure, if the British and French Defense Ministers do their job properly, that there will be available in western Europe a hard core of ground and air forces around which American contributions can be gathered. But what those American contributions are likely to be is still unknown; and it is on this uncertainty that continental critics will fasten.

On this point therefore—the size of western Europe's garrison—the Atlantic Pact can give only limited fresh hope. The most that can be said is that more can be done with it than without it. The demand that American and British divisions—not battalions—should be seen training in western Europe will persist.

It will also be complained that the North Atlantic Pact will provoke Russia to pass from cold war to the real thing—this is the third line of criticism to be expected. To men who believe as Stalin once did—and probably still does—that conflict between socialism and capitalism is sooner or later inevitable, American policy will seem aggressive, pact or no pact. And to men who believe that it is their mission in life to push the West along the predestined path of disintegration and collapse, the pact must seem a serious act of defiance.

All that can be said to make its defensive purpose clear to such men has been said. It is the avowed purpose of the pact to do no more than provide through collective effort the defensive strength which the Western countries could provide on their own only at the risk of economic collapse. The North Atlantic Council will be planning to avoid war, not to prepare for it.

Little, in fact, will be changed when the pact is signed on April 4. To those in the West who doubted America's sincerity and determination the significant point of the key paragraph—article 5—will be the qualified undertaking to take "such action as it deems necessary, including the use of armed force, to restore and maintain the security of the North Atlantic area."

To those in the West who had no such doubts, the clause simply makes explicit a constitutional difficulty which they had taken for granted. To those in the East who doubted whether Mr. Marshall—and now Mr. Acheson—had public opinion behind him, the answer has been given in black and white. Hitler had in 1939 the certainty—in the black and white of the neutrality acts—that America would not intervene if he went to war. Mr. Stalin in 1949 has the certainty of the exact opposite.

ECA Studies Refugee Jobs

Frankfurt, Germany, March 23 (AP).—The Economic Cooperation Administration is studying the possibility of a gigantic public works program to provide jobs for western Germany's 10 million restive refugees.

ECA officials here said this mass of refugees represents a "politically dangerous" element that is contributing to the rise of nationalism in Germany.

Refugees in increasing numbers are slipping across from the Russian zone. Some estimates place the numbers as high as 50,000 a month.

Most of the refugees were expelled from the Sudetenland in Czechoslovakia, from parts of eastern Germany now claimed by Poland and from other eastern European states.

They are not eligible for United Nations care, and under U. S. military government policy they are the responsibility of the German authorities.

The Germans say they lack the resources to care for them. Forty-five per cent of the popplation of the British zone State of Schleswig-Holstein are refugees. There are 2,250,000 in the American zone state of Bavaria.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Propaganda And The Nation's Health

THE MOST effective propaganda is to make use over and over again of a few scare words. Hitler knew that. So do the Russians who scream "imperialist warmonger" a thousand times a day.

Childs

So, too, do the propagandists in this country who incessantly attack the program of social reform on which President Truman campaigned last fall. The scare word they use is "socialized."

The attack is concentrated with particular fury on the proposed Federal health insurance system. Certainly, that system proposes a radical innovation to raise present standards of health which are too low for a country with the wealth and the resources of the United States.

Whether it would actually raise those standards is, in my opinion, highly doubtful. My doubts of a Federal health insurance system are chiefly on two points:

1. The excessive cost of the bureaucratic apparatus necessary to administer such a system on a Nation-wide basis. Allied to this is the question of medical standards under an act that would almost surely make concessions to administration by the separate States.

2. The net effect of a Federal health insurance system might well be merely to spread even thinner the existing facilities for medical care. The problem is to increase facilities rather than to disperse what already exists.

BUT THOSE who attack health insurance with the word "socialized" are even more vulnerable than the proponents of the system. They talk as though defeat of the Federal proposal were an end in itself. Behind much of what they say is the implication that we can let well enough alone. That is the tone of many of the letters that have come to me in response to a previous column on this issue.

This is not, to be sure, the view of those who have looked at the facts with some objectivity. There are glaring weaknesses in health standards, in hospitalization and in medical care in this country.

One thing the Federal proposal has done is to stir widespread discussion of health and medical care. In my opinion if it had done nothing else it would have been enormously worth while. Complacency and smugness cannot be tolerated if the American system is to meet the challenge of communism.

Two stimulating and provocative proposals have been put forward in place of the Federal insurance system. One comes from Dr. Paul B. Magnuson, in charge of medical care in the Veterans Administration. Dr. Magnuson says:

"As a professional medical man, I am distressed to hear the emotional arguments used by those, on the one hand, who favor compulsory health insurance and by those, on the other hand, who blindly oppose every proposal to meet the problem of national medical care. It seems to me that the proponents of both extremes miss the point—the heart of the problem is the lack of diagnostic and public health facilities."

DR. MAGNUSON proposes diagnostic clinics accessible to all the population, equipped with the most modern facilities for complete health examinations and staffed with the highest type medical and professional personnel available. Financial support would come from the Federal Government, State and local governments, and private contributions.

The second proposal comes from Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who agrees with Dr. Magnuson that one of the chief problems to be solved is protection for low and middle-income families who often find themselves ruined by a long illness. In a speech in Pittsburgh, Senator Taft advanced a four-point program calling for a wide range of Federal assistance to raise standards of medical care.

Senator Taft gets at a basic weakness—the shortage of doctors—in his recommendation that the Federal Government subsidize medical students or medical schools, or both. To remedy the acute shortage in rural areas he suggests a Federal subsidy to the States which would in turn underwrite medical care in poor districts.

In all this discussion is the base for concrete, constructive action that cannot be considered as violating American principles. The time for such action is overdue.

The danger is that the propagandists will so becloud and confuse the whole question as to produce stalemate and a futile sense that nothing can be done. That is the strategy of those who would block any social change whatsoever. In a democracy that is a dangerous strategy.

World Wheat Pact Is Signed by 30 Nations

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A world wheat agreement guaranteeing five wheat-growing nations an export market for 456 million bushels of wheat a year for four years was signed by 30 nations yesterday. Twelve others that have agreed to the terms are still to sign.

Not participating were the following eastern European countries that took part in all the two-month negotiations:

Russia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Poland and Yugoslavia.

In addition, the following nations were not listed as parties to the pact: Afghanistan, Argentina, Chile, Costa Rica, Ethiopia, Iran, Luxembourg, Pakistan, Syria and Turkey.

Soviet Demand Rejected

Russia attended all sessions of the conference except the official signing yesterday. She withdrew her delegate, however, and he remained as an observer, when her demand for a quota of 75 million bushels in the world market was denied by the other exporters. Argentina, also an exporter, withdrew her delegate earlier.

The exporters and the amount of wheat they contract to deliver annually are:

Australia, 80 million bushels; Canada, 203 million; France, 3 1-3 million; United States, 168 million, and Uruguay, almost two million.

The countries agreeing to buy are Austria, Belgium, Bolivia*, Brazil*, Ceylon, China, Colombia, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador*, Egypt, El Salvador, Greece, Guatemala, India, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Lebanon, Liberia, Mexico*, Netherlands, New Zealand*, Nicaragua, Norway*, Panama*, Paraguay*, Peru*, Philippines, Portugal, Saudi Arabia, Sweden*, Switzerland*, Union of South Africa, United Kingdom and Venezuela*.

(Those followed by asterisks have not yet signed).

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan, who presided at the signing, told newsmen the agreement now rests with the State Department. Whether it will be proposed to the Senate as a treaty or to both houses for passage as a joint resolution must still be determined.

President Truman included a request for an appropriation of about 54 million dollars in his budget message to cover losses that might be incurred in the agreement. The price this country may get for its exports under the agreement will be less than what the Government must pay for the wheat it delivers.

Brannan Optimistic

The agreement is not as favorable to the United States as the one signed a year ago, which Congress failed to accept. However, Brannan expressed optimism that the agreement will be ratified.

The agreement, officially reached to "overcome the serious hardship caused to producers and consumers of burdensome surpluses and critical shortages of wheat" provides:

1. Four years' duration, with a maximum price of $1.80 a bushel; and a minimum of $1.50 the first year; $1.40 the second; $1.30 the third and $1.20 the fourth. Transaction outside the amounts subscribed in the agreement will be entirely free.

2. A new international wheat council will be formed, consisting of representatives of all the signatory nations. It will meet in July to select its temporary location.

3. Already existing agreements for wheat deals will be absorbed into the agreement.

4. Countries taking part must sign agreement before April 15.

5. The agreement will not be binding unless ratified by governments of nations exporting 80 per cent of the 456 million bushels provided in the contract, and by governments of countries buying not less than 70 per cent of that total.

The signing yesterday by Ludwig Samuel, the delegate for Israel, was the first signing of an international agreement by that newly formed government.

A working party of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization is now studying similar international agreements in such commodities as cotton, coarse grains (corn, oats, etc.), soybeans and other oil seeds, and other products.

Pension Bill Loaded With Amendments

plus an additional sum equal to $1 per each month or fraction thereof served during any period of open hostilities; plus an additional further sum equal to $3 for each month or fraction thereof served in an actual theater of war, as such theater of war may be defined by the Secretary of Defense."

Since our World War I hostilities lasted less than two years, to nearly four for World War II, veterans of the first conflict would clearly receive less, although most members did not realize it until after the vote.

Jacobs said he had no estimates of how much it would cost. He argued that the bill should go back to committee to work out a formula "based on service." Any other pension basis, he said, would be a case of "just plain buying votes."

The House had hardly convened before it voted down, 162 to 3, the Huber substitute, which was supposed to have leadership support.

This would have barred World War II veterans, made payments to only needy veterans of World War I, and provided a sliding scale of nonservice-connected benefits.

Later the House defeated 121 to 65 another amendment, by Representative Kearney (D., N. Y.) to drop pensions for World War II veterans.

But it approved a "needs clause" similar to the one in the rejected Huber bill. Sponsored by Representative Rogers (D., Fla.) this would confine pensions to single veterans having incomes up to $2000 at age 65 and to veterans with dependents whose other income did not exceed $3000 a year.

Pleas for recommittal of the bill came from the Republican as well as the Democratic side as the amendment barrage continued.

Representative Javits (R., N. Y.) told the House he had made up his mind after a sleepless night to vote against the measure.

"If we are taken in by this we don't deserve to be trusted with the destinies of America, much less those of the world," Javits said.

Representative J. Leroy Johnson (R., Calif.) said the costs were "so colossal it would be utterly impossible to meet them" and the Nation's other obligations.

Representative Potter (R., Mich.) a legless World War II veteran, said the bill doesn't do credit to the committee, the veteran or Congress.

During another attack on the bill by Representative Tackett (D., Ark.), Rankin told Tackett he was "confused."

"I'm not as confused as you think I am," replied the Arkansas freshman. "You watch how I vote."

Representative Halleck (R., Ind.) charged much of the "confusion" on the floor was inspired by efforts of opponents to "sabotage" the bill. Boos mixed with cheers followed his speech.

Chiding the Democratic leadership, Representative Keefe (R., Wis.) said that if Mr. Truman called the Eightieth Congress the "second worst" he must have been reserving thetitl e of "worst" for the Eighty-first.

Senate Passes Rent Measure

—but not the second on April 1, 1950.

The House bill does not provide for such rent increases, but does require that the landlord get a "fair return" on his investment.

Here are other main provisions of the Senate bill:

1. Areas which have been freed of rent controls could be recontrolled if the local advisory board recommended such a step.

2. Residential hotel apartments in New York and Chicago would be recontrolled and the rents rolled back to the level of October 31, 1948. Hotel apartments in all other cities remain decontrolled.

3. Trailer camps used for permanent residence would be recontrolled when the local board recommended it. So would dwellings which were off the market for two years prior to June 30, 1947. Those units were freed of controls under the 1947 rent law.

4. The housing expediter is authorized to sue for treble damages in cases of rent overcharges by landlords. Under the present law only the tenant can sue.

Administration leaders won and lost—both by whooping majorities—on two major issues in the Senate battle over controls.

They won:

By 64 to 22—the Senate beat down a Republican-sponsored move to cut down the proposed 12-to-15-month extension of Federal rent controls to 6-to-12 months.

They lost:

By 75 to 10—the Senate then rejected an attempt by Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) to write a flat two-year extension into the bill. President Truman had asked for two more years of rent control.

Cain-Bricker Proposal

The proposal to whittle the extension period was sponsored by Republican Senators Bricker (Ohio) and Cain (Wash.). It called for a six-month extension now, with another six months of protection for tenants who want it.

Defeat of the amendment kept in the bill a provision for 12 more months of controls, plus three extra months for tenants who want continued Federal protection thereafter.

During the last three months, tenants could not be evicted merely for refusing to pay higher rent. Thus, in effect, rent ceilings would remain in force for 15 months.

Earlier, Administration Democrats had squeezed out a tight victory on a provision giving the Federal Housing Expediter the power to regulate evictions under rent control.

On this, the vote was 44 to 42.

Truman Democrats won after a feverish scramble for votes, with both sides trying to rush in last-minute tallies.

Next the Senate scuttled an amendment by Senator Capehart (R., Ind.).

It would have progressively decontrolled rents, starting next September 30. Units renting for $150 a month or more would have been decontrolled first, with the last controls taken off June 30, 1950. The vote was 62 to 18.

U. S. Workers' Union Sued by Ex-President

David R. Glass, 69, of 1436 Meridian pl. nw., filed suit yesterday in District Court for $3500 claimed as due him for back salary from the American Federation of Government Employes.

Glass said that he was the first president of the AFGE, and that in 1939, its national convention gave him $100 a month for indefinite leave from a post as adviser to the AFGE president.

Since March, 1946, the AFGE has discontinued payments to him, according to the suit filed through attorneys William A. Gallagher and Frank J. Kelly. The AFGE and James G. Yaden, president, are named defendants.

Move Develops to Cut ECA Aid

participants have already reached prewar production levels.

On the Democratic side of the Senate, Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) was reported to feel that four billion dollars in aid authority—instead of the $5,580,000,000—would suffice.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee has reported out a bill to provide $5,380,000,000 in outlays for the same period, plus 272 million dollars in added guarantees for investments in Europe by American businessmen — which does not require a current appropriation.

Thus, committee members say, while their bill may appear to offer 200 million dollars less than the Senate bill, in over all authority it provides 72 million dollars more.

The committe cut 50 million dollars off the three-month interim figure of $1,150,000,000 and eliminated the specific listing for 150 million dollars in long-term contract guarantees.

A text of the amended House bill, available yesterday for the first time, showed that while it was first announced that the bill provides no long-term contract authority, authority for the same purpose now is offered indirectly in another manner.

A section added to the $272,000,000 provision for public debt authority to guarantee approved American investments abroad will also permit the ECA administrator to use the same authority to guarantee convertibility of funds on long-term contracts.

Another feature of the House bill is approval of a one-billion-dollar advance from the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to finance the program after April 3 and until Congressional funds are appropriated. ECA originally sought $750,000,000 for this purpose, which the Senate approved.

Suit for $5000 Against Hillbilly Singer Dismissed

There were no tears—but possibly a few regrets—in Arlington circuit courtroom yesterday as a $5000 breach-of-contract suit against hillbilly singer Clyde Moody rejected.

Plaintiff Johnny Carriger, 101 Harvard st., Alexandria, told Judge Walter T. McCarthy that Moody had verbally agreed to plug and sell his song, "Tears but No Regrets."

But after supplying his picture for the front cover of the ballad, Carriger complained, Moody reneged on the agreement. The singer warbles for hillbilly impresario Connie B. Gay over station WARL.

In court yesterday, Moody explained he had allowed use of his picture only to help Carriger—and to get a little publicity. He said he never had agreed to sell or plug the song.

In fact, he added: "I've never heard it—I can't read music."

Cuts Planned In Funds for Flood Control

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday recommended a deep cut in Army Engineers' funds for river and harbor and flood control work.

It said construction costs should be lower during the year starting next July 1.

So it sent to the House floor for debate today a $586,762,000 bill to finance so-called civil functions of the Army. It is $180,971,220 below President Truman's budget requests and $1,361,813,666 less than the engineers got for the present year.

The big slash from this year's total resulted mainly from a decision to finance Government and relief in occupied overseas areas in a separate bill. The tab for that during the current fiscal year—when it was part of the civil functions measure—was $1,300,000,000.

Even so, the cut from the amount Mr. Truman has asked totaled almost 24 per cent.

The committee leveled a 15 per cent cut against all construction programs, explaining that the original cost estimates were prepared months ago and did not allow for declines in construction costs which began to take effect last October.

"It seems most likely," the committee said, "that a downward trend will continue and become more pronounced during the fiscal year 1950 (starting July 1, 1949). The availability of building materials generally has increased relative to the aggregate of demand for such materials . . .

"The decline in manpower scarcity may be expected to result in less personnel turnover, less overtime payments, higher production per man-hour, and accompanying lower unit costs, even though hourly wage rates are not reduced.

"Greater competition between contractors should produce close estimates by bidders, minimum overhead computations, and attendant reductions in bids."

The committee said it has "no assurance" that construction costs will decline by 15 per cent. If they don't, it added, the committee will be ready to recommend additional funds to carry out the construction program contemplated by the President.

The committee did not apply the 15 per cent construction cut equally to each project. It simply cut the total fund by that amount.

In some cases, committee members said, projects may be finished for as much as 25 per cent below original estimates.

In addition to the cut in construction funds, the committee knocked out completely some projects and deducted for money it expected to see left over from this year's appropriation.

By major projects, here is what the bill contains, with budget requests in parentheses:

Cemeterial expenses, $4,500,000 ($5,620,000); Alaska communications system, $3,000,000 ($3,114,000); rivers and harbors maintenance and construction, $176,000,000 ($231,152,620); general flood control, $321,000,000 $430,937,600); flood control work on the Mississippi River and its tributaries, $57,000,000 ($70,000,000); flood control work on the Sacramento River, $3,500,000 $4,000,000); Panama Canal, $21,250,000 ($22,347,000).

U. S. Withdrawing Warsaw Attache On Poles' Demand

On Poland's demand, the United States agreed yesterday to withdraw Chester H. Opal as an attache of the American embassy in Warsaw.

Poland demanded Opal's recall because a wireless bulletin issued by the United States Information Service in Warsaw referred to Poland as a "Soviet satellite."

George V. Allen, Assistant Secretary of State, noted in a statement that the bulletin also reported a speech at Lake Success, N. Y., by the Polish delegate to the United Nations, Katz Suchy.

Allen called the speech "an immoderately worded denunciation of Point 4 in the President's inaugural address by a duly accredited representative of the Polish government."

Allen's statement added:

"This kind of fair and unprejudiced reporting is not to be found in the controlled press of Poland."

Glass Eye Explodes, Hurts Wearer Slightly

Boston, March 23 (U.P.).—The Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary reported today the explosion of a patient's glass eye.

The patient, who had been equipped with the glass eye for 24 years, was injured slightly. Doctors said "constant erosion" caused the explosion.

Particles of glass were removed from the patient's eye socket and today he was equipped with another glass eye.

Fight Flares Again On U. of Md. Budget

With Tax Hike

$3,304,795 Budget Asked In Fairfax

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., March 23.—The protracted fight in the House of Delegates over University of Maryland budget policies flared up again today and a third assault against University President H. C. (Curley) Byrd was beaten down.

One delegate, weary from the drawn-out, time-consuming battle, inquired of House members: "How many times do we have to kill a bill down here?" He was Delegate Chester W. Tawney (D., Balto.).

At the same time, Senators were giving tentative approval to Governor Lane's budget recommendations for 1949-50, which total more than 134 million dollars.

The controversy over whether President Byrd should submit detailed or lump-sum university budgets to the Legislature hit the House floor today in the form of an unfavorable House Ways and Means Committee report on a bill similar to one that has been twice defeated.

Killed by the House today was a bill introduced by Delegate Henry L. Warren (D., Baltimore County), which would have required detailed budgetary requests from the university. At present, Dr. Byrd submits only lump-sum budget figures.

The pending measure, sponsored by Delegate Jerome Robinson (D., Balto.) would make it mandatory for all State institutions to submit detailed budgets to the legislators.

Referring scathingly to what he termed "cheap publicity," Delegate Tawney labeled the fight as "merely an argument between two universities — Maryland University and Johns Hopkins."

The dispute, he asserted, was started by the Baltimore Sun papers, which editorialized in a series of articles against present budget practices of the university.

The argument was precipitated when Delegate Warren moved to substitute his bill for the unfavorable committee report. The motion was knocked down by a 61-50 vote and the unfavorable report was then adopted by a voice vote.

Governor Lane's record 134-million-dollar working budget, meanwhile, emerged unscathed from its first test in the Senate, but his construction plan bumped into a temporary roadblock.

Senator Dulin (D., Anne Arundel) asked the Senate to delay action on the administration's $16,373,000 construction bond issue so he could draft an amendment wiping out a $250,000 outlay for the proposed bayside park at Sandy Point.

A proposed Fairfax County budget which calls for spending $3,304,795.62 in the fiscal year starting July 1 and increasing the tax rate 10 cents was made public yesterday by the county supervisors.

A public hearing will be held on the proposed budget at the courthouse at 10 a. m. April 25. The supervisors must adopt it in final form before May 1.

On paper the proposed expenditure budget is only half of the current year's $6,432,586 figure. But this year's budget included nearly four million dollars in loans fro mthe State for school construction which never developed.

Without this item, the proposed budget tops the present year's spending by more than $500,000.

The present tax rate upon real estate and personal property is $3.19 per $100 assessed valuation.

Apartment License Tax Increase Proposed

The Arlington County Civic Federation has proposed an increase in license taxes on apartment owners from 15 cents to $1.50 per $100 of gross receipts to bring the county $200,000 additional revenue.

The federation proposed also that apartment owners be allowed to pass such an increase to tenants through higher rents.

The federation made its proposals after revealing a survey it said it had made which showed apartment dwellers do not pay enough taxes.

The study, the federation claimed, compared real estate tax bills for nine apartment developments and seven individual houses in seven different blocks.

It was made to see if apartment dwellers pay equitably in voting for big capital expenditures, the federation said.

Prince Georges Held Facing Higher Taxes

By a Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., March 23—Increased taxes loom in Prince Georges County unless more State aid for county school construction is forthcming, Chairman Perry O. Wilkinson of the Prince Georges legislative delegation said here today.

"If we had to take care of schools without additional aid, the tax rate would go up anywhere from 24 to 30 cents," he said.

The present tax rate is $1.97 per $100 assessed valuation. The prediction was made by Wilkinson after a conference between the delegation and the county commissioners on 1949-50 county budget needs.

"We are fighting hard for the bill to quadruple the school incentive fund," Wilkinson declared, "and if that goes through the county can stand a seven-million-dollar bond issue without raising the tax rate."

Bills introduced in the House by the Montgomery delegation would:

Eliminate discounts for early payment of taxes in Takoma Park and set up a new method for levying and collecting taxes in the town.

Repeal an unnecessary section of the Montgomery and Prince Georges County local laws relating to taxation in Takoma Park.

Authorize Takoma Park to set up storm water drainage districts within the city and assess taxes to cover the cost of storm drains.

Provide a method of electing a mayor and a seven-man council of Takoma Park.

To require the boards of elections supervisors of Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties to certify lists of registered voters within Takoma Park.

Provide a special tax levy of 10 cents per $100 of assessable property in the Burtonsville area of Montgomery County, with proceeds to go to the Burtonsville Volunteer Fire Department.

Authorize the Montgomery County Council to adopt or install hospitalization and group life and health insurance plans for county employes.

Eliminate an obsolete provision of Montgomery Council local laws relating to power of the Takoma Park mayor to act as a justice of the peace.

children, "a consequence of the use of kerosene as fuel oil in the kitchens of lower-income households," the paper pointed out.

On the other side of the "economic factor" in accidental poisonings, acute illnesses from the swallowing of barbiturates (sleeping powders) numbered 18, of which only three were Negro children. Phenobarbital was the offender in nearly all such poisonings.

Lye and camphor poisonings tied for third place in the household danger list with 14 severely ill patients each.

Other household poisons swallowed included turpentine, 11 cases; Clorox, 10; cleaning fluids, 10; salicylates (oil of wintergreen contains methyl salicylate), 9; rat poisons, 7, and boric acid, 5.

Boric Acid Dangerous

Concerning the dangers of boric acid, a commonly used antiseptic for eyewashes and for washing cuts and scrapes, the doctors noted that "several hospitals have removed it from use on their wards, usually because of tragic consequences."

Among miscellaneous poisons which hospitalized 44 of the 250 cases were lighter fluids, ammonia water, paregoric and DDT, floor wax, hand lotions, nail polish, shoe polish and ink.

Drs. Rubin and Recinos received second prize of $30 for their paper, entered in the Medical Society's House Officers' Contest for scientific studies prepared by hospital interns and residents.

First prize, $50, was awarded to Dr. Francis A. Barrett, jr., resident in surgery at Providence Hospital, for his paper detailing 200 cases of cancer of the colon and rectum.

Third prize was given the joint paper of Drs. Cornelius P. Frey, chief resident in surgery, and Melvin G. Alper, intern in surgery, at Emergency Hospital, for their studies on nine cases of cysts of the pancreas, and their surgical management.

Graham Promises To Back Truman

Chapel Hill, N. C., March 25 (AP).—Dr. Frank Porter Graham is going to Washington as a supporter "in general" of President Truman's program.

Graham made that clear in an interview at his home here today. The friendly, quiet-spoken little man is leaving the presidency of the University of North Carolina to fill a Senate vacancy left by the death of Senator J. Melville Broughton.

"In general, I have supported President Truman's program," he said, "and expect to continue to do so as specific measures come up in the light of what is most p - sible and effective at any given time."

Graham, whose appointment to the Senate was announced by Governor Scott in a surprise move last night, was reluctant to discuss specific issues.

Signed Minority Rights Report

"I realize I will be a freshman in the Senate and need a period of study in order to understand what is to be wise and effective in particular situations as they arise," he said.

Asked his position on the controversial civil rights issue, the 62-year-old educator pointed out he was a member of the President's Committee on Civil Rights. However, he was a signer of the minority report of the committee which said in part:

"The best way ultimately to end segregation is to raise the educational level of the people in the States affected; and to inoculate both the teachings of religion regarding human brotherhood and the ideals of our democracy as a more solid basis for genuine and lasting acceptance by the people of the States."

For "Equality of Suffrage"

Graham said he would apply this principle "to all specific measures" and that he is "for adoption of particular proposals just as fast as the minds and hearts of the people are prepared to carry them out."

He said he favored "equality of suffrage both in general elections and primaries on this basis: give the people the right to vote and the people will be in a better position to achieve justice for themselves."

In reply to another questions he said he favors "a local-State-Federal cooperative program against lynching both by mobs in the South and by gangs in the North," and that he is for "removal of the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting in both State and Federal elections."

In addition, Graham said he supports "a decent minimum wage and more job opportunities for all people," Federal aid for public education, and a "local-State-Federal cooperative medical care program."

Queried on Taft Act

Asked his attitude toward the Taft-Hartley Labor Act and proposals to end it, Dr. Graham said, "I am for preservation of the freedom and rights of self-organization of people and their equality in our economic structure."

To a question on foreign policy, Graham said he had been a supporter of the Marshall Plan from the beginning, and to a question on his attitude to the proposed Atlantic Pact, he said:

"I haven't studied the Atlantic Pact yet, but I would be disposed to give it most sympathetic consideration."

Kefauver Files D. C. Rule Bill

authorized 12-million-dollar annual Federal lump-sum payment to the District.

Provisions for a nonvoting delegate to Congress—urged by many home-rule advocates—was not included in the Kefauver bill. Senate suffrage leaders have taken the position that the delegate question must be handled in separate legislation.

The legislating procedure set forth in the Kefeuver bill represents a considerable departure from the pending Auchincloss bill. The latter measure authorizes the council only to "propose" laws leaving to Congress affirmative power to adopt local legislation.

The new bill would leave the Icongressional District Committee setup untouched and provide "one House" review power on the council's legislative proposals.

The new bill also scaled down salaries for the chairman or "mayor" to $500 annually, plus $3000 expense money, and $3000 for council members. The draft prepared by the Democratic central and Washington home-rule committees called for substantially higher salaries.

Elections would be on a city-wide basis, rather than by precincts or proportional representation.

Under the bill's timetable, the referendum adoption of home rule would be held next November 15 and first general election would be March 7, 1950. Both council and Board of Education members would serve four-year terms.

The city manager would be appointed by the council to serve a two-year term. He need not be a District resident at the time of his appointment.

Atomic Clearance of Graham Needs Probing, Bricker Says

sinuations" against Graham's loyalty. He added:

"He is as loyal as any man who walks this earth."

"There never has been any question of his loyalty or devotion," Hoey told the Senate.

He called Graham a "great American" and said he "can be trusted with any secret of this Nation."

Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) said he worked with Graham for two years when they both were members of the old War Labor Board.

"If I had to name 25 of the greatest living Americans, I would include Dr. Graham and I would place him exceedingly high on the list," Morse said.

Probe of AEC Demanded

In addition to the specific inquiry on Graham, Bricker demanded an investigation of the administration of the Atomic Energy Commission, headed by David E. Lilienthal.

Bricker opened up with a history of Graham's appointment as head of the Oak Ridge Institute. He said in that position the educator would have access to all atomic information.

After Graham was named by Lilienthal, Bricker continued, his name was submitted to the AEC security officer, Rear Admiral John Gingrich. Bricker said Gingrich found that Dr. Graham should not be given access to all secret information.

The matter next came before the AEC loyalty review board, headed by former United States Supreme Court Justice Owen Roberts, Bricker said. The board, he continued, after listening to testimony, voted unanimously to turn down Dr. Graham "for clearance to top secret information."

Then, Bricker said, Lilienthal asked that the request for clearance be withdrawn. He said at some subsequent date the board disbanded.

Bricker then told the Senate he later noted an announcement that Lilienthal had given "full clearance" to Dr. Graham.

He added that he did not know whether it was justified or not. But he said it was a matter which "ought to have the attention of the joint committee."

Within the last two weeks, Bricker continued, he has learned that the AEC has established another personnel security review board composed of three citizens. He said he knows only one—Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, former head of the Civil Service Commission. He said Flemming is of the "same caliber" as Justice Roberts.

Senator McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, said that after Graham was cleared for atomic secrets the matter was discussed in the congressional committee.

McMahon said he supported a suggestion that the committee conduct a public hearing so Graham could have a chance to answer any charges against him.

Such a hearing has not been held because the file still is being reviewed, McMahon told the Senate. He added that when the review has been completed, "in my opinion we will not press for an investigation."

Jenner broke in to ask why the loyalty board which handled Graham's case had resigned.

One on the Aisle—

Keith's Fantasy Intends Message

By Richard L. Coe

BEFORE HE LEFT RKO, Dore Schary had almost completed a picture with a point called "The Boy With Green Hair." It has since been released by the studio, now headed by Howard Hughes, after some months of inner studio tinkering, rumors of which have passed through the continental grapevines.

"The Boy With Green Hair" reached Keith's screen yesterday, and although I deeply admire its attempt to be something different, I must confess that it is not completely satisfying. Since Mr. Schary has always been on the record as favoring "stimulating" pictures and Mr. Hughes is frankly a proponent of the opium or bosoms-and-beer school, it seems unjust to consider that this is the film Mr. Schary intended or the sort of picture Mr. Hughes would have started.

The story concerns an orphan who gets tossed from one relative to another until he finally settles down happily with "Gramps," an old vaudevillian now serving as a singing waiter. The lad becomes acclimated to school in a small town and begins to enjoy himself. At a clothing drive for war orphans he discovers a fact that has been kept from him—his father and mother perished in London and he, like the youngsters on the schoolroom posters, is a war orphan.

The next morning the boy finds his hair has turned green. The natural amusement of youngsters his own age is soon tarnished by their elders, who resent anyone so different as a boy with an unaccustomed shade of hair. He's miserable about the scorn heaped on his loneliness until the image of other war orphans comes to him and he sees himself as a spokesman against war—and talk of future war.

Hardly a Message

But his explanation to his school fellows and the townspeople that his hair is a mark of war meets only with further scorn, and all cow him into having his head sheared. But, vows the lad, when his hair grows back it will still be green.

This is indeed fantasy, and, what's more, fantasy with a message. But what, precisely, is the message? Is it anything pointed toward specific drifts in world currents? Could anyone construe it as pro-something, anti-something?

I don't doubt that some might. To me, however, it's so mild a message that I wouldn't begin to describe this as a message or "propaganda" picture at all. It simply says what we all know—or darn well should know—that the generations of the future are as much war's victims as the men who perish in battle. Compared, of course, with the message value of horse operas and Technicolored musicals, this is heavy thinking indeed, but to call it "propaganda" is a misnomer that would be attempted only by the most ostrich-like Hollywoodian.

Dean Stockwell Fine

There are some genuinely amusing moments in the comedy line and several touching sequences when the writers and director hit their intended stride. I think it was a mistake to make "Gramps" a retired vaudevillian (pointless and, after all, show people are supposed to be a bit strange), nor do I find Pat O'Brien's Irishisms helpful, however his speech on a green plant may suggest the color to his young friend.

Dean Stockwell, who's my idea of the best youngster acting in Hollywood today, is first-rate as the boy. He suggests most ably the stress and wonderings in the lad's head and the inability of most human beings to express what is inside them. Most of the film's punch, indeed, comes from this 11-year-old son of Baritone Harry.

At all events, "The Boy With Green Hair" is something different in the movie line, and even if it doesn't achieve what it promises, it's an interesting try. And, praise be, there's no love story.

GERTRUDE STEIN'S "Yes Is For a Very Young Man" continues tonight and tomorrow night in Clendenin Hall of American University . . . Downtown duties have kept me from charabancing out to see it, a circumstance I particularly regret since comes a rush letter from Honolulu asking for my report on the play . . . Hawaii's interest is prompted by the presence in the cast of Beatrice Newport, who seems to have been a sensation there in "Joan of Lorraine" . . . From what I hear, Beatrice is doing fine in Miss Stein's quiet report on the French resistance, and her laurels are amply shared by Barbara Joyce in another feminine lead.

TONIGHT brings the opening of the Airport Drive-In Theater for the summer; "Forever Amber" is the flick . . . E. M. Loew's on the Richmond hwy. is to open Sunday night, attraction to be announced. . . . Jack Dempsey and Arthur Lake, Coast Guard vets both, will be on hand for the Sunday Checkerboard Jamboree of Eddy Arnold at Constitution Hall, performances at 3 and 8:30 p. m. . . . The Variety Club is sponsoring this for the benefit of the CG Memorial Chapel fund . . . Wilson Teachers College yesterday presented a 90-minute commentary on the evolution of the drama compiled by John C. De Shazo and directed by Virginia Kellogg . . . Tonight and tomorrow, Evelyn Davis and the Dance Playhouse, 1742 Church st. nw., are presenting their series of dance programs celebrating the group's tenth anniversary.

"THE BOY WITH GREEN HAIR." RKO Radio release produced by Dore Schary. Stephen Ames, Screen play by Ben Barzman and Alfred L. Leavitt from a story by Betsy Beaton. Photographed by George Barnes in Kalmus Technicolor. Song: "Nature Boy" by eden ahbez. Directed by Joseph Losey. At Keith's.

Movie About Foreign Service Comes Over Well Enough

By Orval Hopkins

ASIDE from one or two lapses in dialogue—some rather obvious atmospheric and propagandic broadsides and a title that's nothing if not topheavy, "State Department File 649" turns out to be an entirely acceptable movie about the Foreign Service. Now at the National Theater, the film is played by a large number of people I never heard of before, including William Lundigan, but it serves to reintroduce to my rusty orbit Virginia Bruce, whose eyes haven't softened this scaly heart for some years.

Lundigan, a dimpled young Irishman, is entrusted with carrying this film almost alone, and he handles the work in good shape. Miss Bruce is, to be sure, hauled in by the scruff, but she bears up nicely and brightens the premises besides.

Off to China

The story, this preamble being reluctantly concluded, is about a young man who joins the State Department Foreign Service, meets a nice girl in the building I believe we call New State, pops off to China and becomes involved with a Mongolian warlord. He is able to thwart the warlord and there is a surprise twist which I hope surprises you. It did me.

During the course of this, Lundigan and Miss Bruce hold each other close a couple of times and there seems to be no question as to what's going on there.

When the warlord, to go back a bit, chap called The Marshal, moves into the village where Lundigan and Miss Bruce are on duty, Lundigan is able to plant some dynamite in the trick jeep-drawn trailer the toughie gets around in. (This, by the way, is probably a crest, or something, of reasonableness for Hollywood. What more logical than that a nomad warrior, accustomed to roaming with his camp and unwieldy pack train, should take to traveling in a fancy trailer, with his chauffeur in a jeep? And we know where he gets his gasoline, don't we?) The Marshal subsequently kidnaps Lundigan as a hostage and there he is in the trailer he himself has wired for sound. Mm, how's he going to get out of this, you mutter. That's where the fluttery ending comes in.

Smooth Going

The Marshal, his top hand and the rest of the Mongolian baddies are effectively sinister, Lundigan and Miss Bruce go along very smoothly, and I particularly like Frank Ferguson, who plays a consul in Peiping. Raymond Bond, the consul in the village, is a bit too stern-jawed and steely-eyed, but I suppose somebody's got to take responsibility in these things.

Milton Raison wrote the movie and Peter Stewart directed. It's all in Cinecolor and there must be something they can do about that unperfected process.

There are some spectacular newsreel shots of a fire-with-explosions at a West Coast Army base on the bill. There is also a Pete Smith short subject which I found most amusing. Smith has been turning these things out for 18 years, to my uncertain knowledge, and he remains consistent. He gets some uncommonly pretty girls to help him, too, by golly.

"STATE DEPARTMENT—FILE 649." Film Classics release produced by Sigmund Neufeld. Story and screen play by Milton Raison. Photographed in Cinecolor by Jack Greenhalgh. Music by Lucien Cailliet. Directed by Peter Stewart. At the National.

Court Upholds Falls Church Theater Tax

Validity of a Falls Church license tax attacked by a local theater as an unconstitutional admisisons tax was upheld yesterday by the Fairfax County Circuit Court.

Judge Paul E. Brown denied without comment the petition of the Fairfax Corporation, which operates the State Theater in Falls Church, to exempt the theater from paying such a tax, and to order past payments refunded.

The 1947 tax ordinance requires the theater to pay the city 2 cents for each admission. Under protest, the theater added the tax to the price of admission. The corporation said its payments had averaged about $500 a month.

The corporation claimed the ordinance goes beyond the taxing power granted the city. The city denied the tax was an admissions tax on the patrons. The tax was levied on the theater, officials stated, and it was the theater's business to determine where to get the money to pay it.

PUC Rejects Pepco's Bond Issue Plan

that this application be denied in toto. These insurance companies will soon have practical control of Pepco because the common stock of the company is widely scattered."

Celler then asked that if Pepco's application is approved in any form, the PUC demand that the bonds be sold at competitive bidding.

Celler said he "had no ax to grind" on the matter and became interested in the hearing only because he had been closely following insurance company financial operations around the country. He said he had not conferred with representatives of the two brokerage firms.

James H. Flanagan, chairman of the PUC, said the decision was based exclusively on the record, and the Celler statement, since it was unsworn, was not part of this record.

Under the original plan, Pepco had proposed to sell 13 million dollars of the debentures to Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.; 12 million to Equitable Life Assurance Society and 12 million to Prudential Insurance Co.

After the PUC's adverse decision, J. F. Reilly, Pepco counsel, said future plans were uncertain. He indicated the company will formulate a new proposal to help finance construction and refund its outstanding debt.

In its formal opinion, the PUC pointed out that Pepco proposed to use proceeds of the 37-million-dollar bond issue to prepay 17 million dollars of outstanding bank loan notes bearing 2 and 2¼ per cent interest and to redeem $11,-981,250 in 3.60 per cent preferred stock.

"The record in this case," said the PUC "does not convince this commission that it would be in the public interest to permit the substitution of 3¼ per cent debentures for 2 per cent and 2¼ per cent bank loan notes at this time; or to permit the redemption of 3.60 per cent preferred stock at a premium of $731,250."

The PUC also objected "to the debt ratio which would result . . . from the proposed transaction."

Because it rejected entirely Pepco's application on the new financing, the PUC found it unnecessary to rule on Pepco's request to waive the requirement for competitive bidding in such cases. Last week, two investment banking firms had filed objections on this point. Cyrus S. Eaton of Otis & Co. of Cleveland and Ernest Niver of Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago were present yesterday, but did not testify.

$200,000 PROGRAM: Directors of National Bank of Washington have appropriated $200,000 for improvements and modernization of the main office at 7th and C sts. nw., and the branch at 1121 Maine ave. sw. A special committee of three also has been named to handle the program, according to Rutherford J. Dooley, vice president and cashier. Books for transfer of the institution's stock will remain closed until 2 p. m. April 8, Dooley added. April 8 is the date set for termination of an offer by an unidentified client of Johnston, Lemon & Co. to buy the bank's stock at $280 a share.

ODD LOTS: The Hecht Co. has declared regular quarterly dividends of 40 cents a share on common and 93¼ cents a share on preferred stock, both payable April 30 to stock of record April 8 . . . Home-heating fuel oil yesterday was cut eight tenths of a cent a gallon in the Philadelphia area. . . Merck & Co. stockholders will vote April 19 on a stock revision program to raise some seven million dollars new capital . . . First of the ore carriers will start moving toward the head of the Great Lakes Friday.

EARNINGS: Atlantic Refining Co. reported record 1948 net income of $35,657,124, or $12.68 a common share, compared with $15,897,652, or $5.32 a share in 1947. Other earnings statements:

Chicago Grain

Chicago, March 23 (AP).—A small run of cash corn and some foreign flour buying combined to lift grain prices on the Board of Trade today. Gains ran to nearly 2 cents in corn, which showed the most strength right from the start.

Soybeans and Lard also were mostly higher, although March soybeans provided an exception. It closed down slightly after a day of erratic movements. Trading in March deliveries ended at the close. Outstanding contracts must be settled by delivery of the actual commodity.

Wheat closed ⅝ to 1⅛ higher; corn was ⅝ to 1⅞ higher; oats were ¼ to ⅜ higher; rye was ⅝ to 1 cent higher; soybeans were 1 cent lower to 2¾ higher, and lard was 10 to 20 cents a hundred pounds higher.

A Human RECOVERY PROGRAM

Governmental aid will help many countries to post-war economic recovery, but overseas the man in the street needs help beyond such national assistance, and he needs it now in his grim struggle merely to exist from day to day. Such victims of war need your immediate, personal help if they are to have the earliest upon earliest of food, clothing and medicines upon which their very lives may depend.

Whatever it may be, your contribution now to these two world-wide programs for Human Recovery is of utmost importance!

Pennsy Orders Four New-Type Locomotives

Philadelphia, March 23 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad today revealed it has ordered four experimental electric freight locomotives from Westinghouse Electric Corp. and Central Electric Co.

The locomotives, each differing in design and mechanical features, stress increased power, efficiency and flexibility, the Pennsylvania Railroad said.

"On completion the locomotives will be subjected to exhaustive road and other tests to determine the locomotive best adapted to the railroad's needs and showing the greatest advance in actual performance," the railroad added.

Westinghouse will build two 5626 horsepower engines. General electric will build two 5000 horsepower locomotives.

New York Cotton

New York, March 23 (AP).—Cotton futures registered small declines in early dealings today, but turned steady later on mill buying and short covering. Final prices were 10 to 55 cents a bale higher than the previous close. Most of the activity centered in old crop deliveries which met light pressure of hedging, reflecting an increase in spot cotton sales at the primary markets. Interest in the new crop deliveries was limited in the face of more reports that farmers are preparing to plant cotton heavily this year on the supposition it will be the last season of a high 90 per cent of parity price support.

New Waltham Plan Submitted

Boston, March 23 (AP).—A New York University dean testified today that the closed Waltham Watch Co. would be able to pay off its debts and become solvent if given enough time.

Clarence W. Fackler, assistant dean of the N. Y. U. School of Business Administration, testified before Federal Judge George C. Sweeney at a hearing on proposed reorganization of the Nation's oldest watch works.

It closed last January 1 leaving 2500 jobless.

Fackler represented a committee of common stockholders which has offered a reorganization plan differing from one presented by three court-appointed trustees.

Where is tomorrow's oil?

How Shell protects future supply

New methods of operating oil fields—recovering oil once left in the earth—add millions of barrels to proved reserves...

Get every possible drop:

One of today's conservation measures lies in better ways of getting oil from the earth. Greater recovery from present fields is as important as finding new ones—and can contribute millions of barrels of oil. More efficient oil recovery is a major project of Shell Research.

Diagnosing Mother Earth:

Shell engineers, guarding a well's health, measure its temperature and pressure . . . often at great depths. By scientific means they learn the volume and characteristics of underground reservoirs—determine how to produce more oil . . . with the least possible waste.

Water in—oil out:

For example, pioneer operators learned that flooding some oil fields could add as much as 100% to their productivity. Today, the water flooding technique is vastly improved and Shell—in its research laboratories as well as in the field—works on this means of greater recovery.

Indoor oil wells:

At Shell's Exploration and Production Laboratory, largest of its kind in the industry, the job of boosting yield-per-well is tackled with every scientific tool . . . just like having an oil well in the laboratory. Research which makes fields more productive now, means more oil for you tomorrow.

More Hell-Fire Preaching Urged by Pope

Vatican City, March 23 (AP).—Pope Pius XII called for a return to Christian teaching in the home and a greater emphasis on Hell's Fire preaching in the church.

The preaching of Hell, he said, "is more than ever urgent today" and the duty of the church, "before God and men, is to teach it . . . as Christ revealed it."

The pontiff spoke in his annual audience with the pastors and Lenten preachers of Rome.

"Desire for Heaven," he said, "is a more perfect motive than fear of eternal punishment, but from this it does not follow that it is the most effective motive to hold them (people) far from sin and convert them to God."

The Pope criticized films, magazines and newspapers as contributing to a movement away from religion.

Seductive Propaganda

"Propaganda for an earthy life without God is open, seductive, continuous," he said. "Often God is not denied. . . He is not cursed. . . . He is though absent."

The Pope described propaganda for a "life without God" as a torrent "whose muddy waters are trying to penetrate the Catholic field."

He said it is "sorrowful" to see so many—"among them many Catholics—living as though their only aim is to form Heaven on earth, without any thought of the beyond and of eternity."

There is "no time to be lost to halt with all our forces the slipping of our ranks into irreligiousness and to awaken again the spirit with prayer and penance.

"Preaching of the first truths of faith . . . is more than ever urgent . . . and so is the preaching of hell. Without doubt, such a subject must be handled with dignity and tact."

Pope Pius said there is "deliberate, ominous propaganda for the formation of a Godless family, society and state."

Cites Nauseating Crudeness

Even in films considered morally without reproach, he said, "men live and die as though there were no God nor redemption nor church."

"When one thinks of the nauseating crudeness and immodesty shown in newspapers, in magazines or on the screen, in theaters, and of the inconceivable aberration of parents who go with their children to amuse themselves with such horrors, one blushes with shame," the pontiff said.

In obvious praise of Catholic efforts in the United States to influence movie productions, he said: "Thank Heaven in some countries, especially those in which there is the largest cinema production, Catholics are working methodically and with happy success for morality and dignity of films."

Colorado Basin Bill Is Passed

Congressional action was completed yesterday on a bill authorizing an upper Colorado River basin compact.

Final action was by the House. It passes the bill under unanimous consent procedure. Similar action was taken by the Senate last week. The bill now goes to President Truman.

The compact would apportion waters of the upper Colorado River basin among Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona. It already has been ratified by Legislatures of the five States.

It must have the consent of Congress and the President before it can become effective. The bill passed yesterday gives this consent.

'Hearts' Killers Win Postponement

Mineola, N. Y., March 23 (U.P.).—A postponement was granted today in a habeas corpus hearing by which "lonely hearts" killers Raymond Fernandez and Mrs. Martha Beck hope to win a return to Michigan, where there is no death penalty.

The 34-year-old mail order Romeo and his fat 29-year-old paramour were indicted yesterday by a grand jury on a first degree murder charge for the slaying of Mrs. Janet Fay in Valley Stream, N. Y.

Caps Upset Philly in Playoff Opener, 92-70

My Story . . . By Joe Louis

First Pro Fight Brings $52, Quick Kayo

WHEN I was 19 years old I trained for the international light heavyweight Golden Gloves in Chicago. I wanted to take that title. The night of the fight we paraded into Chicago Stadium and it was all flags, and the bands played all the different countries' songs, and we got our picture taken, and then we marched out again with all the people cheering. Then a man came into the dressing room. He hollered, "Is Joe Barrow in here?" and I got up and this man told me, "Arch Ward wants you, ringside, right away. Something important." Arch Ward is sports editor on the Chicago Tribune. They run the Golden Gloves.

Mr. Ward said, "Joe, you ever been to South Bend, Indiana?" and I said, "No, sir, I've never been any place but Detroit and Chicago. I never stopped off anywhere between." Mr. Ward shook his head and said, "I don't know what's the matter, Joe, but they want you to go down to the police station." He said, "You go back to your dressing room and get into your street clothes."

Then six policemen came in, with guns, and when I was dressed they picked me up and marched me out of the stadium. I asked them what's up, and they said they got orders to take me down to Gary, Indiana, because a man down there had seen my Golden Gloves pictures in the paper, and he recognized me as a man who had killed his wife in South Bend in 1926.

I thought this was a frame-up. I told the policemen, "How could it be I killed a wife in 1926? In 1926 I was only 12 years old, and I never heard of South Bend. I was a boy in a cotton patch in Alabama." When I got to Gary the sheriff said he was sorry. He saw it was all a mistake and he didn't mean for the order to go to Chicago to pick me up on the say-so of this man who'd seen my picture in the paper. So I never got to fight that night. I felt bad, but the sports writers and the other boys said it was all right. They said no one would think I was in a murder, and that I got out of the fight. They said there was all kinds of rumors around Chicago that night and everybody was talking about me. They all said it was a gag. I never heard no more about it.

I FOUGHT my last amateur fight against Joe Bauer, a Cleveland boy, on June 12, 1934. It was in Ford Field in Detroit, in the intercity light heavyweights. I put him away in the first round with a left to the jaw and a right to the head. It didn't go hardly a minute and a half, and it was over. Right after that I asked Mr. Roxborough could I fight professional. I said I would like to make some real money to give my mother. Mr. Roxborough told me he thought we better wait a while. He said he figured I was too young, but if I wanted to try for it he would help me.

We went over to my house and Mr. Roxborough talked with my folks and they said it would be all right, whatever he wanted to do. Mr. Roxborough took me to Chicago. He introduced me to Julian Black, who had fighters there. They hired Jack Blackburn. He trained me for all my fights for eight years and he taught me almost everything I know. I loved that Blackburn.

HE CALLED me "Chappie" and I called him "Chappie" and whatever he told me to do in the ring, I did it, and it was right. I hardly ever threw a punch but what Chappie passed on it first. He died right after my fight with Abe Simon for Army Relief.

I left Detroit about the middle of June in 1934, right after my last amateur fight. Julian Black and John Roxborough rented a room for me in Bill Bottom's apartment on 46th st. and South Parkway in Chicago. Bottom was a chef.

He ran the kitchen in all my training camps later. Jack Blackburn got $35 a week at first but when I got in the big money he was cut in for 10% of the manager's share. I liked the training, mostly the roadwork. Always have. I would get up around 6 in the morning and run twice around Washington Park. It was about 3 miles once around. Chappie would wait for me outside.

HE would let me go back to the house again after that and go back to bed. Around 11 o'clock I would get up again and have a good breakfast. When it settled I would go down to George Trafton's gym and work out with the gloves. Chappie kept me blocking punches. He worked on my fighting position.

He never said things to swell my head. He never said I was a good fighter. He never compared me with other fighters, but he would say, "You can do anything. You can beat anyone you can hit, but you got to get in position to hit." He said, "In a year I'll have you hitting any one of them."

Sometimes at night he would let me go to a movie, but mostly we would sit around and talk boxing. He would show how to throw punches without losing your balance. He kept drilling away at that. I told him I won all my amateur fights with my left hook, and he saw how my right hand pulled me in and left me off balance.

HE KEPT after me until I could shift my left foot to put me in position to throw that right without letting myself open for a counterpunch. He was a great boxer and we always got along swell—all but one time. We got into a real argument over the first Conn fight. I'll tell about that later. It turned out he was right, as always, and I was wrong.

Mr. Black and Mr. Roxborough signed me up for 6- and 10-round fights at the start. The first professional fight was with Jack Kracken, a Chicago heavyweight. I got ready for him in two weeks. We fought in the Bacon Casino on July 4, 1934.

IT WAS a main bout. I never had to fight preliminaries when I started, because I had a big build-up from the Golden Gloves, especially in Detroit. Chappie knew this Kracken, and how he fought. He told me just where to hit to make him drop his guard it came easy. I put Knacken out in two minutes in the first round. I hit him on the jaw when he dropped his arms to cover his stomach.

I got $52 cash for that fight. Mr. Black and Mr. Roxborough let me keep all of it. I sent most of it home. A week later I took on a boy, Willie Davis, and he didn't last but three rounds with me. I got another $54 for that one, and on July 29 I went on with Larry Udell in the Marigold Gardens. I got him on the chin the second round, and they counted him out. That was another $101 for me.

Washington Cripples Win Easily With Fulks Hurt

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, March 23.—The Washington Caps proved the ablest of the disabled and pasted the Philadelphia Warriors, 92-70, here tonight in the first round of the BAA playoffs.

The Eastern Division champs came here with two of their brightest stars—Bob Feerick and Fred Scolari—incapacitated, but much of their gloom was quickly dispelled when they learned that Joe Fulks, the second highest scorer in pro basketball history, couldn't play either.

Fulks, who owns a 26-point average against the Caps for three years of BAA play, injured his hip in a bizarre accident this morning. He fell from the steps while carrying garbage from his home.

With his hip taped up with enough bandage to make him resemble a hockey goalie, Fulks made a two-minute appearance in the second quarter, just long enough to learn that he couldn't make it.

Whether he'll be able to play tomorrow night when the clubs resume their best of three series at Uline's is something that not even the court king from Kuttawa, Ky., knows.

Easy As Any Win

Without Fulks to pester them with his wide variety of shots, the Caps broke up what had been a close ball game as late as the third quarter and coasted to one of their easiest decisions of the campaign.

Shoved into the turmoil when Matt Zunic twisted his knee late in the second period, Dick Schulz rammed in three straight baskets in the closing moments of the quarter to give the Caps a lead they augmented as the battle wore on.

The muscle man from Wisconsin pitched in two long sets and then further discombooberated the 6-point favored Warriors with a lay-up just as the buzzer sounded to wind up the first half, 40-34, Washington.

With Fulks nursing his injured hip and pouting over the strange twist of luck, the Warriors made a fight of it in the opening minutes of the third quarter, but Bones McKinney and Kleggie Hermsen chose this occasion to get hot and the Warriors' chances were cooked then and there.

Bones Controls Boards

McKinney, who played the defensive board as if he owned it, dunked in three straight jump shots while Hermsen was just as effective—tapping in three consecutive baskets. This 12-point foray took the Caps from a 44-39 advantage to a 64-47 command by the end of the quarter.

Hermsen ended his fine performance with 20 points, tops for both teams, with McKinney's 15 good enough for runnerup honors.

Johnny Norlander, spot player that he is, staged two raids against the Warrior basket. His first, in the second quarter, was a three straight goal performance which inched the Caps in front, 26-23. Later, when the Caps were scoring at will, Norlander swished in 3 more baskets and wound up the night with 14 points.

Hertzberg Directs

The Warriors missed Fulks even more than the Caps missed Scolari and Feerick. Sonny Hertzberg directed the Cap attack in place of the disabled Feerick, but there's no one on the Warrior roster to replace Fulks.

Their offensive is built around him. Many times tonight the Philadelphians brought the ball down court and looked for their scoring wizard, but he wasn't there and

Nats Blow 3-0 Lead as Yanks Win

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 23.—The Nats almost won a ball game today and then reverted to type and blew a 5-4 contest with the Yankees before 2005 unsympathetic customers at Al Lang Field.

Sid Hudson held the Yankees in check superbly in his five-inning stint in which he permitted only two hits and turned over a 3-0 lead to Mickey Haefner. Defeat for the Nats began to set in almost right away.

The Yankees pounced on Haefner for three hits and four runs in the seventh inning, taking a one-run lead when Eddie Yost fumbled Jerry Coleman's ground smash.

Yost Whacks Homer

As if in penance for his error, Yost whacked a fierce line drive homer over the left field wall to tie up the game at 4-4 in the eighth. His blow greeted the apearance of rookie Duane Pillette on the mound for the Yanks.

The Yankees rapped Haefner for the winning run in their own eighth, though it wasn't all his fault. Hank Bauer smacked a ground rules double to the scoreboard to put the winning run in scoring position and was sacrificed to third by Mapes, with one out. Eventually Haefner was the victim of a flurry of confusion in short left field.

Johnny Lindell popped a seemingly harmless fly into short left, and rookie Left Fielder John Simmons was off at the crack of the bat—in the wrong direction. Shortstop Sam Dente backed up as if to make the catch, but they both made way for Center Fielder Clyde Vollmer, who charged across 50 yards of sod in a try for the wind-blown ball. It dropped at Vollmer's feet for a single and Bauer romped home with the decisive score.

Hudson outpitched Fred Sanford while the Nats were getting him his 3-0 lead. The tall right-hander, apparently well-launched on his comeback, gave up harmless hits in the first and second innings and then set down the next 12 batters in a row, fanning four.

The Nats hopped into a 2-0 lead with a pair of gift runs in the second inning. A walk to Dente, Evans' single to left and Hudson's walk filled the bases with one out, and when first baseman Joe Collins threw wild to second on Gil Coan's grounder, two men scored.

Hudson himself put the Nats' third run in motion with a single to right in the fourth, with two out. He scored all the way from first when Gil Coan's wallop to deep center cleared the head of Mapes.

JOE DIMAGGIO limped to the plate as a pinch hitter in the sixth, and did the best he could . . . He whacked an enormous drive into left center against Haefner and was cheated of an extra-base hit by Gil Coan's sprinting catch . . . Yost's home run was the third he ever hit in his major league career and would have been an extra base hit all over the world . . . Coan.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 23.—Those odds labeling Yankees as no worse than 3-to-1 shots in the American League pennant race are somewhat flattering, you'd have to say. The Yanks are stacking up as no pennant threat at all.

At this point, Manager Casey Stengel can't name either the infield or the outfield that will represent the Yanks on April 19. Neither he nor Joe DiMaggio nor the doctors can say with certainty that DiMaggio will be in the opening day line-up or how many games he will play in 1949.

POVICH

The old Yankees are disintegrating. DiMaggio's sore heel threatens his whole baseball future. Charley Keller is a huge question mark with his back ailment that is hamstringing what used to be baseball's most vicious batting swing. Little Phil Rizzuto hasn't thrown a ball hard all spring, with the doctors still hoping calcium deposits in his elbow will dissolve without the necessity of an operation.

THE BEST THING about the Yankees is their pitching, and that could be suspect too. In Vic Raschi, their 19-game winner of last season, they have a solid performer, and Ed Lopat turned in 17 wins despite his traditionally slow start in the early months. Bob Porterfield is tabbed as a can't-miss prospect.

Fred Sanford, the big right-hander whom they bought from the Browns for $100,000 during the winter, could be overrated. It is not to his credit that he has never beaten Washington in six starts in his brief career, and it is to be remembered that he led the league in defeats last season with 21, against only 12 victories.

In Sanford's behalf it has been argued that he had none of the best of it, performing for the Browns, and can expect to fare vastly better with the Yankees. But why? The Browns were not a poor defensive club last season, yet Sanford yielded an average of 4.64 earned runs per game. That wasn't good pitching.

STENGEL IS NEWLY dismayed at the setback to Frank Shea, the rookie sensation of 1947 who was overweight last season and flopped dismally. Shea reported in playing condition, but developed a painfully pulled muscle in his neck and hasn't thrown a ball harder than a lob. Stengel has no idea when Shea may be ready.

By opening day, Johnny Lindell may be the only veteran in the Yankee outfield, and he never was good enough to be a regular in previous seasons. Unless Stengel's first base situation improves, he may be forced to call in Tommy Henrich from right field to take over. That would necessitate the induction of Hank Bauer and Cliff Mapes into the outfield if DiMaggio and Keller are unavailable.

There isn't much left of the Yankees' famed Murderers' Row. There would be a semblance of it if DiMaggio, Keller and Henrich could all suit up, but otherwise the Yankees don't figure to terrorize the pitching. Their second base-shortstop combination of George Stirnweiss and Phil Rizzuto were .252 hitters last season.

STENGEL IS CONTRIVING, somehow, to get Yogi Berra's bat into the line-up somewhere, even if he has to sacrifice catching skill with Berra in that job, or outfield defense with Berra as an outfielder. With the Yankees shaping up as a punchless club, there is high demand for Berra's hitting and run producing.

In Bobby Brown, Stengel has something of a problem player. Like Berra, Brown can hit, but where to play him poses a problem. Bucky Harris attempted to make a third baseman and a shortstop out of Brown last year but he let in more runs than he drove in, and Harris valued the fellow chiefly as a pinch hitter.

The Yankees could wind up as low as fourth without causing any flabbergasting surprise. They stayed in the race last year because DiMaggio had one of his better seasons despite the fact he was a baling-wire case. Even a healthy DiMaggio couldn't take them much farther than did the ailing Joe of 1948, and nobody is sure that he isn't close to retirement.

Red Sox Win As Hughson Shines Again

Sarasota, Fla., March 23 (AP).—Tex Hughson, big Boston right-hander, made his second spring training effort a good one today as he twirled two-hit, one-run ball for the Sox who downed Cincinnatin's Reds, 5-3.

Lefty Mel Parnell went the last four innings for the Boston American Leaguers and gave up only one hit.

Only run off Hughson, who was useless last season when his arm was operated twice, came in the second on a Hatton single, a force play and Ray Miller's long right field double. Only Cinci batter to reach first thereafter against Tex was Mueller who was safe on an error by Stephens.

Against the Cardinals about a week ago Hughson gave up three hits, two of the scratchy type, and one run.

Nonsegregation on Publinx Voted by Recreation Board

guess as to what the amount would be. However, he felt sure that Congress would appropriate any necessary funds.

"We're not trying to do this thing immediately," Wender explained. "We've waited seven years and another year or two won't matter. What we are striving for is to see that the board controls all recreation in the District.

"That's what Congress created it for and that's what seems to me the common-sense way of doing things."

Reminded of Interior's criticism of the Recreation Board's general segregation policy, Wender admitted that yesterday's action related to golf only.

The fiery 41-year-old attorney said: "In my personal opinion, eventually there will be no segregation in Washington. And I'm for that. But I believe in taking a realistic view of this involved and explosive program.

"We're proceeding slowly and carefully. We think it's the best way."

It isn't clear just what the Recreation Board's special committee hopes to accomplish at today's meeting. The group, consisting of Wender, James E. Schwab and Mrs. Alice C. Hunter, last conferred with Assistant Secretary Davidson on March 10.

At that time, they left with Davidson an "explosive" report criticizing the favorable terms of the contracts given Leoffler, who has been the Interior Department's concessionaire since 1921. His last contract expired last December 31.

Despite the meeting and the report, four days later Davidson announced the Interior Department's intention of renewing a five-year agreement with Leoffler.

The following day, five members of the board engaged in a heated discussion with the committee finally voting 2-1 not to make its "secret" report public at that time. Part of the compromise arrived at was to arrange the further meeting with Davidson.

Schwab, who did most of the work on the figures in the report, wanted to make it public. Wender and Mrs. Hunter voted to withhold action and insisted that it was a matter for a vote by the entire board.

Irving C. Root, superintendent of the Interior's National Capital Parks and a member of the Recreation Board, called the report "biased" and "purposely embarrassing to the Interior Department."

Caps Will Play in Armory If They Reach Second Round

If the Caps survive the first round of the current BAA playoffs, they'll play their second-round games at the National Guard Armory.

The decision to use the Armory was made yesterday by owner Mike Uline. "Why not?" asked Uline when his subordinates told him the spacious Southeast plant was the most feasible site inasmuch as the Caps' own court, Uline Arena, had been rented out to a circus for the week beginning March 28.

Uline's decision to rent the Armory was in direct contrast to his feelings about the Government-owned plant which he criticized last year. At that time, Uline said he would close his own arena if the Armory were rented for basketball games.

He called it "unfair competition from the government." Uline Arena remained open for all sports last year and the Armory was rented many times for college basketball games.

The second round playoffs are tentatively slated to begin Tuesday, March 29, in either Baltimore or New York, first round opponents. The next two games in the best of three series would be played in Washington, if the Caps are still in business.

Louis Picks Chicago for Title Fight

By Charles Dunkley

Chicago, March 23 (AP).—Promoter Joe Louis will stage the Ezzard Charles-Jersey Joe Walcott showdown for his vacated world's heavyweight title in Chicago—right where he won it from Jim Braddock in 1937.

The date, probably in June, and the site—either at Chicago Stadium, or one of the Major League ball parks—will be worked out by Joe's International Boxing Club with the Illinois Athletic Commission.

The selection of Chicago, over bids from Detroit, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Cincinnati, for the National Boxing Association version of the heavyweight crown, was announced at a news conference today.

New York, one of the two States outside NBA membership, has proposed an "elimination" tourney for Louis' title and will not recognize the Walcott-Charles winner as champion. Massachusetts is the other non-NBA State.

Louis Plans Detroit Bout

Louis, nattily dressed in a dark, blue double-breasted suit, also disclosed that his first promotional venture since he vacated the title on March 1, would be a bout at Detroit's Olympia the week of April 24.

Joe said he hoped to arrange a match then between featherweight Champion Willie Pep, or his recent title victim, Sandy Saddler, and "an outstanding feather performer."

Louis, although noncommittal on the heavyweight title bout date, did not dodge a question on a possible June meeting.

"That month was awful good to me," grinned the 34-year-old retired champion. That's when I won the title from Braddock at Comiskey Park here—June 22 in 1937."

The Illinois Boxing Commission, hearing of the I. B. C. selection of Chicago, said it would call a special meeting, probably before Monday, to discuss plans for the fight.

The I. B. C. in which Arthur Wirtz and James D. Norris, Chicago Stadium and Detroit Olympia executives, are Louis' partners, has yet to obtain an Illinois license for operation. It's a foregone conclusion it will be granted by the Illinois Commission.

Indoor Scene Possible

Considering the Wirtz-Norris tie-up, an indoor setting at the Chicago Stadium well might be arranged for the Walcott-Charles mix. It was at the stadium, two years ago in July, that the middleweights title bout between Rocky Graziano and Tony Zale lured boxing's biggest indoor gate, $432,000.

It was a foregone conclusion that Chicago would get the Walcott-Charles fight, although Louis and Wirtz said that "firm offers" by the other cities were considered. Foremost was a reported half-million-dollar bid by Sam Becker, Cincinnati promoter.

Louis held court, in businessman style, at the news conference which was held at the Chicago Stadium. It was there, in 1934, that Louis launched his bid to boxing fame as a Golden Gloves light-heavyweight.

Judge Defers Gardella Case

New York, March 23 (AP).—Danny Gardella, squat outfielder once with the New York Giants, must wait at least until April 6 for an answer to his plea that he be permitted to return immediately to baseball.

Federal Judge Edward A. Conger heard attorneys for both sides today and said that he would act on the request after lawyers filed their briefs on April 6. Earlier Judge Conger had said he hoped to give an answer in 24 hours.

Gardella, under suspension to five years for joining the Mexican League in 1946, seeks a temporary injunction to permit him to play ball while his $300,000 damage suit is on the docket.

In another phase of the baseball litigation, Attorney John L. Flynn withdrew his request that Sal Maglie, former New York Giant pitcher, be permitted to become a coplaintiff with Max Lanier and Fred Martin, former St. Louis Cardinal hurler, in another damage suit.

Tourney Draw Favors Hoyas

Columbia, S. C., March 23 (AP).—Pairings drawn tonight in the 145-pound class brightened opening round prospects for the inaugural Southern invitational college boxing tournament here tomorrow.

They will pair Southern Conference Champion Ray Avant of South Carolina and Art Davis of Miami, and Timmy Wiggins of The Citadel against Buddy Bourgeois of Louisiana State.

The afternoon card will offer seven fights, the night card nine. Georgetown, with only four men entered, drew three byes.

Gus Ring Signs Batcheller to Ride At Bowie, 'Graw

Miami, Fla., March 23 (AP).—Gustav Ring of Washington, D. C., has leased the contract held by Paul L. Kelley on Apprentice Jockey Logan Batcheller, it was announced today.

The lease will continue to the close of the Havre de Grace meeting May 4. Batcheller then will rejoin Kelley at Chicago for a Midwestern campaign.

Batcheller will report to the Ring stable at Bowie for the opening Monday. The apprentice jockey was leading rider at Tropical Park and tied with veteran Steve Brooks for similar honors at Hialeah. At present he is in second place behind Eldon Nelson at Gulfstream Park.

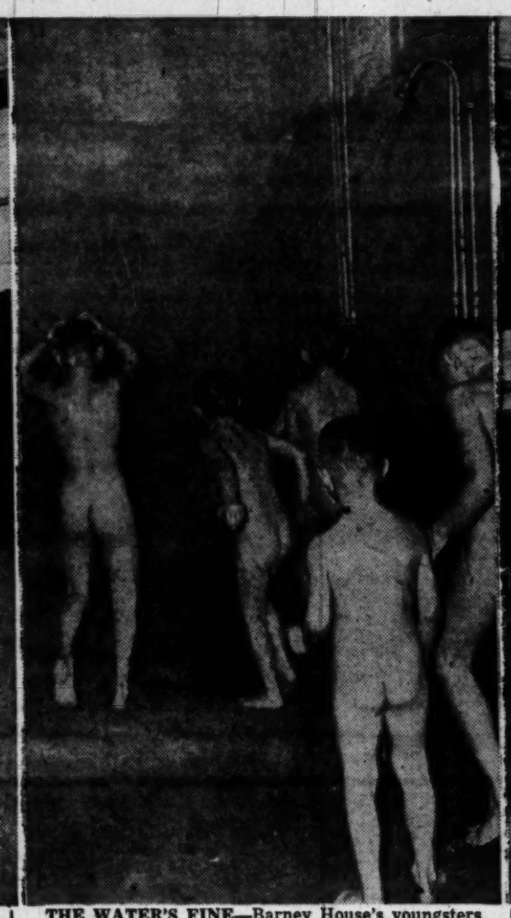
Great Golfed So Future Greats Might Play More Safely

Barney House Goes Modern With Post Celebrities' Aid

BOY DOES HONORS—Nathan Naddeo, 14, and a six-year veteran of the gym, represented the children and unveiled the marker over the door of the new locker and shower rooms. Looking on are Walter Haight (center) Washington Post sportswriter, and Dr. Laurence Schmeckebier, member of the board of trustees of Barney House



THE WATER'S FINE—Barney House's youngsters didn't have to be sent to the showers yesterday. They were eager to tryout baths furnished with hot water from the new natural gas heating plant and boiler, an important part of the completed renovation at the club

JUST LIKE BIG LEAGUERS—Surroundings not unlike those of the Nats and Redskins are afforded the youngsters by the new locker room. Boys who are getting back in civvies after hard play and a shower are: (Left to right) Buddy Knepley, George Merriman, Joe Staples, Eddie Lewis (on floor) and Raymond Yates (with towel). You can bet they are a happy and hungry lot after an afternoon of fun

Made possible with money raised by the National Celebrities golf tournament, sponsored by The Washington Post, improvements in the physical plant of an organization for giving boys and girls a chance to play—and grow—were dedicated yesterday at the Barney Neighborhood House, 470 N st. sw.

Gone were three old pot-bellied, coal-burning stoves which heated—or tried to heat—the Barney Boys' Club and its gymnasium. In their place were five modern gas-unit heaters. And one old toilet and one old shower bath had been replaced by a modern locker room which included five showers.

Most of the money for the project—$6842.23 of the $8400—came from funds raised in last spring's tournament.

Yesterday, as Barney trustees, 60 young boys and one 7-year-old girl named Sandra Brown looked on, Walter Haight, Post sports writer, made the formal presentation to Dr. Laurence Schmeckebier, member and former president of Barney's board of trustees.

Nathan Naddeo, 14, who has been coming to Barney for six years, pulled the cord unveiling the dedication marker.

The Boys Club is one phase of the Barney Neighborhood House's activities, which include a nursery, kindergarten, art classes, music instruction, girl's clubs and several adult projects. The House offers advice and assistance to hundreds of families in the Southwest area.

Dr. Schmeckebier pointed up the transformation the new equipment has made in the Boys Club from some of the "miserable" facilities that existed before.

Robert Knepley, assistant director of Barney, was particularly overjoyed with the new heating facilities.

"Those old stoves," he said, would keep you warm—if you got within 10 feet of them. It was never possible to have both your stomach and back warm at the same time."

The Boys Club houses such facilities as gymnasium, boxing room, game rooms and shower room. The renovation included putting heat into rooms that had none. A sheet rock ceiling was installed in the small boys' game room and insulation provided in the big boys' game room. Besides the new shower and toilet facilities, washbasins were installed where there were none before.

The project originated when Alexander F. Jones, assistant to the publisher of The Washington Post, toured the Barney House buildings last fall and suggested that money from The Post's National Celebrities Golf Tournament be donated to the renovation. Other money from the more than $15,000 collected in the tournament went to the Salvation Army summer camps for boys and girls, the Merrick Club summer camp and the Walter Johnson Memorial Leagues, the last for baseballs.

Adults present included Temple Jarrell, recreation direction of the Community Chest; Mrs. Jean S. Goodrich, director of Barney; Lawrence Sample, representing American Legion Post 36, which helps support Barney, and the following trustees: Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, president of the board; Mrs. H. M. Corning; Charles Humphreys, a contractor for the Mohler Construction Co., which did the job at cost; Mrs. Dorothy Tirrell, and Mrs. George Thorpe.

2 NHL Games Set Tonight

The Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs will shoot for their second straight victories tonight in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup semifinals.

The Red Wings are host to Montreal at Detroit, while the Maple Leafs play the Boston Bruins at Boston.

The Wings and Leafs, who clashed in last year's final won by Toronto, got a head start in the best-of-seven series with victories Tuesday night.

The pennant-winning Detroit team turned back Montreal, the third place finisher, 2-1. Toronto won over Boston, runnerup in the regular season standings, 3-0.

The Detroit-Montreal game required three overtime periods.

AAU Boxing Semifinals Listed Tonight

Only 2 of 4 Ex-Champs Still Left

As the District AAU boxing championships swing into the semi-final round tonight at Turner's Arena, only Heavyweight Eddie Grant and Middleweight Eddie Marshall have survived the blistering tourney pace from among the group of four 1948 titlists who were seeking repeats.

Eliminated in his initial appearance was Lightweight Titlist Claude Lawrence of St. Mary's Club, outpointed last week by Sam Kelsey. Then Pat Thomas, Merrick Club 135-pounder, who won the 1948 featherweight crown, was forced to forfeit to Willie Davis, Apollo Club entry, who won the novice honors last year. Thomas, a tourney favorite, received an eye injury in the recent New York Golden Gloves battling which has not yet completely healed.

Grant, an Apollo Club campaigner, faces Thurman Moore, 12th Street Y, tonight. The more-experienced Grant, winner of the 1949 Golden Gloves crown, looms as a favorite. If he gets by this hurdle he will meet Fred Samuelson of St. Mary's in the title match next Thursday at Turner's.

Finley can punch with either hand, authoritatively, as can Marshall—and this shapes up as one of the thrillers on the card.

Marshall, P. B. C. No. 2, won the District AAU 175-pound diadem last year. However, he competed in the nationals as a middleweight after weighing in at 158 in Boston, and this year he has relinquished his light-heavy AAU crown to try for the middleweight chapeau.

In the light-heavy bracket the bout between Johnny Shields, P. B. C. No. 2, and Nat Williams, unattached, looms as another interesting scrap tonight. Shields, another recent Gloves novice winner, hits hard while Williams is some shucks himself in this department.

Tonight's pairings:

At Woodmont

Larkin Begins Golf Sessions For Children

Gene Larkins, golf pro at Woodmont, will begin regular instructions for junior golfers April 16. Any member's son or daughter in the 10 to 15 age bracket is invited to be on hand at 10 A. M.

Starting times again will be necessary for weekend play at Kenwood beginning April 2. . . . Maybe now that golf season is here some of the pressure will be taken off the Wednesday night gin rummy tournaments — the boys can wrangle and compete out on the course.

Belle Haven is probably the only Country Club in this area which has not decreed starting time lists for weekend play. The Alexandria course, which is in its twenty-fifth year, has been expanded and remodeled so that it now compares with any course in the area.

Local colleges hit the golf trail shortly with Quantico Marines, already playing down South, starting against Haverford College at Quantico March 28. Georgetown opens its schedule with matches against Dartmouth March 30 and 31. Maryland tees off against Quantico April 5 and George Washington starts April 14 against Georgetown while American opens the next day with the University of Baltimore.

Amateur Wrestling

The DCAAU wrestling championship will be held at Maryland University Friday and Saturday. Preliminaries open at 3:30 p. m. Friday and continue through the evening. Finals Saturday starting at 7:30 p. m. Maryland, Georgetown, Gallaudet and Catholic Universities all have teams entered, with the DCAAU trophy going to the team victors.

Bullets Edge Knicks, 82-81

Baltimore, March 23 (AP).—Walt Budko, a collegiate star at Columbia last year, made two foul shots in the waning seconds tonight to give the Baltimore Bullets an 82-81 victory over the New York Knickerbockers in the Basketball Association of America playoffs.

It was the first game in the best two-of-three series between the second and third teams in the Eastern Division. The second tilt will be played tomorrow night in New York.

Ex-Champ Impresses

McNeill and Gonzales Gain Indoor Singles Semifinals

New York, March 23 (AP).—Don McNeill, who plays tennis merely for fun and exercise, moved impressively closer today to the National indoor singles title he held 11 years ago.

The former champion, now a New York advertising man, vanquished Irvin Dorfman, former Yale University star, 8—6, 6—3, 6—2, to enter the semifinals of the annual tournament at the Seventh Regiment Armory.

McNeill's triumph brought him face to face with Richard (Pancho) Gonzales of Los Angeles, the National outdoor champ and top-seeded favorite to capture the indoor title. They meet Friday night.

Gonzales sailed through the quarter-finals today without half trying. The big Californian flattened Lester Hirschfield of New York, former St. John's University captain, 6—2, 6—1, 6—3.

Panch's victory was considerably less impressive than that of McNeill, who left the tournament trail several years ago to devote his time to business and now only plays when the competition is close to home.

The women's singles bracket was reduced to the semifinals, meanwhile, with three of the four seeded entrants still in the running.

Top-seeded Gertrude Moran of Santa Monica, Calif., defeated Barbara Wilkins of New Rochelle, N. Y., 6—1, 6—3, and Dorothy Head of Alameda, Calif., ousted Carolyn Liguori of Brooklyn 6—1, 6—0. They play each other tomorrow.

In men's doubles, quarter-finals Sidney Wood, New York, and Ed McGrath, Brooklyn, defeated Jean Borotra, Paris, France, and Irvin Dorfman, New York, 3—6, 6—3, 9—7. Richard Gonzales, Los Angelee, and Frank Shields, New York, defeated Donald Thompson and Richard Thompson, both of New York, 6—2, 6—3. Bill Talbert and Don McNeill, both of New York, defeated Gilbert Bogley and Leslie Devoe, both of Princeton, N. J., 6—2, 6—4, Earl Cochell, San Francisco, and Fred Kovaleski, William and Mary, defeated Ted Bache, Upper Darby, Pa., and Richard Sorlein, Boston, 6—3, 6—.4

they simply were lost without him.

The Warriors led most of the first quarter, making the turn at the end of the period with a 17-15 lead. It was see-saw, with never more than three points separating the battlers, until Schulz got hot and shot the visitors into their six-point halftime lead.

With Dick O'Keefe joining the scoring parade, the Caps vaulted into a 29-point lead early in the fourth quarter.

The Warriors, shooting practically every time they gained possession of the ball, whittled a few points off their deficit late in the game, but it was too late. Most of the crowd of 5531 knew it and left 10 minutes before the rout was over.

An outstanding achievement in RECORDED MUSIC

This is the compact, automatic plug-in unit, with which you can enjoy the new 45 rpm Victrola* records through your present phonograph, radio, or television combination. The case is not much bigger than a cigar box and the whole unit weighs less than 6 pounds. Height 6⅜", width 9¼", depth 7⅛". Operates on 110 volts, AC (the standard home-lighting current). There will also be complete table and console models . . . all beautiful, all compact, all with the famous RCA Victor "Golden Throat"!

A new standard of performance unmatched by any other record-playing system

SETTING the highest standard ever achieved in the field of recorded music for the home, RCA Victor will shortly introduce a record and record-player system that is entirely new in conception and thrilling in performance.

It will bring you:

The finest tone quality in the history of the phonographic art . . . and at *less cost!

Unmatched convenience and simplicity of operation!

The fastest, quietest record-changing mechanism ever designed!

One hour* and forty minutes of the music you want with only one turn of a stack of ten records!

Non-breakable, long-life records which are *all the same convenient small size!

Records that are free of surface noise and free of sound distortion throughout the entire playing area! Only the distortion-free "quality-zone" is used.

The convenience of storing several hundred of the new records in an average-size console cabinet!

While bringing you the most perfect music reproduction ever devised, this new system does not make your present phonograph and records obsolete! You simply attach the new plug-in player unit to the instrument you have now, and enjoy both the old and the new!

And there will be a variety of other models, complete in themselves. Altogether, they will make this new standard for recorded music available at prices within the reach of every pocketbook!

WHY A NEW SYSTEM?

With the advent of the automatic changer, mechanical difficulties were encountered which frequently resulted in damage to records. Moreover, the cost of repairing changer units, plus the inconvenience to the consumer, prompted RCA Victor to commission its engineers to develop a new system based on the following objectives:

1. To design the best record ever produced.
2. To develop a trouble-free automatic mechanism for changing records.

In pursuing these objectives the engineers were instructed to disregard all limitations or restrictions formerly placed on the design of both players and records.

These objectives have been achieved in RCA Victor's new system of recorded music! This you will know when you see and hear its superb performance. Here are the first record and automatic record player ever designed to go together!

You will thrill to their performance. The player is compact and light—it weighs under six pounds! The turntable is less than 7 inches in diameter, with a spindle of 1½ inches diameter. The tiny records slide on and off with amazing ease! Inside the spindle is a trigger record-changer mechanism that releases records with precision and camera-shutter speed. It is free of noise! A remarkably light tone arm exerts a pressure on the records of only one-sixth of an ounce!

When you play one of these new records, only 7 inches in diameter and revolving at a speed of 45 revolutions a minute, you hear music, both classical and popular, at its recorded best. It has live-talent quality . . . a new clarity, depth and brilliance that will astonish you!

WHY 45 RPM?

The use of a new turntable speed of 45 rpm in the RCA Victor system is fundamental to its outstanding performance. For the size of the record and the extremely high quality standards that were demanded, it was determined, mathematically and by other scientific tests, that 45 revolutions per minute was the speed that would accomplish the desired results.

If it turns faster than 45 rpm, the small convenient record will not carry enough music. If a record of this size goes slower, part of the music inevitably becomes distorted. But at just this speed, the engineers have achieved all the other advantages with the most life-like TONE QUALITY in the history of recorded music!

Answers to your questions

RCA VICTOR has been deluged with questions about its completely new phonograph-record system. Never has a new development in the field of recorded music caused so much comment! Here are the answers to your questions:

1. Does the new 45 rpm system make my present conventional record player and records obsolete?

No! RCA Victor will continue to produce conventional records in all musical categories. And we will continue to improve this 78 rpm product, giving you the benefit of every technical advance that is physically possible to incorporate into the conventional record system.

2. Does the new system work with my present conventional phonograph or radio?

Yes! The compact, inexpensive plug-in player unit illustrated on this page easily attaches to your radio, phonograph, or television combination.

3. Is there an improvement in tone quality?

Yes! Here is music clear, brilliant, "live" almost beyond belief! This is achieved through a unique combination of factors: the 45 rpm speed; recording only in the quality zone; the absence of surface noise; the lightness of the tone arm.

4. How else is the new record better?

The new records are smaller, non-breakable, lightweight. They are all the same size! Their special "shoulders" eliminate surface wear. They can be stored conveniently in any bookcase . . . almost 150 records fit on one foot of shelf. Albums are small, and dustproof.

5. Is the new record-changer an improvement?

Yes! It is foolproof, quick, silent! The simple mechanism works inside the spindle. Time lapse between records is only a few seconds. It cannot damage records. And no needle to change; it uses the famous RCA Victor "Silent Sapphire" permanent point pick-up.

6. Is it easier to operate?

Yes! Stack up to ten records on the changer spindle, and you can enjoy more than 50 minutes of playing time without touching the record player. With only one reversal of the records, you can get one hour and forty minutes of just the music you want. No forced combinations; you have complete freedom of selection.

7. Is the new system more economical?

Yes! It is now possible to produce a better record at less cost. Non-breakable and made of the finest vinyl plastic, it has longer playing life than conventional records—up to 10 times as long! Their smallness and lightness enable speed and economy in distribution. Your savings in record costs will more than offset the moderate price of the 45 rpm player attachment or self-contained unit.

Toward a new standard

In the new 45 rpm Victrola system, RCA Victor sincerely believes that a new standard in performance and value has been established . . . a new standard that is unmatched by any other record or record player available to the public at this time.

We believe firmly that this IS a genuine new standard and that the record business is bigger than any one company. In recent weeks we therefore have shown the new Victrola system to the entire industry, record as well as instrument manufacturers. The results of ten years of development and research, together with our blueprints and technical knowledge, have been offered them for their use at no charge.

We are firmly convinced that the 45 rpm system will be the criterion for standardization in the future. We are equally sure that the public will corroborate this belief. For the new system of a record and a player BUILT TO GO TOGETHER will deliver better music, to more people, at less cost!

Discovered!—Formula On How to Get Ahead In Government Here

STORY: How to get ahead in Government here—that's an illusive secret men have sought for scores of years.

But now several groups of people believe they have found the rare and successful formula. They are: (1) Officials who aren't sure of their jobs; (2) those in Government who are seeking promotions to top-drawer posts; and (3) outsiders who are after presidential appointments.

People who belong in one of the three groups are known to have seriously discussed this formula which they believe will assure them success:

First, to persuade Drew Pearson to write something nasty in his column about them, a step they're sure will put them in solid with the President, and,

Second, to get John L. Lewis to snort and roar about them, a surefire way to get them confirmed by the Senate.

This isn't supposed to be funny. People are known to be dead serious about it. The Senate's approval of James Boyd as director of the Bureau of Mines, was the clincher. The Senate had refused to act on Boyd for nearly two years—until Lewis growled and called a coal strike in protest.

TRAVEL: The House Expenditures Committee yesterday gave its okay to the Karsten bill to raise the travel allowance for Federal workers from $6 to $9 a day. The bill also raises the allowance for private car use on official business from 5 to 7 cents a mile. The Administration had sought a $10 travel maximum. One member is reported to have voted against the bill.

RETIREMENT: The Johnston Subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday gave its approval to:

The Kefauver bill which would permit former employes with less than 20 years of service to withdraw their money, with interest, from the Civil Service retirement fund by forfeiting their rights to pensions. (Present employes have that right on resignation).

The Green bill, which would allow the immediate retirement of former employes who had a minimum of 25 years of service, and who were laid off between July 1, 1945 and July 1, 1947, and,

The Hill bill, which would give employes credit toward retirement for time spent in Government, for which no deduction was made if the error was on the part of the Government.

The Johnston bill was discussed at length by subcommittee members. It would permit optional retirement at 55 after 30 years of service. Civil Service officials who attended the meeting testified the Administration would oppose it. They also said the commission was writing a detailed and critical report on the measure. The subcommittee voted to postpone hearings on it until the report is made.

Dr. Frank P. Graham, the new Senator from North Carolina, is a sure shot for a place on the Senate Civil Service Committee. Slated for the other Democratic vacancy is reported to be either Senator Humphrey of Minnesota, or Eastland of Mississippi . . . The Displaced Persons Commission wants everyone to know that it has enough applications to staff a score of Federal agencies. So you're wasting your time to file there for jobs, either here or overseas.

FHA: The payless furloughs for Federal Housing employes probably will be averted. The Senate Appropriations Committee has restored the $800,000 to FHA's budget which was cut out by the House. FHA officials told the Senators that all agency employes would have to take payless vacations for a week or more if the cut stood.

RECLASSIFICATION: Senate Civil Service leaders, both Democrats and Republicans, are reported to have given the Administration until next Tuesday to make public its plans for revision of the Classification Act. Otherwise, they will introduce revision plans of their own. On the House side, Chairman Tom Murray is about ready to sponsor his classification bill.

RECLAMATION: The Senate committee increased from 48 million to 53 million the amount of money that could be used by the Interior agency for personal services. Most of the increase would be used to meet pay raise costs. Very little of it could be used to hire additional employes.

Officer Says Suit Naming Rep. Rogers Is 'Fantastic'

Capt. Latta-Lawrence Registers Denial Congresswoman Broke Up Marriage

Navy Capt. Harold A. Latta-Lawrence, whose comely blonde wife has charged that Representative Edith Nourse Rogers was the reason for their marital rift, yesterday labeled the claim as "fantastic."

His wife, Mrs. Eilene Diana Latta-Lawrence, heard of the captain's statement, and that of Representative Rogers—who has said the accusation was "ridiculous"—and asserted she would "absolutely" press he. suit for maintenance.

"Everything in it is truthful and honest," Mrs. Latta-Lawrence told a reporter.

She filed suit Tuesday in District Court for $300-a-month separate maintenance. She claimed her husband had been on "close and intimate terms for more than 20 years" with the 67-year-old dean of Republican women in the House.

Captain Latta-Lawrence is 47, while his wife is said to be about 35, an estimate which she refused to confirm or deny.

The wife said in her suit that two days after they were married on April 24, 1948, her husband told her she must not live with him in Washington. The suit alleges the captain felt his career would be damaged because of Mrs. Rogers' "distress" over their marriage.

In his statement, released by his secretary while he remained incommunicado, Capt. Latta-Lawrence said he "has not been afforded an opportunity to read the complaint filed against him by his wife, but that from what he has read in the newspapers, he can say without reservation that they (the charges) are fantastic and he denies them categorically."

Mrs. Latta-Lawrence, who lives at the Roosevelt Hotel, said she has not seen her husband since February 3. He lives at the Shoreham Hotel, where Representative Rogers has a suite.

The Navy yesterday disclosed details of the captain's rise to his present post of special adviser to the Chief of Naval Operations.

He was appointed a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve in 1942. He served successively in the Office of the Chief Cable Censor, Navy Department; on the International War Crimes Commission, Naval Forces in Europe, for which he received a letter of commendation; in the Bureau of Personnel here; and then in the Secretary of the Navy's office.

Captain Latta-Lawrence was made a temporary lieutenant commander on April 15, 1944, temporary commander on November 5, 1945, and temporary captain on January 21, 1946. He holds permanent rank of lieutenant commander, USNR.

D. C. Budget Funds Boosted By $557,300

A $557,300 addition to the District budget for the year starting July 1 was forwarded to the Senate by President Truman yesterday.

Main items in the total were $135,000 to run the District rent control office during the next year, $34,400 for furnishing and equipping the Parkview Elementary School, $215,000 mostly for hospital and medical supplies at Gallinger Hospital, and $57,000 for the Recreation Department to convert a dormitory at Langston Terrace into a community center.

In another development, the House Appropriations Committee approved two million dollars for setting up in Arlington Cemetery a World War II Unknown Soldier's tomb. The memorial is to correspond as far as practical with the one for the Unknown Soldier of the First World War.

The money was included in the Army civil functions appropriation. The bill also carries $2,428,000 for operating expenses of the United States Soldiers' Home here, and some $400,000 for completing a new pier on the north side of the Washington Channel.

In hearings released with the bill, Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) questioned whether the pier was really needed, and Army officials said that it was. They pointed out that substructure had been built, and would be worthless without the superstructure. They said it would be used primarily for pleasure boats, with the District operating it when it is finished.

For the pier, $475,700 was asked, but the committee ordered an over-all 15 per cent cut applied to river and harbor projects, while leaving the way open for the Army to ask more funds if construction costs do not decline enough to effect the saving.

In testimony on the Soldier's Home, Maj. Gen. H. K. Loughry, governor of the home, said that the Army had recently agreed that court-martial fines might go to the Treasury rather than to the home's trust fund.

The fund is now about 30 million, and in the 1948 fiscal year, court-martial fines turned in to the fund totaled $7,241,000.

Any Pyramid Player Faces Prosecution, Barrett Says

Chief Modifies Earlier Statement; Vice Squad Studies Some 100 Cases

Chief of Police Robert J. Barrett yesterday modified his statement that "the better element" in the community would not face arrests for pyramid club activity. He said "any person" will be prosecuted if there is evidence of gambling.

No arrests had been made, he said, although the vice squad was "investigating" approximately 100 complaints. More of the complaints came from those who had not received promised payoffs in the get-rich-quick fad.

But bombarded by conflicting official statements and faced with mathematical saturation, Washington pyramids seemed ready to join the chain letter as history.

A few pyramiders expressed their intention of continuing despite the confusion. On Monday vice squad leader Roy Blick promised mass arrests to stamp out the clubs. On Tuesday Barrett overruled Blick and said there would be no such arrests.

A grand jury indicted Daniel Thomas, confessed founder-member of a pyramid club, on Monday on charges of violating the gambling laws.

Barrett said yesterday: "Each case will be handled on its own merits, just like any other gambling case, no matter who is involved. If the police department gets evidence, after receiving complaints, that there has been gambling, then that person will be prosecuted."

The chief of police again countered rumors that he was involved in the clubs with this statement:

"Along with a lot of nonsensical rumors which have been circulated in connection with the pyramid clubs and its participants, there have come to my attention malicious rumors that prominent business people, that I and my family, Government officials and people in high public life, including justices of the Supreme Court, have been involved. I am not a member, my wife is not a member, and I can find nothing whatever to substantiate the rumors that any high officials are involved in the pyramid club. In the absence of something definite I consider these rumors malicious and false."

W. W. Everett Left Estate Of $371,956

William Wade Everett, former president of the Woodward & Lothrop department store, who died here March 15 at the age of 78, left an estate of $371,956.

This was disclosed yesterday when his will, dated November 3, 1945, was filed for probate in District Court.

Everett's estate includes his home at 3010 Woodland dr. nw., assessed at $40,091; a lot nearby, valued at $9667, and 600 acres in Loudoun County, Va., valued at $28,698.

Personal property amounts to $293,500, which includes $225,000 in securities and a life insurance policy for $59,000 made payable to the estate.

Income from the bulk of the estate will be shared by Everett's wife, Mrs. Sarah Buckingham Everett, and three children, William W. Everett, jr., Mrs. Helen Everett Terry and Mrs. Edith Everett Murray.

Two sisters, Mrs. Marion Everett Hain and Mrs. Edith Everett Wilson, receive $2500 each. The Calvary Baptist Church will get $10,000, and bequests of $1000 each go to the YMCA, the YWCA, the Baptist Home, and the Baptist Home for Children.

Everett's son will receive the 600 acres in Loudoun County. The remainder of the estate will be placed in a trust. For the remainder of her life, Everett's wife will receive $7500 a year income from the trust and another $7500 will be shared equally by the three children.

Upon the death of the wife, the children will receive income of $5000 each annually. Upon their deaths, the trust fund will be dissolved and will go to Everett's grandchildren.

Civil Rights Issue Debated Before Club

The civil rights issue was debated before the Harvard Club of Washington last night by Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) and Joseph L. Rauh, executive committee chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, at the Army and Navy Club, 18th and I sts. nw.

Rauh said fair employment, anti-lynching and antipoll tax legislation should be enacted to provide the circumstances under which tolerance can grow.

Hebert maintained such legislation was "catspaws used by demagogues to gain minority votes," and the individual States had the right to run themselves. He added the legislation was unconstitutional.

Rauh asked his opponent why the Southerners filibustered the legislation if they were sure it was unconstitutional.

"We're sure the proposed civil rights legislation is unconstitutional," Hebert replied. "We're sure of the Constitution. But we're not so damned sure about the United States Supreme Court."

Special Session Urged To Enact Rights Bill

A suggestion that he call Congress into special session this summer for passage of the civil rights program was sent to President Truman last night.

Asking the special session were the National Conference on Civil Rights and the National Negro Council. The telegram was approved at a joint meeting of the two groups at the Shiloh Baptist Church, 9th and P sts. nw.

The telegram was signed by Dr. E. L. Harrison, chairman of the confeernce, and Edgar G. Brown, president of the council.

Taxi Driver Is Fatally Hurt In Collision With Streetcar

D. C. traffic deaths 1949 ..... 17
Deaths this day last year ..... 19
Total traffic deaths 1948 ..... 67

William W. Cheseldine, 47, cab driver, of 2308 Nichols ave. se., died from a fractured skull at 4:28 a. m. yesterday in Casualty Hospital three hours after he was struck by a streetcar during yesterday morning's rainstorm.

The man was struck as he started to cross B st. in the 100 block se. His Diamond cab was found 20 feet from where the driver was hit.

A coroner's inquest has been set for 11:30 a. m. today. Slated to appear is the operator of the streetcar, Joseph Ragland, 27, of 4722 Brandywine st. nw.

Surviving are Cheseldine's widow, Mrs. Flora Cheseldine of Washington; two daughters, Mrs. Lillian Cassidy of Washington and Mrs. Mary E. Farrell of Avenue, Md., and three sons, William Robert Cheseldine of Avenue, Md.; Stanley W. Cheseldine and Ronald W. Cheseldine, both of Washington.

Two persons were injured in a freak accident involving another streetcar and two automobiles yesterday at 8:25 a. m.

The trolley, operated by Willard T. Walls, 22, of 628 D st. ne., traveling west on Florida ave. near O st. ne., crashed into the rear of an auto driven by Garnett L. Caudell, 45, of 950 F st. sw., police said.

The impact drove Caudell's car into another driven by Charles H. Scott, 38, of 1216 O st. nw.

Caudell was removed to Casualty Hospital with possible internal and back injuries. His condition was reported not serious. A trolley passenger, Lavelma Clingman, 17, of 2320 15th pl. se., was taken to Garfield Hospital with back injuries. Scott was unhurt.

Immediate Delivery Offered On Some Automobiles Here

The law of supply and demand is beginning to catch up with the new car business.

This was learned yesterday from a sampling survey of representative dealers of 12 makes of American-manufactured automobiles distributed here.

A similar survey, conducted by The Washington Post two years ago, showed that a would-be car purchaser would have to wait a minimum of five months, a maximum of 18 for a new car, depending on model.

Today, there is immediate delivery on several of the higher priced models, or on some independently manufactured cars, but would-be purchasers of the three popular-priced makes still must wait 3 to 15 months for delivery.

Here is a comparison of the average waiting times given by representative dealers in March, 1947 and this month. In some cases where immediate delivery is listed, dealers warn this may not apply to all models of the car they distribute.

| Type Car | March, 1947 | March, 1949 |
|---|---|---|
| Ford | 5 months | 3-6 months |
| Pontiac | 3-6 months | 4-5 months |
| Packard | 6 months | immediate |
| Mercury | 6-8 months | immediate |
| Lincoln | 6-8 months | immediate |
| Chevrolet | 6-12 months | 12-15 months |
| Studebaker | 9 months | 2 months |
| Chrysler | 10 months | 3-4 months |
| Nash | 10-12 months | immediate |
| Plymouth | 12 months | 3-6 months |
| Oldsmobile | 12-18 months | 4 months |
| Cadillac | 18 months | 6-9 months |

Some persons who ordered cars back in 1945 or 1946 are asking that delivery on new cars now be postponed. Others are holding back because they had hoped to get better trade-in values. Most new-car dealers believe the used-car market is "definitely back to normal," as compared with inflated wartime values.

Best guess of most dealers is that the buyers' market now developing in new cars will be an established fact by 1950.

Nickel Beer Flows in Capital As Bar Cuts Profit Per Barrel

Tavern Keeper Joe Drew brought nickel beer back to Washington yesterday after an absence of eight years.

Beer drinkers grabbed at the chance to double their intake without increasing their outlay and flocked to Drew's tavern, the Monroe Grill, at 3427 11th st. nw.

After two months of planning, Drew and his wife are selling National Bohemian tap beer for 5 cents a 7-ounce glass. All whisky prices have been reduced 15 per cent, Drew said, in a one-man effort to get beer and liquor prices "down where they belong."

A barrel of National beer costs Drew $9.64, he said. From the barrel he can get 300 7-ounce glasses. His gross profit a barrel yesterday was $5.36. The day before it was $20.36.

Drew says, "What's the objection to selling beer for a nickel? The company still gets $9.64 per barrel. I'm just willing to take a shorter profit on the hope of greater business."

The Monroe Grill was crowded all day. "Everyone was talking about it," Drew said, "but it's no publicity stunt. A lot of the customers were asking me how much water I had put in the beer, or when my wife and I had made home brew."

Mall Project For Parking Lot Shelved

A proposal for establishment of a parking lot along the Mall between 7th and 8th sts. nw. was shelved yesterday while a plan for erection of the District's first automatic parking structure moved another step forward.

The Mall project, proposed by the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency, was disapproved by the National Capital Parks and the National Capital Park and Planning Agency, P. Y. K. Howat, head of the MVPA, said.

The District Zoning Commission quickly approved an amendment to the Zoning Act permitting an exception from the present floor and height regulations in the case of mechanical auto parking garages.

This was done at the request of Arthur G. Dezendorf, operator of a parking lot at 1322 G st. nw., who wants to erect there a 46-by-68-foot building holding 120 cars. Previously, zoning rules limited the number of floors in this section to 10, but yesterday's action permits the operator to erect 13 low-ceilinged stories instead.

Dezendorf's plea was supported by Howat, who cited the need for additional parking space in the area. Leon Chatelain, jr., architect, explained the working plan of the garage, first of its kind in this area.

The next hurdle facing the proposal is for adoption of amendments to the District Building Code, Dezendorf said.

The Zoning Commission also amended the rules on occupancy certificates to permit a building purchaser to use premises which do not meet the new egress regulations pending installation of the required improvements.

Another amendment permits a person to obtain an occupancy certificate for use of a portion of a building provided the section covered meets the egress requirements. This will enable property owners to occupy part of a building while the rest is being improved.

Board to Pick Guard Chief; Interviews 4

Four National Guard colonels were interviewed yesterday by a board of general officers appointed to select an officer to become commander of the District National Guard.

After a decision is made on a candidate to succeed Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, who has passed retirement age, the recommendation will be forwarded to the Secretary of the Army. The Secretary of National Defense will announce the appointment "in the near future," the Army said.

Appearing before the board appointed by Secretary Royall were Col. LeRoy S. Mann, commanding the 260th Coast Artillery Group and senior line colonel in the local Guard; Col. Laidler B. Mackall, commanding the 113th Fighter Group, Guard Air Force; Col. William H. Abendroth, former adjutant general of Idaho and resident member of the General Staff Committee on National Guard policy, and Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general of the District Guard.

The board is composed of Maj. Gen. Willard G. Wyman, chief of staff of the First Army with headquarters at Governors Island, N. Y.; Maj. Gen. Leo M. Kreber, adjutant general of Ohio and commanding general of the 37th Infantry Division, and Brig. Gen. John P. McConnell, USAF, deputy to the special assistant to the chief of staff (air) for Reserve forces.

Miss Greer's Style Marks Her Recital

By Paul Hume

Frances Greer, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, sang last night at Marjorie Webster Junior College.

The recital was a benefit for the World Student Service Fund. Miss Greer was accompanied by Victor Truco. Her program was drawn from a judicious mixture of familiar and less known music. More and more singers are growing aware of the wealth of music by Henry Purcell.

Miss Greer is one who can sing his often intricate measures with ease and good style. Style in whatever field she moves is no problem to the young American soprano. She presented sensitive reading of the second Countess aria from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," and songs by Schubert, Strauss, Rimsky-Korsakoff, and three French composers.

Miss Greer's voice is a lyric of light caliber. It has an easy carrying quality, and needs no urging to be heard in a large auditorium.

With her natural gifts, and the enormous amount of music especially designed for such range and timbre, it is a pity that Frances Greer allows herself to be wooed into songs and arias which demand more tone than she can produce pleasantly.

Top notes, all those over high G, were unhappily acidulous. The trouble with this kind of tight production is that it makes a voice more and more shrill with increasing use.

In point of dramatic effect, why do singers today disregard the pianissimo marks over the high point of Strauss's "Dream in the Twilight," thus robbing it of its chief glory! Nor is Frances Greer the singer to handle the passionate declaration of Charpentier's heroine.

The evening's German songs were sung in excellent translations made by Florence Easton, one of the great sopranos in Metropolitan history.

Ex-Contractor Ends His Life With Revolver

Israel Held An Example In Democracy

Newly founded Israel as a democracy provides an example to "autocratically governed" and "misguided" peoples of the Middle East, a forum at the Jewish Community Center was told last night.

Israel, Dr. Richard Purcell, professor of constitutional history at Catholic University declared, has "held the torch of religious light throughout the ages" while "standing for the rights of man."

Dr. Purcell, Arthur C. A. Liverhant, counsel of the Israeli Mission to the United States, and Benjamin R. Epstein, national director of the anti-Defamation League, were speakers at the forum on "What Does Israel Mean to World Democracy?" The forum was the last in a series sponsored by B'nai B'rith.

Liverhant asserted that Israel "in her relations with other nations will endeavor to show how nations should live together. Epstein told the audience of more than 200 that "Jews the world over no longer may be considered a homeless people temporarily sojourning in a foreign land."

Woman Asks, on Behalf of Dear Friends, What's the Matter With Average Male Who Is Indifferent to Marriage in Our Times

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: On behalf of several dear friends, I seek your views on the following question: What's the matter with the average male today who is indifferent to marriage?

Some of my bachelor friends say in all seriousness that it is foolish for a man to marry today. They say the average bachelor has a comfortable apartment; usually he can cook or he has a housekeeper; he can romance with different lovaly ladies when he chooses; so why burden himself with the support of a wife and family?

The bachelors of whom I speak are worldly, intelligent, with upper educational training; they are successful in business or a profession; they have good character and a nice disposition. In short, they are very attractive husband-material. Why, then, have they no desire to build genuine social solidarity in companionship and comradeship with a wife?

Are Men Adopting New Social Values?

MY WOMEN friends are attractive, too; intelligent, of good family; some of them well-to-do; and they all deeply desire to have a husband, home and family. But they receive continual rebuffs from these defensive bachelors, who admit—to me and them—that the girls are all that a man could want; but the stark, bare fact remains that these men don't want to marry, period.

Have our social values changed so drastically that marriage is nowadays regarded by worldly men as a "trap for fools," into which only the young and unwary fall? Are fine young women doomed to lead lonely, unfulfilled lives, because of this cynical egocentric male attitude? Your opinion will be appreciated. L. D.

She Is Speaking of Biologic Duds

DEAR L. D.: These men of whom you speak can't rightly be called good husband-material. They are sissy-men and immature men, who haven't got what it takes, psychologically, to step out boldly into the reproductive role, carrying the burdens that go with it in civilized society.

Some are still sucklings, psychologically, in relation to their mother-attachment. Others have advanced a few notches beyond that; perhaps up to the intermediate level of fraternal attachment to their own sex. But as nature and social science reckons the male adult, they are sub-standard. They are biologic "duds" who don't get married because instinct tells them they aren't "man" enough yet to cherish a wife and children with comfort, satisfaction and success.

Thus, they're dealing in sophistry, in deceptive argumentation, when they try to put a "wise" face on their resistance to mankind's normal function, which is to mate and propagate and devotedly provide nurture for the new generation. And when they play at normalcy, by offering romance to fulfillment-seeking ladies, they are baiting a trap for fools—because a woman who wants a mate and children in "social solidarity" is indeed a fool to waste time on them.

Scourge of War Blights Society

HOWEVER, these eunuch-types have always existed in the human race; and are no more numerous in modern times than in past centuries, probably, if you pro-rate them against the rising population.

I hardly think our social values have regressed to a point where marriage is no longer considered worthwhile by knowledgeable people. Rather the growth of educational media seems to be bringing about a more general appreciation of good marriage, parenthood and loyal family unity as the richest fundamental source of strength and greatest blessing the individual can experience.

Unfortunately, many fine women are destined to lead lonely half-lives, due to scarcity of marriageable males; but this isn't so much because certain infantile or effeminate bachelors aren't "willing," as because war—humanity's self-induced scourge—periodically kills off the "flower of manhood" in its prime. And as you know, this has happened twice recently; twice during the husband-hunting years of your women friends, probably. M. H.

Praise Can Be Overdone

Children thrive on praise. Judiciously used, it is a far better method to secure desirable behavior than blame or punishment. All of us, adult and child alike, want to be approved. We want to feel that the things we do are appreciated.

But there can be too much of even a good thing. Sometimes parents or teachers, realizing how effective praise is likely to be, "put it on too thick." For the slightest thing, they give lavish praise. When this happens, youngsters soon detect the false note and are antagonized rather than spurred on or encouraged.

More than almost any other one thing, children appreciate honesty in those around them. Since overpraise is a kind of dishonesty, it is disliked. Now and again, a child has been so starved for approval that he "eats up" any amount of praise. In such instances it is wise to be more generous with praise and approval until the time when he no longer hungers for it.

Normally, however, praise in moderation is most effective. A quiet word of commendation, a pat on the back or a smile that shows approval is usually more effective than the more showy kind of praise.

Soiled Shades

Frequently the kitchen shades become soiled at the lower end and even after cleaning seem unsightly, while the upper rolled section remains perfectly clean. Remove the shade from the roller, make a new hem in the upper end and tack this old hem onto the wooden roller. You will have a perfectly fresh shade showing.

Ham-Noodle Delight

Creamed ham is delicious served over crisp Chinese noodles; the noodles may be bought in cans. Serve a salad of canned yellow cling peach halves, watercress, and French dressing with it.

Rich, Chocolaty DEVIL'S FOOD!

Commons' Stormy Petrel Will Address a Reunion Garbed in Blue Blazers

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

AS SUCCESSOR to chasing Pyramid participants, a smaller but not less frantic search through trunks, closets, attics is in full cry—the objectives being some hundred blazers, preferably dark or light blue, the traditional Oxford and Cambridge colors. Bypassing dinner jackets Friday night, old Oxonians and Cambridgeites will stuff their torsos into same for their annual reunion at the Chevy Chase Club. Speakers of the evening will include Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter, who once taught at Oxford, and Richard Crossman, a Laborite and most interesting stormy petrel in Britain's House of Commons.

Crossman, once a tutor, at New College, Oxford is, equivocally, leader of Parliament's anti-Communist left wing. During the war he was an assistant in charge of psychological warfare for General Eisenhower. In 1947 he was a member of the same Palestine investigating mission as Bartley Crum, lately owner of the defunct New York Star, and authored a far superior book titled, "Palestine Mission."

Crossman nowadays combines parliamentary duties with journalistic chores and writes a column for the Sunday Pictorial, the Tabloid Sunday edition of London's Daily Mirror. His particular assignment over here is unearthing information on the political machines which run our bigger cities.

Incidentally, a bulletin board notice urging graduates to sign up for the dinner instructed each in straight British to note when he "went up" and when he "went down" from college. The first signee scribbled jocosely, "As I never went up I never came down."

Dictator's Brand

SOME YEARS ago at a gala dinner in Caracas, Venezuela, this department was seated next to the then Minister of Education, Jose Rafael Pocaterra-Macpherson. It was early 1940, the war was still in its sit down phase and concentration camp atrocities were still unknown.

The talk turned to Gomez, the Venezuelan dictator, dead scarcely half a decade, who had ruled the country as his personal property for 28 years, imprisoning all opposition. Casually asking if the minister had known Gomez, we were startled when, instead of answering, he stooped, turned back a trouser cuff. An inch-wide scar bitten cruelly deep into the flesh encircled his ankle. "This is from Gomez's grillos," he said grimly.

One of the dictator's myriad bitter opponents, he had been thrown into a filthy jail where, as we recall, he remained eight years with heavy irons riveted to his ankle. Released, he left the country for exile in Quebec, where he met and married a French Canadian. He returned to Caracas after Gomez's death.

Now, of course, Pocaterra-MacPherson is the new Venezuelan Ambassador to this country. In between, as Ambassador to Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union, he wrote a fine book, "The Decadence of Venezuela Under Gomez Tyranny." An expert on dictators, after his stay in Russia he remarked wryly to a friend, "Compared to Stalin, Gomez was a baby at the breast."

Local Best Seller

IT'S SELDOM a local author hits the best seller list but Ann Goodwin Winslow did for two mid-March weeks. Her new novel, "The Springs," is set in her favorite milieu, the countryside around Memphis; her favorite era, the century's turn. It's a delightful successor to "The Quiet Neighborhood" and her first book, "The Dwelling Place."

Mrs. Winslow, the widow of Gen. Evelyeth Winslow, is a source of amazement and no little professional annoyance to most writers. Her mother wrote, so as a child she, too, wrote—poetry. She turned to prose only when both her children were "raised," and since 1943, when her first book was completed, she's never had a literary effort turned down.

Her writing, which is compared to that of Willa Cather and such perfectionists, is done in Memphis, and she spends three winter months in Washington with her daughter-in-law, Portraitist Marcella Comes, who is the widow of her son, Randolph.

Incidentally, the New Yorker reviewer singles out her hero, Mr. Mason, as the year's most fascinating. There's lots of complaining, though, because he doesn't get the gal.

Service Clubs Outline Projects, Achievements

By Genevieve Reynolds

FOUR local service clubs—Quota, Altrusa, Pilot and Soroptimist—outlined their civic projects and community achievements at a luncheon yesterday sponsored by the "Sorops" in the Willard Hotel.

All of the organizations contribute to the Community Chest, Red Cross, National Symphony. From there on they branch out into a variety of pet projects.

Mrs. Bertha Nienberg, chairman of Altrusa's public affairs committee, revealed that her organization is emphasizing the creation of friendships with women in foreign lands. "When foreign visitors — both men and women—come here," she explained, "we show them our offices, and how our homes are built and run."

They also provide a scholarship for some foreign-born girl to study in the United States.

On the legislative front, Mrs. Nienberg said that Altrusans follow closely all legislation affecting women around the globe. "Our hottest discussion last year v on Home Rule for the District," she observed. "We will continue to work for it."

At present she said that her committee is concerned with the reorganization of the executive branch of the United States Government and will report on the subject at the club's next meeting.

Quotarians also concentrate on international projects as well as national legislation, according to Miss Sibyl Baker, Quota representative and previous achievement award winner in the Soroptimist Club's selection of the woman who contributed most to the social and economic betterment of women.

Among Quota's international projects are sending Christmas toys to European children, making studies to aid the hard-of-hearing, and assuring two elementary school girls of service for their hearing devices until they complete their high schooling.

"Quota Club is greatly concerned with national legislation pertaining to Federal aid to education," explained Miss Baker. "Our members believe that all children should have access to education and if it means Federal aid to education we are for it. But we do not approve the proposed bill giving Federal aid to private and parochial schools.

Quota, which means "We Share," has an active committee on the Children's Theater. Gifts through its "Pleasure Funds" enables needy children around the playgrounds to attend performances at the Children's Theater.

Mrs. Mildred S. Ney, chairman of the civics and projects committee for Pilot Club, told how the organization carried on projects at the Home for Aged Women in Georgetown, the Florence Crittenton Home and the Children's Country Convalescent Home as well as in St. Elizabeth's Hospital. For example, the club is sponsoring the training of two girls to serve as aides in the Children's Convalescent Home.

In addition, club members gather greeting cards, magazines, books, for patients in St. Elizabeth's Hospital. For the women patients there they donate dresses, shoes and hats.

But the pet project of the Pilot Club is the Aged Women's Home where for years they have supplemented the women's diets with one dozen eggs each week. Each week club members visit their friends in the home, take them presents, give a monthly entertainment and on special occasions arrange parties for them.

Still other Pilot acitvities include maintaining a room at the Florence Crittenton Home—latest addition to the room was an electric wall clock—gift subscriptions and care packages to Europeans.

Mrs. Edith Jarvis, Soroptimist president, presided, and Miss Daisy Reed, vice chairman of the club's civics committee, was in charge of the program.

SECRETARY of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan says hail and farewell to the 1949 Maid of Cotton who leaves on a European tour at the end of the week. Snapped at the Congressional reception given by the National Cotton Council, Miss Sue Howell wears a bright red waffle weave pique gown with small white pattern and white jacket. The Secretary's formal garb was for the James Forrestal party, which he attended after the Cotton Council reception

Congress Looks at Cotton

Senators, busy in a late session on Capitol Hill, missed a delightful cotton fashion show, and an opportunity to meet Miss Sue Howell, the 1949 Maid of Cotton at a congressional reception held last evening from 5:30 to 7:30 in the Sapphire Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

But the Senators' wives were there to get ideas about their summer wardrobes, and members of the House of Representatives and their wives were also there for a fashion show which ranged from utilitarian clamdigger shorts to a bridal costume of crisp organdy.

In the receiving line at the reception, given by the National Cotton Council, were Miss Howell, wearing a black cotton velveteen dress; Mrs. Clifford Davis, wife of the Representative from Memphis, Tenn., home of the Cotton Council, and Mrs. LeRoy Johnson, wife of the Representative from California, the State which produces the most cotton per acre, and which also produced the 1949 Maid of Cotton. Also in the receiving line was Harold Young of Arkansas, president of the Council.

The fashion parade, provided by Jelleff's, was the highlight of the reception. The Maid herself modeled a number of the outfits, including a raincoat of red-brown and white awning stripe with matching hat and purse.

Cotton combined with plastic-covered metallic thread in a washable fabric was shown in several dresses. Sunback dresses with jackets or shawls were prominent in the show, but evening and garden party dresses and chic two-piece dresses for town wear were also shown.

Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of the Supreme Court Justice; Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, and Mrs. John R. Steelman, were among the noncongressional wives present. Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan and Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson were there for a few moments. Senator Estes Kefauver, sole Senator spotted, came for a very few moments.

But the House members were there in large numbers to applaud the show and the Maid of Cotton, and it must be noted there were enough men on hand that the two bridal bouquets thrown at the end of the showing were caught by gentlemen.

With their wives at the reception were Representatives James Trimble, Cecil W. Bishop, John Bell Williams, Brooks Hays, Wright Patman, Antonio Fernandez, John Jennings, jr., Albert Gore, John L. McMillan, J. Percy Priest and William M. Colmer.

Scouting the new fashions for his wife and daughters, was Representative Victor Wickersham who came alone.

Among the senatorial wives who took mental notes for their husbands were Mrs. James Eastland, Mrs. Clinton Anderson, Mrs. Walter George, Mrs. Kefauver and Mrs. Claude Pepper and Mrs. J. William Fullbright.

Mrs. Albert Loveland, wife of the Undersecretary of Agriculture, was there with her husband, as was Mrs. James B. Burns, Mrs. Perry House and Mrs. Meri Young.

Miss Howell leaves the end of this week for England and the Continent where she will model her cotton wardrobe and visit with officials until April 13.

Ask Anne

My apartment seems filled with dust. Since I have no vacuum cleaner or carpet sweeper, I must rely upon broom, whisk broom and dust mop. I brush my drapes, upholstered furniture and rug. But I have reached the point where I am just shifting the dust. How can I treat my brooms and mop to pick up the dust? Is there any way, short of professional cleaning, that I can remove the imbedded dust from my upholstered pieces? M. M. M.

Since the only really satisfactory way to remove dust from upholstery, rugs and draperies is by using a vacuum cleaner and the attachments, I urge you to consider investing in one. In the meantime, here are some suggestions which may be helpful: I know of nothing which could be put onto a broom to pick up dust and which would not be transferred to the rug or floor when you sweep. About the only way to lessen the dust from sweeping would be to sprinkle dampened or treated sawdust or sweeping compound which is sold at hardware stores onto the rug before you sweep.

A clean untreated dust mop can be treated to pick up dust better by soaking it in a mixture of two parts paraffin oil and one part of turpentine. A little cedar oil can be added to give a pleasant odor if wished. Wring out the mop and hang out doors to dry before using.

Professional cleaning is the only way to remove imbedded dirt from upholstery since you do not have a vacuum. If you could have the pieces cleaned professionally or borrow a vacuum with attachments to do the job at home, then covering the pieces with dustproof slip covers would lessen that problem in the future.

I would suggest you remove the drapes and take them out of doors periodically to remove dust from them rather than brushing it off in the room.

Will you advise whether or not it is possible to have galoshes repaired in Washington? I have two pairs of galoshes, one pair suede finish which has only a small leak around the toe, the other pair very heavy fleece lined with four buckles which has a leak at the heel. Of course, this would be a vulcanizing job. Both pairs are otherwise in excellent condition. F. A. K.

There is a shoe repair shop on 11th st. which vulcanizes galoshes. They can be reached by calling District 7970.

We purchased a chest made of chestnut wood recently and the dealer of antiques said when cleaned and finished, it would resemble a similar color to pine. She said we would not have to scrape it, though. Could you help us, please? Would using linseed oil and shellac work, or is this in the wrong direction? B. P. S.

In order to get a piece of wood thoroughly clean and restore its original color, it is almost always necessary to remove the old finish and with it the imbedded dirt. To do this, use a good commercial varnish remover and when the finish is softened, wipe away with a coarse cloth; flat areas can be scraped. When clean, go over the piece with turpentine to take away every trace of the remover. Allow to dry and sand until satin smooth. For the finish, you could just apply several coats of paste wax, allowing each to dry well and rubbing well before the next coat is applied. Or, you could use a linseed oil finish. Apply the oil to the raw wood, allow it to soak for several hours and wipe away excess. After several days another coat is added in the same way. Continue adding oil until no more is absorbed, rubbing the piece hard each day to bring up the lustre. If you wish a shellac finish, thin shellac with an equal amount of alcohol and apply with a brush or pad of cloth. Apply four or five coats, one coat immediately following the other. Allow to dry and apply a final coat of paste wax.

Stassen to Fill Truman's Spot at MIT Convocation

Cambridge, Mass., March 23 (AP). Harold E. Stassen, 1948 Republican presidential aspirant, was named tonight to replace President Truman as one of the speakers at the mid-century convocation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology April 1 at Boston Garden.

An MIT spokesman said Stassen, now president of the University of Pennsylvania, probably will discuss what society expects from science and technology. The convocation will run three days, March 31, April 1 and 2.

President Truman recently canceled his appearance here because of the pressure of official duties.

Mr. Truman, at the conclusion of his brief off-the-cuff remarks, said to Forrestal:

"Jim, I hope I am as well thought of when I leave the public service as you are."

Will Echo of New York's Loud Commercials Be Heard Here?

Stan Egbert of 5508 Southwick st., Bethesda, Md., calls my attention to an ominous item in the current Tele-Tech Magazine.

It reveals that New York buses equipped for transit radio will get extra loud commercials, which will be "15 to 20 decibels" higher than regular music volume.

My engineering friends tell me that this means the commercials will be "several times as loud" as the music. Won't that be peachy?

GIVE-AWAYS

"Intelligent male dog needs home on farm." (Taylor 7975.)

"Two black and white female kittens, 5 months old." (Trinidad 2453.)

"Two female puppies, about 12 weeks old, both black as the ace of spades; we're going back to England." (Chestnut 0074.)

OVERHEARD

Policeman: Hey—come back here. Don't you see that 'Don't Walk' sign?

Flustered Female: I wasn't walking, I was running.

GEOMETRIC PROGRESSION

David Kandel quips: "What started out as an innocent pyramid now seems to have developed into a vicious circle."

Yes, Dave, and sometimes I wonder whether the clubs are really on the square, or whether these fancy figures on profits are just propaganda put out by smart angle-shooters.

OH, HAPPY DAY!

As pointed out in this space recently, the Interior Department and the local Recreation Board have spent an amazing number of years "conferring" about local golf courses without ever getting anyplace.

Interior would be "happy" to turn its courses over to the Recreation Board, if the board would agree to run them on a nonsegregated basis.

The board would be "happy" to run the courses on a nonsegregated basis, if Interior would turn them over to the board.

But in the midst of all this great happiness, the board never got the courses, because neither side would make the first move.

So last night's announcement that the board officially and unanimously agrees to Interior's terms can be considered a milestone in these negotiations.

Now Interior will have to make good and let the board assume control of the courses—or find a new alibi.

If it's going to be another alibi, it had better be a good one, because the long-suffering publinx golfers seem to think that it's finally their turn to be "happy" for a while.

EXCEPTIONAL MAN, THAT MEYER

A colleague of mine named Eugene Meyer keeps pace with public opinion by sampling it at every occasion—especially when he's riding in taxicabs.

The other day he hailed a cab on 16th st. nw. and noticed that its interior was spotlessly clean. The floor had been carefully swept, the ash-trays were sparkling, the leather on the seat glistened in mute testimony that a polishing cloth had been there lately.

"New car?" asked Meyer.

"Nope," said the driver. "It's a year old."

"How do you keep it so clean?"

"Whisk broom, dust cloth, and polishing rag," replied the hacker laconically.

"You do a good job. Does anybody ever comment about it?"

"Yep. One out of every five—but they're mostly women. You're an exception."

PERSONAL NOTES

Jeannette Carter, 2900 Connecticut ave. nw.: I meant what I said on that broadcast. I don't suggest ideas to Cartoonist Irwin. I send one copy of my stuff to the composing room and the other copy to Irwin. While the printers are whipping up their typographical surprises for me, Irwin gets the same effect with pen and ink. I never know what it's going to be until the cartoon is done.

IT SOUNDS UNBELIEVABLE, MARK, BUT A TRIBE OF INDIANS UP ON THE ARCTIC CIRCLE IS STARVING BECAUSE OF A GHOST WOLF PACK!
SOMETIME AGO THEIR TRAPPING GOT SO BAD THE WILDLIFE SERVICE TRANSPLANTED A HERD OF CARIBOU INTO THE SECTION TO FURNISH FOOD AND CLOTHING!
SUDDENLY WOLVES BEGAN TO TO APPEAR FROM NOWHERE... NIGHT AFTER NIGHT, THEY KILLED SCORES, THEN DISAPPEARED INTO THIN AIR!
THE INDIANS WERE SO FRIGHTENED THEY WOULDN'T LEAVE THEIR HUTS, AND GOVERNMENT HUNTERS FAILED TO TRAP OR SHOOT A SINGLE WOLF!—A REAL GHOST PACK!

Foundation Accused As Lobby

By Drew Pearson

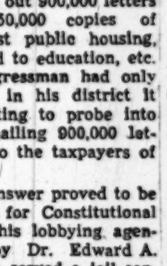
One of the neatest ways of reducing your income tax while simultaneously operating a powerful lobby has just been disclosed on Capitol Hill.



Pearson

It is the Foundation for Economic Education, run by some of the biggest corporations in the United States, and which has been flooding the country with propaganda aimed at undermining the Marshall Plan, rent control, aid to education and social security.

The list of contributors has been kept a closely guarded secret. This column, however, has secured a copy and can reveal the fact that the backers of this lobby include General Motors, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Ford, General Electric, the Mellon National Bank, Gulf Oil (also owned by the Mellon family), Republic Steel, the du Ponts, Chrysler, Humble Oil, Inland Steel, Swift Packing Co., U. S. Steel, Ernest T. Weir, Westinghouse, Monsanto Chemical, Libbey-Owens-Ford, Sears Roebuck, Sun Oil, Texas Oil and various others.

Because the foundation is supposedly for "education," these big corporation can deduct every cent of their contributions from income. Thus the $274,576.60 given to the foundation in the past eleven months costs the corporations only a fractional part of the dollar.

Chief aim of this high-powered lobby is to oppose any act of Congress that raises living standards, if—it also lowers business profits.

Mail Barrage

Some time ago this column exposed the amazing fact that one Congressman alone, Representative Ralph Gwinn, New York Republican, had mailed out 900,000 letters containing 2,250,000 copies of speeches against public housing, rent control, aid to education, etc. Since the Congressman had only 280,000 people in his district it seemed interesting to probe into why he was mailing 900,000 letters at a cost to the taxpayers of about $27,000.

Part of the answer proved to be the Committee for Constitutional Government. This lobbying agency, directed by Dr. Edward A. Rumely — who served a jail sentence as a German agent during the first World War—has been promoting part of the Gwinn mail campaign. But part of his letter barrage was traced to a rambling mansion overlooking the Hudson River at Irvington, N. Y., called the Foundation for Economic Education.

This idea was started two years ago by suave, 51-year-old Leonard Read, former western manager of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and general manager of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. The Foundation now pays Read $25,000 a year and, though not registered as a lobbyist, Read has carried his "educational" activities to Capitol Hill where he has written speeches against the Marshall Plan for isolationist Congressmen.

French Goebbels

One of the foundation's writers is Bertrand de Jouvenel, whom the New York Herald Tribune has called the Goebbels of France. That he was a pro-Hitler propagandist has also been confirmed by the French Embassy. Yet he was selected by the so-called "educational foundation" to write about the evils of rent control. Furthermore, the Reader's Digest lent itself to this propaganda, by publishing his pamphlet—just as rent control came up for debate on Capitol Hill. De Jouvenel didn't even deal with rent control in the United States, but in France. Now he has been assigned by the foundation to write another pamphlet on socialized medicine—in England.

Other samples of the foundations propaganda are: "Why Kill the Goose?"—a plea to protect big business; "Can Dollars Save the World?"—an attack against the Marshall Plan; "Liberty And Taxes," an argument against overtaxing the rich; "Planned Chaos," a sock at government planning.

To spread its propaganda, the foundation has built up a mailing list of 27,308. But more letters are sent out by friendly Congressmen using free mailing privileges.
